PREDICTS WOOD WILL BE ALLOYED FOR VARIED USES

The possibility that wood might some day be molded and alloyed in much the same way as metals, to fit the particular use it is to be put to, has been forecast as a result of tests made in the engineering mechanics laboratory at the Pennsylvania State College.

The tests revealed, said Dr. R. K. Evershard, head of the department of engineering mechanics, that a new wood product called super-pressed plywood can withstand pressures and loads as much as 127 per cent greater than those under which ordinary specimens crumble.

"In other words," he added, "the day is new in sight when man no longer need accept wood just as nature gives it to him but can fabricate it into various shapes and strengths for a wide variety of new uses."

Super-pressed plywood "is made up of thin strips of wood that are bound together by synthetic resin adhesives in place of the ordinary glues that were used until several years ago. The plywood is finished in hydraulic presses exerting pressures as high as 1500 pounds to the square inch.

One of the new uses for this sturdy product is in airplane manufacture, particularly in propellers.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald Shope moved yesterday (Wednesday) to the home on Church street recently vacated by Mr. and Mrs. Lindsey.

Red Cross Nurse Reserve at Peak

Disaster Service, Home Nursing, Health Education, Keep Thousands Busy

Washington.—The Red Cross reserve of registered nurses qualified for immediate duty is stronger than ever before, Miss Mary Beard, director of the American Red Cross nursing services, announced.

"We now have a first reserve of 15,000 unmarried nurses under 40 years of age available for duty with the Army, Navy or government nursing services and subject to call by the Red Cross for disaster work," she said. "This is 700 more than any previous first reserve registration."

Miss Beard pointed out that the increase has been gradual and that only registered nurses meeting rigid requirements of training and physical fitness are enrolled. All classes of nurse reservists, including nurses now employed by the Red Cross, bring the reserve corps total to 44,283. During the World War of 1914-18 the American Red Cross mustered nearly 20,000 nurses for duty with Army, Navy and Red Cross hospitals, at home and overseas.

"Maintenance of the Nurses Reserve is provided by our charter and is in line with Red Cross policies of prevention and preparedness, but the peacetime work of our nurses is equally important," Miss Beard said.

The director explained that more than 2,000 nurses, chiefly home hygiene and care of the sick instructors, were regularly engaged in visiting the sick, aiding physicians in examining school children, conducting inoculation programs to stamp out contagious illness, launching trial nursing services in out-of-the-way communities, and carrying on important health education work to qualify family groups to care for sickness at home.

All nurses who are needed for Red Cross nursing activities are drawn from the Red Cross reserve of qualified nurses, Miss Beard said.

Last year Red Cross public health nurses made more than one million visits on behalf of the sick and gave skilled care to 272,729 persons.

Last year, in schools and clinics, nurses cooperated with physicians in examining 595,575 children, and aided in the task of correcting defects. Children examined were enrolled for the most part in rural schools where this type of preventive service is rare. There are 655 Red Cross nurses engaged in this work in 477 communities.

In the field of health education, Red Cross nurses have instructed more than 1,000,000 family members since 1914 in how to care for the sick at home and have set new standards of hygiene for the family. Last year the Nursing Service held 4,505 classes in home hygiene and care of the sick and awarded certificates to 61,296 persons who passed examinations on the subjects taught.

"Because the nucleus of all Red Cross nursing activity is our nurses' reserve, it is a source of great satisfaction that each month the list of applicants increases," Miss Beard said.

This service to the public is supported by the men and women who join as members of the Red Cross, through their local chapters, during the Roll Call, November 11 to 30.
