DETAILED REPORT OF WORK OF CENTRE HALL COMMUNITY VACATION CHURCH SCHOOL

The Centre Hall Community Daily Vacation Church School closed on the last day of June with a picnic on Grange Park.

Following is a complete account of the activities engaged in by the various departments.

The Primary Department, Mrs. Ray Mark, principal. Enrollment 30. The theme used was "God's Out-of-Doors." Our aims were to help the children discover the unnoticed beauties around them; to bring them closer to God through their enjoyment and interest in the universe He planned; to lead the children to observe for themselves how God's care for his creatures is shown in his plan for his safety and that cooperation with his plan is necessary to living and finally to lead the children to appreciate the orderly plans that control the universe as the rain cycle, seed cycle, etc. In order to achieve these aims we used stories, pictures, specimens, discussion to draw from the children's personal experiences; expeditions to woods, lawns, fields, and pond; posters and bulletin boards, daily worship and fellowship periods. There were a number of evident results. The children told very interesting tales of personal experiences with insects, animals, birds. They brought specimens; did creative work as drawing, handwork, riddles, short poems and created games; learned Bible verses, prayers, the twenty-third Psalm, songs, etc.; responded very well during worship periods with prayers.

The Beginners' Department, Ruth Hartley, principal. Enrollment, 23. The theme used was "Let's Go Out-of-Doors." The course was divided into three units, each unit had its own purpose. In unit one, working out of doors, the child was made to see that God made things for us to enjoy because he loves us, but we must help take care of them. In this unit each child was given a petunia to plant and care for. He learned to think of it as his own and that without proper care it would die. The stories were mostly on flowers and what makes them grow.

In unit two, Living Out of Doors, the children were made to think and feel that this is a happy world. God made it and likes us to enjoy everything but He expects us to help Him. We hope each child will talk frequently with God, expect beautiful things and experiences in making the world a happier place in which to live. In this unit we drew, colored and made note books on flowers and birds and on every occasion had "thank you prayers." Unit three was on Homes for All. Each child was made to think and feel that the world is full of many interesting things, such as birds, fishes, ants, toads, etc., and for every creature God provides a home. In this unit we took walks and enjoyed seeing the things of nature, such as ants and how they live. This unit helped the children appreciate their homes and to help at home. The children have also achieved a feeling of security in knowing that they are living in a friendly world and God is the ruler of all things. The children were taught to share with one another on the playground or elsewhere and to play happily together. In the worship period they learned to talk with God, saying little thank-you prayers for the different things sent them, such as flowers, rain, sunshine, birds, homes, parents, etc. During lunch period they learned to be thankful for their food.

Intermediate - Junior Department. The text used by the boys was "We All Need Each Other" by Mary Jensen. The first unit developed centered about our need of each other in "Our Enjoyment of Nature." The aim here was partly to increase the sensitiveness of the pupils to the beauties of nature in its various aspects. However, we tried to help the pupils to realize in various ways that even in enjoying nature - on hikes, when swimming, when camping, or when making a nature collection, that we need each other.

In studying our second unit, "Securing Our Food," we stressed interdependence in the community and the necessity for Christian principles in dealing with other nations. The general aim was to show causes of trouble in a community or between nations, and to arrive at some conclusion as to how a nation can be friendly with other nations and prevent wars.

The third unit of study was "Our Leisure-Time Interests." The aim here was to bring together the rich experiences of instructors and pupils with regard to such activities as reading, camping, hiking, sports, and hobbies. Our ultimate aim in this regard was to share these experiences in such a way as to interest the pupils in beginning or carrying on creative, instructive, or health-building activities during leisure hours, especially during the summer vacation.

The methods used in getting results from these aims and purposes were as follows: Stories were read which gave material for discussion and questions. Pupil experiences in nature study, collecting, reading, working with other people, etc., were used to provoke further discussion. A field trip of about an hour for further observation about our nature-study work was planned. During the nature-study work we brought nature into our worship programs in many cases. We worked on maps during craftwork period. Various ideas were suggested, among them the making of a map of Centre Hall, naming the shade trees along our main street. Most pupils preferred

Mrs. Bloom was in the act of releasing the docile animal from the fastenings in a stall when she was struck by one of her horns, cutting a gash over the abdomen from hip to hip, barely escaping cutting through the peritoneum.

Her condition at present is very favorable, although suffering considerable pain at times.

Buckwalter, and from there visited the World's Fair. They returned home Sunday evening, having made the trip by motor. Mr. Brooks was greatly surprised in footing up expenses to find how cheaply one could visit the Fair and see much of it - enough to gratify the average person.

P. V. Goodhart and Rev. J. M. Kirkpatrick on Monday conveyed Barbara Potter, Dean Brunhart and Taylor Potter to a Presbyterian camp for juniors for a two weeks period, located about seven miles out from Mt. Union. The site was a former CCC camp, not dismantled when discontinued as such. It is said to be well equipped for the use it is being put to by Presbyterian leaders. Like in past years, Rev. Kirkpatrick will be an instructor, having selected as his topic "The Presbyterian Church."

He was eligible for retirement at any time during the past few years. At a ceremony incident to the event, in addition to receiving commendation by the city superintendent and school board, he was presented with several tokens, gifts from faculty and pupils greatly appreciated.

GRANGE FAIR COMMITTEE BUYS 15 NEW TENTS

With July Fourth celebrations now past events, we realize that the Grange Fair is less than two months away. Plans for program and entertainment are almost complete. A new attraction will be four teams of trained oxen, ranging in size from a pair of more-than-a-ton Holsteins to two 800-pound Jerseys, called by their owner his "babies." These oxen, popular performers for several years at New York and northern Pennsylvania fairs do a tug-of-war, a see-saw and balance act, and other tricks. Baseball games between teams from neighboring counties will fill afternoons throughout the week, and county bands will occupy the bandstand.

Fifteen new tents have been purchased by the Committee. The work of setting up the camp and supervising the campground, so efficiently done for many years by A. H. Spayd, will be for the remainder of the summer in the hands of Committee Chairman G. W. Ralston. Mr. Ralston's workmen will begin this month to erect tents, prepare the camp, and arrange for setting up the Midway. For the latter, Superintendent Auman has a larger number of attractions than ever before, including games and shows and the inevitable hot-dog stands.

Mrs. Lella Gardner, continuing in the same vein, discussed the attitude of the May's Brothers against its use as a medicine. The final feature of the program was a gold medal oratorical contest by Mrs. Ida Wiltmer of Wingate, with the following participants: Ruth White, Betty Kephart, Alice Brugger, May Summers, Laura May Woomer and Jane Smoke. Miss Betty Kephart was the winner of the gold medal.

"THUNDER HILL"

The summer home being built on the south slope of the east end of Tussey Mountain by Dr. and Mrs. J. V. Foster of State College has been named "Thunder Hill," for an estate in southeastern Pennsylvania by the ancestors of the couple on settling there some years prior to the Revolutionary War.

The second story of the structure is well toward completion. An elaborate stone chimney with fire-places on both floors, will embellish a large porch on the east side on the ground floor. The extension will have a large bowl with a fountain.

The views from the various windows of the "Thunder Hill" cottage are past description, the view from Old Nittany being the only one comparable to it. Without shifting, one may look through Georges Valley to the mountains at Woodward, the view greatly widening below Egg Hill to take in much of lower Penns Valley. All of the section west of Egg Hill and upper Brush Valley may be scanned, while the mountain scenery presents a glorious sight.

Dr. and Mrs. Foster are much enthused over their holdings, and vision developing it to become a real beauty spot, with many square miles of valley lands and mountains to form a panorama before it.

The boys who shared this experience are: Junior Smith, Bruce Moyer, Jack Heigel, Junior Frank, Floyd Vogt, Billy Reese, Ardell Gross, Bud Bradford, Edwin Crawford, and Billy Daup. For several of these boys this was the first time they had been in camp. Besides gaining new experiences in campcraft, the boys made the acquaintance of Scouts and leaders from other communities, and passed numerous Scout tests which lead toward the great goal of some day becoming Eagle Scouts.

W. W. Kerlin gave the use of his truck to transport the scouts to and from camp.

The Scouts are greatly indebted to the people of the community who contributed time, money and commodities to help make the Memorial Day festival a success. The proceeds, which amounted to about $67, paid the way for the ten boys for one full week including all meals. The troop is anxious for the continued good will and support of the citizens of the community in their various activities. Any suggestions will be welcomed by the committee and Scoutmaster.

A special note of appreciation must be made in recognition of a valuable donation which the Scout troop received almost two months ago. Mrs. Loran Smith presented the troop with a box of thirty-five fine boys' books, which had belonged to her late husband, Clyde Smith. These books, together with the Boys' Life monthly magazine, which each Scout in good standing will receive this coming year, will provide good reading for the boys during the winter months.
