Will Rogers' Humorous Story

By WILL ROGERS

THEY still have grass on the world, even if everything has turned brown in the north. So maybe this happened in Florida or California, just last week. A tramp came to the door and looked awful downcast. "Lady, I'm hungry," he says.

"Gee, that's terrible," says the jolly housewife. "Well," says the innocent tramp, "I'd like to cut your grass. Just for a meal. You ain't no idea how hungry I am." "Go to it," says the hard-boiled lady of the house. "But if you're as hungry as you say, and want the grass for a meal, you can chew it off and save time."

MRS. ROOSEVELT LIKES FAIR "SAMPLE"

NEW YORK (Special).—Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, wife of the President, like more than 200,000 others persons from all over the world, has already sampled the New York World's Fair of 1939 by visiting the exhibit the Fair Corporation maintains for the public on the Fifth Avenue floor of the Empire State building. "I am much interested in this Fair," said Mrs. Roosevelt, after she had seen the ingeniously illuminated models and animated displays that promise so many wonders for the Nation's Fair. "It seems to me that there is opportunity here to do a remarkable piece of work from the educational standpoint. The conception of the whole Fair as outlined to me sounds very provocative of thought." The theme of the Fair is "Building the World of Tomorrow."

Let's Have Pop Corn

A big bowl of fluffy, hot buttered pop corn and a jug of cold milk makes a grand snack any time. Let the youngsters have it when they come in from coasting — serve it to the grown-ups after the movies or during an evening of bridge. Pop corn is easy and quick to make with an electric popper.

By Louise Brown A COLD winter evening, a cozy group of family or friends, an electric corn popper—doesn't that have all the possibilities for some fun? Pop corn is such a general favorite with youngsters and grown-ups alike, that you'll make a hit every time you bring out the popper. Big bowls of the hot, buttered, snowy white flakes will disappear in a jiffy—especially if you serve a pitcher of cold milk, or some other chilled drink along with them. Perhaps if the gang is feeling ambitious, they might like to try a hand at pop corn balls or cracker-jack. If the children tease for candy, they'll be delighted with simple pop corn confections that are much better for them than more elaborate sweets. Electric Corn Popper Of course some pioneering souls may still prefer the old-time corn popper, shaking it vigorously over a bed of coals. Moderns, however, will think the electric popper a decided improvement. It's much easier to simply plug it in at any convenient outlet—in the living room, game room or kitchen—measure in the corn and let it pop. An electric popper will give you greater volume of big fluffy kernels and fewer scorched ones.

These general directions will give you very good results. If a measuring cup comes with your corn popper, measure the correct amount of cooking oil and pour into the popper. Use 1/4 cup oil to 1/2 cup corn. Attach the cord and heat the oil to the smoking point. Measure the pop corn and pour into the hot fat. Stir until it begins to pop, and continue stirring, or shaking the popper, until the corn stops popping. The cord may be removed from the outlet as soon as the corn begins to pop rapidly and it will finish on stored heat. When it is done, pour the corn immediately from the popper into a bowl or other container. (By the way, there are very attractive serving sets consisting of a large pop corn bowl and individual bowls made of wood or pottery.) Buttered Pop Corn 3 tablespoons oil 1 tablespoon butter 1 1/2 tablespoons salt 1/2 cup pop corn Put oil, butter and salt into popper. Heat. Add corn and follow general directions. This makes tasty, salty, corn which is preferred by some people. The salt may be decreased to 1 teaspoon, if less salt is desired. Pop Corn Balls 5 quarts popped corn 2 cups sugar

1 1/2 cups water 1/2 cup white corn syrup 1/2 teaspoon salt 1 teaspoon vinegar 1 tablespoon vanilla Boil sugar, water, and corn syrup without stirring to 260° F., or until it cracks when tried in cold water. Add vinegar, salt and vanilla and boil to 264° F. Pour slowly over corn, stirring and turning with a spoon so that each kernel may be evenly coated. Make into balls, let stand until brittle and wrap in wax paper. Crackerjack and Pop Corn Squares 2 1/2 cups brown sugar 1 cup butter 4 tablespoons molasses 3 tablespoons water 3 tablespoons vinegar 8 cups popped corn 1 cup shelled, roasted peanuts Combine sugar, butter, molasses, water and vinegar and cook until syrup threads. Pour immediately over popped salted corn and peanuts, stirring and tossing the corn so that each kernel is covered with syrup. Cool and store in covered container. For pop corn squares, press this mixture firmly into a buttered square or rectangular pan so that it is about 2 inches thick. Cool and cut into small squares. Wrap each square in a piece of wax paper.
