FARM CALENDAR

Timely Reminders from The Penn's State College School of Agriculture

New Vegetable Varieties—The numerous catalogs being issued by seedmen carry many new varieties this year. According to Penn State garden specialists, some of these are worthy of trial. Your local county agent will be glad to suggest those most likely to fit your requirements.

Don't Burn Your House — Because the heating plant is fired more heavily during cold weather, an otherwise satisfactory chimney may prove defective say Penn State's agricultural extension engineers. They suggest a careful check-up to eliminate all hazards.

Pruning Shrubs—Shrubs may be pruned during the winter, but those which flower early in the growing season will have fewer flowers if pruned now, Penn State flower experts have found. The general rule is to prune right after the shrub has flowered. If no pruning was done during 1939, then all shrubs which flowered after August can be pruned during the winter without reducing 1940 blooms.

Hoarding Poultry — A comfortable house is necessary if the poultry flock is to be kept on a productive basis during cold weather, poultry extension specialists at Penn State claim. Plenty of good fresh water and the right kind of feed are also necessary.

Cutting Trees—Sharpening the cross cut saw will save a farmer much time and help keep him even-tempered, assert Penn State extension foresters. With a sharp saw, much less time will be required to cut the year's timber and wood supply.

Repairing Machinery—Ordering needed parts for the repair of farm machines will avoid the loss of time when the season arrives for the use of the machine, agricultural engineers at the Penna. State College remind.

AUTO INSPECTION STATIONS

FACING ACTION BY STATE Possible action against certain automobile inspection stations as a result of a state motor police investigation rested this week with the State Highway Safety Bureau.

Some motorists have complained of faulty practices in the semi-annual checkup of vehicles designed to bar unsafe cars and trucks from the highways.

Protests have been voiced that certain inspection stations have insisted upon unnecessary repairs before passing on the 50-cent stickers. Others contended that some stickers are granted to friends regardless of the mechanical condition of the cars.

Wm. J. Hamilton, Jr., secretary of revenue, declined immediate comment on the state-wide survey by the motor police and explained any move must await compiling of reports by the chief of Highway Safety Bureau in his department.

"MOVIE-MAD" MEN SEE SEASON'S SUPER CINEMA

The motion picture, "Gone With the Wind," which is showing in Harrisburg at the present time, was attended on Tuesday of last week by the following local persons: Carl Burkholder, Donald Coldron, M. E. Coldron, George A. Crawford, Newton E. Crawford, Chester Wagner and William Weaver.

Comments made by these movie-mad men were: "Wonderful!" "Swell." "It was one of the very best shows I ever saw."

"Good." "One of the men must have actually read Margaret Mitchell's book for he complained "it wasn't historical so far as that goes. Some extra things were added and some were left out." This fan did praise the acting in the picture.

To the question of how he liked the show, one person replied indifferently "It was all right."

One fan disgustedly declared: "I wouldn't walk across the street to see that — thing. It was worth the seven cents tax but not the sixty-eight cents admission."

See the movie for yourself; do not rely upon what someone tells you.

HUNTING ACCIDENTS

Pennsylvania hunters stand one chance in 13,229 of being killed and one in 1355 of being injured by gunshot or bullet wound when they take to the field and forest.

At least this was the proportion of deaths and injuries to the total of 661,443 hunters who took out licenses in 1938.

The Pennsylvania Game Commission has completed its compilation of accident statistics for the 1938 season. Its figures show that 40 per cent of the fatal accidents were self-inflicted, 50 per cent inflicted by others. The proportion changes sharply in the category of non-fatal accidents, where 87 per cent were caused by persons other than the victims.

The purpose of the exhaustive study made by the commission to ascertain and tabulate the factors entering into accidents is of course, to determine how accidents happen with a view of educational effort toward their prevention. Variation in the number of hunters interferes with accurate comparison but it appears, unfortunately, that little progress is being made in reducing accident totals.

Card of Thanks. The family of J. C. A. Heckman of near Spring Mills desire in this manner to express thanks for all kindnesses shown during the time of the death of husband and father.
