Mrs. W. W. Reitz of nearby Philadelphia, has been with her sister, Miss Jennie Thomas, in Centre Hall, during the past week.

Mrs. Helen Ralston of State College paid her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Bohn, in Centre Hall, a visit during last week.

Jacob Lose, a WPA worker on the Blue Ball road, was struck on the eye by a spawl from a stone he was breaking. The injury was not serious.

Sunday visitors in the J. E. Burkholder home were Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Deeter of Williamsport, and Mr. and Mrs. Ray Stover and two daughters of Aaronsburg.

Mr. and Mrs. John Burkholder attended the funeral of Mrs. Henry Fredel, at Lock Haven, Tuesday afternoon. Mrs. Fredel was a relative of Mrs. Burkholder.

Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Tipton of Reading spent Sunday at the Bartholomew home. Mrs. Tipton was a classmate of Helen Bartholomew at Millersville Teachers' College some years ago.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald Shope entertained the following guests from Harrisburg on Sunday: Mrs. Shope's mother and sister; Mrs. H. S. Webster and Miss Alta Kunkle.

Rally Day will be observed in the local Evangelical Sunday school on Sunday morning. At 10:15 a program will be given by the children's and the intermediate divisions.

The Friendship class of Trinity Reformed church school cleared about thirty dollars in their "progressive supper" served Saturday evening, and feel their efforts were not in vain.

The Paul Fetterolf family expect to occupy a portion of the former Grace Smith property next week. The property has been converted into a double dwelling by the owner, William Luse.

The work on the improvements being made to the Lutheran parsonage is nearing completion. Hardwood floors have been laid on all first floor rooms and painting of the interior is being done.

Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Gilbert, Mrs. Bernice Nedus and daughter Shirley, of Sunbury; Mr. and Mrs. John E. Graden of Smulton; Mr. and Mrs. Frank Ennist of Laurelton spent Sunday at the James Faust home.

An inventory of the household goods of Frank D. Lee was made on Saturday for the purpose of holding an early public sale. The real estate will in all probability be sold also. Mr. Lee is now living with his daughter, Mrs. Earl Tibbens.

The Centre County Past Grands' association, L.O.O.F., will meet with the Centre Hall lodge, No. 895, on Thursday evening, November 2, instead of with Bellefonte lodge, as regularly scheduled. At the meeting nomination of officers will be held.

Mr. and Mrs. B. M. Heck and daughters, Adaline and Elizabeth, of Philadelphia; Mr. and Mrs. U. R. Yoder of Lewistown, are visiting at the Wise and Greninger homes in Rebersburg. The Heck family came here with the view of finding a suitable place to live.

FARM CALENDAR

Timely Reminders from The Penn'a State College School of Agriculture

Preventing Future Farm Fires.—This is "Fire Prevention Week" and a good time to check over all farm buildings to eliminate all possible fire hazards. According to the extension agricultural engineers at the Pennsylvania State College, 70 per cent of the farm fires start from lightning, spontaneous combustion, defective chimneys, and sparks on roofs.

Ryegrass for Swine Pastures.—A number of Pennsylvania swine growers are seeding approximately one-third of their next year's swine pasture to ryegrass this fall, report livestock extension specialists at Penn State. The ryegrass makes rapid growth in the fall and provides a tough sod that stands early spring pasturing.

Garden Cover Crops.—The importance of organic matter in the soil was brought out repeatedly by the dry summer and fall, according to extension vegetable garden specialists at Penn State. They suggest seeding ryegrass, rye, or wheat in the garden this fall.

Pullets in Orchards.—Poultrymen raising pullets in orchards frequently complain at this season because their birds are thin and lack pigment, Penn State poultrymen specialists say. This condition is often the result of the bird's eating too much fallen fruit. This reduces the consumption of the regular feeds.

Feeding the Pheasants.—Leave a few rows of corn stalks standing and don't remove the stubbles if you want pheasants and other birds around your farm, Penn State wildlife specialists remind.

WATCH THAT LEFT SIDE— THEN YOU'LL BE RIGHT

Drawing his conclusions from a study of 673 accidents at the college during the past seven years, Dr. Davis said:

"In practically all types of injuries the left side figured most prominently. The logical explanation seems to be that the human race, largely right-handed, is more skillful in movements involving that side."

Nearly 40 per cent of the injuries in the cases studied were to the hands and fingers, while feet ranked second to be that the human race, largely right-handed, is most often injured with about 13 per cent.

... SEES LONG, HARD WINTER AHEAD

"My husband says all signs point to a long, hard winter — and he's usually right in his weather predictions. But we don't mind the winter near as much since we've had our telephone. It makes us feel in close touch with our friends and neighbors even when we're snowed in."
