WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK

By LEMUEL F. PARTON

NEW YORK.—This writer, encountering Frederick Jagel of the Metropolitan Opera at luncheon the other day, quizzed him about his season at Buenos Aires, from which he recently returned. He thinks cultural penetration of South America might be more effective than our trade and diplomatic missions, in which he is inclined to believe we aren't getting anywhere.

South America has long had the idea that we were a nation of hard-boiled money-grubbers. Any creditable performance in the arts, he believes, will be our best line of export. He said he found the Argentines most generous and appreciative hosts. Once they find you haven't an extra ace in your cuff and you measure up to their standard of propriety, they wear their hearts on their sleeve.

Incidentally, Mr. Jagel's singing makes audiences weep, but no one meeting him ever feels sorry for him. He is a businesslike, compact Brooklynite, formerly an actuary with the Mutual Life Insurance company, long before he took his perch in the old red plush aviary, where, on occasion, he still hits high C.

As an actuary, young Mr. Jagel, charting our careers, began to think of his own career. He tossed his insurance job out of the window, found a backer, sang in movie houses up and down Broadway and proved to all and sundry that he had a voice. He studied with Portanova in New York and with Caladini in Milan. Making his operatic debut in Milan, in "La Boheme," he hit Rodolfo's high C with a bull's eye that greatly improved Italo-American relations. He sang for four seasons in Italy, before making his New York debut as Radames, on November 8, 1927. He knows about 40 roles, and 26 of them he can sing offhand and on the slightest provocation.

With the precision and clarity of a man trained in business, he tells you of the superiority of our South American competitors in their specialty of quid-pro-quo trade economies. Hence, his talk of "cultural penetration" isn't just ivory tower stuff. If Secretary Hull could sing as well as Mr. Jagel can talk international trade, he, too, would be in the Metropolitan.

Mr. Jagel thinks we have the making of a grand musical renaissance in this country, with talent, teachers and a fine national appreciation vastly enhanced by the radio.

THE amiable white magic of John Mulholland once enabled me to deal myself four aces against another's four kings, which, of course, revived faltering hopes of the existence of kindly elves with whom Mr. Mulholland was wired in and whom he could summon in behalf of his friends.

But now one of the cleverest magicians in the country—the cleverest, to this none-too-seeing eye—publishes a book, "Beware Familiar Spirits," in which he banishes all trolls and makes all magic just manual dexterity and technique. It isn't exactly a debunking book. He leaves the door open for faith in the occult, if you think you have evidence, but, as to prevailing mystagogy, he reduces it to fraud or to honest self-deception, aided by slow eyesight.

He sold school books and was a teacher of dramatics and industrial arts at Columbia university, before he became a full-time magician and vice president of Society of American Magicians. He has performed and lectured in about 40 countries.

Nobody, anywhere, ever had more fun. He likes to shepherd four or five friends through a subway turnstile, with one nickel, making it reissue from the slot each time and click through the next man. That brings the change dealer roaring from his den. Mr. Mulholland hands him a half-dollar, the wayfarers take their train, and then the dealer finds he has an aluminum disk with a rabbit in a silk hat on it. He usually screams and butts his head against the wall. But, in each case, the subway already has its full count of sound nickels.

As to the above poker hands, it happened at a luncheon table of five or six men. Mr. Mulholland sent for a new deck of cards and asked me to shuffle them and deal four hands. It couldn't have been a trained deck. It was thoroughly shuffled. Mr. Mulholland never touched the cards, standing with his back turned a few feet away, and never said a word. The hands fell as he ordered, the orders apparently issuing silently from the back of his head.

Dress Charmingly Within Limited Budget; Here's How

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

HERE'S an encouraging word to the woman whose wardrobe upkeep must needs be held down to a limited budget. The skirt with contrast tops leads the style program this season. With the separate skirt or simple foundation dress and a flock of flattering sweaters, jackets and blouses tuned to occasion you can dress as well as the next one and not be extravagant especially if you "make your own."

Here's hoping the suggestions offered in the accompanying illustration will prove an inspiration to get busy sewing, knitting and embroidering on a wardrobe of pretty things that will carry you triumphantly through the season from the dress standpoint.

Let's start with the right skirt to wear with the right top accompaniment. It is easily possible to carry on a well-dressed appearance with two skirts in one's wardrobe, a wool or crepe for routine wear plus a velvet or handsome crepe or slipper satin weave for more formal wear. However, you can go as far as you like in laying in a supply of skirts and then not have too many if you go a lot. A tweed, a colorful plaid, a pleated-all-round type, a smartly fashioned crepe or satin for day with a floor-length velvet or crepe for evening formality, are none too many.

Of course, with your tweeds and your plaids you will want a swank utilitarian sweater. The model pictured to the left in the group is easily knit. You will love it because it is so unusual. It has style distinction written all over it in that it is knit in a different way, using two patters that contrast a vertical and horizontal handling. A soft wool yarn in a delectable deep raspberry pink is used for the knitting of this clever sweater.

In Sleek Satin

Slipper satin in dark or evening shades is playing an outstanding role for dine and dance wear. It is fashionable either in dark or pastel shades. Youth is in the red this season and no mistake about it. This time it is in gorgeous ruby red sleek satin.

If it's something a wee bit dressier you are wanting, a touch of gay hand-embroidery will do just that. See what can be done in the way of intriguing embroidery in the sweater blouse below to the right. The model pictured is knitted of rust red wool and the embroidery is done in riotous flower colors.

Coming to the dressier modes, handsome laces of every type and description make the news headlines for blouse and jacket and bolero fantasies in a big way. It's almost like magic the way a bit of lace transforms into a jacket or blouse masterpiece and even if you are not an expert in making things, a charming jacket-bolero or bolero as pictured can be put together with little effort. A collection of lace tops will array you glamorously wherever you go.

A lace bolero does wonders in dressing you up, and does it click charmingly with last year's frocks! It is never so welcome and useful as at the tail-end of winter when you are feeling a bit jaded with dark dresses and feel the need of something to perk them up. The carickmacross lace bolero which you see pictured above to the right will sound a refreshing new note for your wardrobe. Scalloped all around the edges it silhouettes effectively against the background of a black dress in either street or evening length.

A dress-up jacket-bolero to be worn with skirt or suit lends allure to your formal afternoon or evening costume. You can get the fine leaf-patterned lace that fashions the jacket-bolero pictured below to the left in ravishing colors or in black. The glittering rhinestone buttons complete the formal look.

Give White Bead Embroidery Trim

Among newcomers in the field of popularity are very attractive black dresses for afternoon wear that are prettified with white bead embroidery. The character of the embroidered motifs are unique. Sometimes the embroidery is done around the neckline in the new necklace effect. Likely as not here will be a dash of the white beadwork on the girle or belt.

The newest of the new is for a single spray of flowers to be worked on the bodice top with not a vestige of white beads showing elsewhere. The effect takes place of a flattering corsage worn on the left front shoulder.

Fur Dyers Adding To Lure of Skunk

Both kolinsky and Russian fitch in sable coloring and mink-dyed muskrat have found great favor. The fur dyer has also contributed to the continued success of skunk, now available in stunning sable and baum marten shades.

Foxes—silver, red and blue—are extremely important now in the making of fur coats in short and intermediate lengths. And a newcomer in this field is the silky lynx.

Odd Companions Tweed and sequins may seem to be strange companions but they go together in this season of striking fashions.

Women Must Utilize Their Natural Gifts

By PATRICIA LINDSAY

SOMEONE has said, "No beauties are born, all are made." And what hope and encouragement to all women lie in that statement! True it is that few of us are born beautiful but persistency in making the most of what Nature endowed us with does make us attractive. And after all, it is the interesting-looking woman today, rather than the pretty-pretty, who is recognized and toasted as the modern beauty. The woman who has developed her natural gifts by being beauty-loving and beauty-seeking.

Gone are the days when one's earnest devotion to good looks was frowned upon, or when doctors voiced their disapproval of cosmetics. Today it is considered a woman's duty to society to be as lovely as possible and leading physicians believe strongly that the healthy, normal woman should keep astride of her times and make herself most attractive.

No matter what your age, your occupation, your circumstances, you owe it to yourself as a woman, and to those around you, to make the most of your feminine heritage. Husbands and children alike unconsciously dote on wives and mothers who have not allowed themselves to become duds. Proud is the child who can produce a personable mother to show his friends and schoolmates.

—But Don't Be Extravagant!

But in seeking beauty, I do not advocate spending the rent or grocery money on expensive treatments or a fussy wardrobe. No indeed. If you can afford such luxuries well and good, but don't encourage frowns and wrinkles and a distorted mind by fretting over what you cannot have. You can exercise your body into a pleasing figure just as well in your own home as you can in a costly studio. Current newspapers and magazines offer sound advice on meticulous grooming and body care, so there is little excuse for you to moan because you have not the wherewithal for frequent visits to beauty salons.

Every woman's budget, however, should allow for occasional visits to a reliable physician to check her general health and diet, and also for a few good cosmetics—specific aids for ailing skin or hair and those necessary to preserve personal daintiness. To these, every woman has a right—they assist her mentally.

Myrna Loy epitomizes the charm for which women should strive. An arresting, smiling personality, an interest in her work, and a piquant beauty enhanced by scrupulous grooming.

But just as pertinent as cosmetics to a woman's loveliness is the right approach to living. Gracious thoughts and characteristics, an active interest in something other than herself and her home, a desire to be an inspiration to society, rather than a burden. Such attainments certainly enhance the charm any woman creates by being pleasing to look at.

Keep Child's Mind Active

If you are truly concerned about her beauty you cannot fail to keep her mind active and growing. What nonsense to allow her to concentrate on make-up! Teach her simple daily groomings. Fill her day with small duties and childish pleasures. Let her grow! Every child loves to be read to. Every child loves to paint and draw pictures. Think up new activities that will teach her to be self-reliant and progressive.

There is no beauty as appealing in all the world as a child's beauty. It must be held sacred. It must not be scarred by stupid parents who feel that artificial beauty aids can possibly make their child more attractive!

Body health, skin health, mental health are the goals to be reached. Help your child by concentrating on those. She will grow to lovely womanhood, happy in the knowledge that her parents were wise parents who did not sacrifice her youth needlessly.

How Women in Their 40's Can Attract Men

Here's good advice for a woman during her change (usually from 35 to 42), who fears she'll lose her appeal to men, who worries about hot flashes, loss of pep, dizzy spells, upset nerves and moody spells.

Get more fresh air, 8 hrs. sleep and if you need a good general system tonic take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made especially for women. It helps Nature build up physical resistance, thus helps give more vivacity to enjoy life and avoid causing jittery nerves and disturbing symptoms that often accompany change of life. WELL WORTH TRYING!
