C. N. Barton of Bradford and a companion driver, Winfield Brunard, of the same place, escaped injury when their truck plunged from the road into a field, due to the driver falling asleep. The damage was estimated by the motor patrol making the investigation at $400. The accident occurred on Route 322, about two miles east of Boalsburg, early on Saturday.

On Monday evening James Foust, who had an arm broken on Tuesday of last week, was reported to be in high spirits at the Black hospital in Lewistown. On Saturday the arm was opened and the bone wired to hold it in place until it knits. A motor trip on Sunday through more than a half-dozen Pennsylvania counties, covering approximately 300 miles, revealed numerous indescribable mountains and valley scenery. Scenic points were touched in Centre, Clinton, Lycoming, Sullivan, Wyoming, Bradford and Tioga counties. Probably the most exciting was at Wyalusing, Bradford county, where one looks over a wide expanse of mountains and valleys, and immediately before him, but many feet below, flows the North Branch of the Susquehanna River, and almost under the extending ledges is the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad. It is here the French in 1793 came to establish a place of peace and rest. The site has since been visited by many characters of great prominence from France. The trip was made possible through the generosity of W. W. Kerlin. Others in the party were Mrs. Kerlin, Miss Lois Arney, William H. Kerlin, and the writer.

CENTRE HALL FINISHES SEASON WITH SMASHING VICTORY OVER SPRING MILLS

A smashing 13-0 victory over Spring Mills last Thursday in a 7-inning game, concluded the second cycle in the Tri-Valley League for Centre Hall and brought them out on top, with 12 victories and 3 defeats, for a percentage of 80.

Thursday's game was one in which Durst was master of the situation at all times. Only two hits were gathered off his delivery, while Centre Hall got to McCall, et al, for 12. Spring Mills put up a woefully weak defense, and the game before its conclusion resolved itself into a farce. While Spring Mills appeared to be out of its class in this particular game, it must be remembered that during the second half it did knock off Centre Hall, Pleasant Gap and Pine Grove Mills when in better-playing mood.

FINAL STANDING IN TRI-VALLEY

Centre Hall	.....12	3	800
Pine Grove Mills	.....11	3	785
Pleasant Gap	.....6	7	451
Rebersburg	.....6	9	400
Lemont	.....4	10	285
Spring Mills	.....4	11	267

The decision on the Pleasant Gap-Pine Grove Mills matter was that the two teams should play off their disputed game Saturday at Pleasant Gap.

REPUBLICANS IT IS IMPORTANT TO NOMINATE A STRONG TICKET FOR THE NOVEMBER ELECTION

BOND C. WHITE

Your present Prothonotary should be nominated for a second term for he has kept his promise made four years ago to "conduct the office in an honorable, efficient, courteous, impartial and business like manner, applying the same rigid economy that has made him the rugged individual that his record shows him to be."

The fact that Mr. White is the first Prothonotary of Centre county who ever refunded any of the fees earned by the office to the County Commissioners for the use of the county, (he has refunded a total of $2,881.87) will have popular appeal to all the voters in the November Election regardless of their party affiliation and thus add strength to the Republican ticket.

The following is from a write-up which appeared in the Phillipsburg Daily Journal on July 30, 1935:

"While Mr. White has never held a county office he has achieved State-wide recognition as an efficient public official. For three and a quarter years he served as secretary of the Workmen's Compensation Board, an important labor post which won for him the good will of organized labor throughout the entire state of Pennsylvania."

There is no denying that organized labor plays an important part in the elections of today. The fact that Mr. White has the good will of organized labor will add strength to the Republican ticket.

Follow precedent and nominate the incumbent Bond C. White for Prothonotary for a second term. He is entitled to the nomination by reason of the manner in which he has conducted himself in his first term in county office.

Mr. White is a mature and seasoned campaigner possessed with the vigor consistent with his age, 38 years, and will fight a hard, clean fight at the November election.

To keep the Prothonotary's office Republican, nominate one who is qualified by experience to man it.—Bond C. White.

HARRY A. CORMAN

WELL-KNOWN GREGG TWP. RESIDENT SEEKS OFFICE

Having served most efficiently as County Auditor for four years, Harry A. Corman of Spring Mills is seeking the Democratic nomination for Register of Wills.

A son of Andrew and Julia Tibbens Corman, he was born at Spring Mills on October 26, 1892. He received his early education in the Gregg township schools and then attended the Altoona School of Commerce, being the first person ever to complete the certified public accountancy course at that institution. After completing his education he became inspector in the yards of the Pennsylvania Railroad, remaining in that post about a year before accepting a position as bookkeeper for Armour & Company, in the Altoona offices of that firm.

After he had been with Armour for about a year, his mother became ill, and he resigned to return to Spring Mills to be with her. He purchased a pair of mules and hauled milk for a year before taking over the farm which he has successfully tilled for the past 23 years.

Upon his return to Spring Mills Mr. Corman was united in marriage with Mary M. Zeigler of Madisonburg. To this union was born one son, Robert H. Corman, who graduated from Penn State last month and who has accepted a position as teacher of agricultural education in the Walker township high school, Hubbersburg. Mr. Corman also has two sisters, Mrs. William Zerby of Youngstown, Ohio, and Mrs. Agnes Gentzel of Altoona.

Always active in the affairs of the community, Mr. Corman was elected president of the Gregg Township Civic Club when that group was organized two years ago. He is now serving his second term in the president's chair. He is a member of the community committee on Soil Conservation and is a director of the Hollidaysburg Production Credit Association. He is a deacon in the Reformed church at Spring Mills; is a member of Centre County Pomona Grange, and of the Spring Mills local Grange.

Always he has been interested in outdoor sports and hobbies, and any time he can spare from his duties as farmer and County Auditor, is spent in hunting and fishing. As auditor he has proved able, efficient, conscientious and reliable, and through his willingness to oblige has won many friends throughout the county during his term of office. To his candidacy for Register he brings the qualifications of a sound and practical education, plus more than a score of years in the hard school of experience.

This Is Where We Wash Our Clothes

The homemaker who is her own laundress finds that a cheerful laundry with efficient equipment lightens her hardest household task, and actually saves her money, time and labor.

By LOUISE BROWN

IN ALL our national weeks for this and that, I'm glad to see someone is giving the poor old laundry a break—October 23 to 29 is National Washer and Ironer Week.

Ask any housewife what piece of electrical equipment she could manage to get along without, and she's very apt to say "don't take away my washer and ironer," for these two pieces of equipment really save hard labor—they take care of the toughest chore in the home.

Not even the kitchen needs modernizing more than the laundry. In almost every home a basement room, a section of the basement, or a small room off the kitchen can be rejuvenated at moderate cost into a pleasant laundry corner like the one in the above picture. In building new homes, the tendency is toward the first floor laundry, just off the kitchen, which eliminates running up and down stairs on wash day to answer the phone, watch the baby, or the thousand-and-one things that demand a housewife's attention.

Planned Laundries

Today laundries are being planned according to work centers—in the same manner as kitchens. These centers are: The Collecting and Sorting Center, Washing Center, Ironing Center and Drying Center. The Drying Center is usually apart from the rest of the laundry—outdoors on sunny days, or a drying space in another part of the basement.

Built-in laundry tubs, bins for holding soiled clothes, a counter for sorting and sprinkling, cabinets for laundry supplies, make up the non-electrical equipment. A small table or bin on rollers is very handy in moving the clothes up to the washer or away again.

As to electrical equipment, there are new washers, ironers and hand irons that make our old ones look like faithful servants that should be pensioned.

Modern washers are being made in either wringer or spinner styles—both are efficient and work-saving. New, are the cabinet washers, which perform the whole washing cycle at the turn of a couple switches. All the modern washers work quicker, with less wear and tear on clothes—they take more water out of the clothes after the final rinse and so speed up drying.

Ironers speed up the ironing end of the job so that it can be done in just about half the time hand ironing would take. And, of course, there's no comparison between sitting down to iron and standing over an ironing board. Not that hand irons aren't better made more and more efficient, the new ones are lighter in weight and are of higher wattages, making for more speed with less effort.

Importance of Wiring
Of primary importance to the electrical part of the laundry, is adequate wiring. The circuits which supply power for these heavy-duty laundry appliances should be of large enough wire and should be separate from the lighting system, so that lamps will not dim when appliances are being used. Enough convenience outlets should be installed so that they are handy where the appliances are to be used. Another important part of the wiring installation is the proper location of a switch control so that the overhead light may be turned on before entering the room.

Wiring naturally leads us to the subject of lighting. There should be some sort of overhead light for general illumination—a glass enclosed unit or semi-indirect unit similar to those used in the kitchen is most satisfactory. A silvered-bowl lamp in a reflector is a simple and inexpensive way of solving the problem of lighting the laundry tubs. A bracket light is also satisfactory. There should be supplementary lighting over the ironer and ironing board, too, so that it's easy to see the clothes you are handling.

What if you do only spend part of one or two days in the laundry—it can at least be clean and cheerful looking. Paint is a small investment but works wonders in making laundry more pleasant. Choose light clear colors for the walls, bright ones for trimmings and accents. A sunny yellow or apricot shade is good for the walls, with an ivory ceiling. If the laundry walls are exposed in the laundry corner, there are special paints available now to ease them.
