Featured on the program will be the complete 65-piece band, specialty numbers, the Banjoleers, solos, duets, etc. Local talent in tap dancing will be introduced by the band.

The Bellefonte Banjo Band recently received an invitation to play at the World's Fair in New York, according to a statement made in this office by the band's director, Victor Pifer.

The invitation was received from Eugene LaBarre, director of music for the 1940 fair, who stated that the Fair officials appreciated the Bellefonte band's visit to the 1939 Fair and want the organization to return this year. However, it is doubtful that the band will again make the trip. Last year it cost the organization about one thousand dollars.
