Bears on shafts of Parian marble Lines of light that never fade. Here a rosy dream of youth-time-Here a love, and here a joy, Here a thought of brightest future, Broken as a childish toy. Here are feelings pure and stainless, As the crystals on the snow, Here are longings for some fair one, Whose bright eves like diamonds flow. CEMETERY OF THE HEART.

BY J. T. HOKE.

O'er the still and pulseless dead,

Stand the snow-white blocks of marble

Bearing thoughts and dear mementos

In the lone and silent grave-yard.

At each silent sleeper's head.

Where remembrance fondly lingers, Till the burning tear-drops start. And when life is all a ruin. And the heart is in decay, And the trailing ivy twining, O'er each column finds its way. Then Reflection loves to wander, In this grave-yard of the past, And there rest among the shadows.

From the marble columns cast. From the Atlantic Monthly for Novemb

The people of the United States now have the mortification of standing before the world in the attitude of a swindled democracy.-Their collective will is crossed by the will of one individual, whose only title to such autocracy is in the fact that he has cheated and betraved those who elected him. There might be some little compensation for this outrage, if the man possessed any of those commanding qualities of mind and disposition which ordinarily distinguish usurpers; but it is the peculiarity of Mr. Johnson that the indignation excited by his claims is only equalled by the contempt excited by his char-being sent. Before there could be any efficient military organization in the loyal States brought to bear on his dictatorship, he expects to have a Congress of "the whole nation" of the trickster and apostate, while conde- be defeated Rebels and Copperheads. The capable of perverting his power to ardon into a power to gain political support in his schemes against the loyal nation.

But it is not probable that the President will limit his usurpations to a measure whose chief significance consists in its preliminary character. Before Congress meets in November, he will doubtless have followed it up by others which will make his impeachment a matter of certainty. The only method of preventing him from resisting impeachment by force is an awakening of the people to the fact that the final battle against reviving rebellion is yet to be fought at the polls. Any apathy they should have foreseen. They were suror divisions among Republicans in the State prised that, during the months he was left to elections in October and November, resulting his own devices, and to the counsels of South in a decrease of their vote, will embolden Mr. ern politicians, he matured his policy of re- Johnson to venturchis meditated coup d'etat. construction. when it re-assembles. And to crown all, political blunders. though it has been apparent since February, Still it is not to be concealed that there are 1866, that he was the enemy of the country, circumstances in the present political condithey have still had technical reasons for retion of the country which may give the Pretaining him as the proper executive of its sident just that degree of apparent popular support which is all he needs to stimulate him in-It would then seem that, in dealing with such to open rebellion against the laws. It is, of a man as Andrew Johnson, it is the part of wis- course, his duty to recognize the people of the dom to suspect the worst. Without any spe United States in their representatives in the cial knowledge of the treasonable intrigue now Fortieth Congress; but on the other hand, it is going on'in Washington, it is still possible to the character of his mind to regard the people as multiplied duplicates of himself, and a mob fathom the President's designs, and to understand the resources on which he relies. In the yelling for "Andy" under his windows is to first place, his conceit makes him believe that him more representative of the people than the delegates of twenty States. In the autumn be is the first man in the nation, and that he is elections only two Representatives to Congress not only adored at the South bnt popular at the North. The slightest sign of reaction in Northwill be chosen ; the political strife will relate generally to local questions and candidates; ern and Western elections he considers a testimony to his individual merit, and an endorse and it is to be feared that the Republicans will not be sufficiently alive to the fact that ment of his policy. In case he refuses to recdivisions on local questions and candidates ognize the present Congress, turns its members by military power out of their seats, and will be considered at Washington as significant of a change in the public mind on the appeals for support to the white population of great national question which it is the busithe rebel as well as loyal States, he will count ness of the Fortieth Congress to settle . That on being sustained by the nation. The Dem-Congress needs the moral support of a great ocratic party agrees with him as far as re-Republican vote now, and will obtain it progards the constitutionality of the laws which vided the people are roused to a conviction of he will, in the name of the Constitution, be its necessity. But a large and influential porcompelled to disregard in order to get possestion of the Republican party is composed of sion of the military power of the country ; and business men, whose occupations disconnecs he thinks that party will support him in resuthem from politics, except in important exning those functions as commander-in-chiet igencies, and who can with difficulty be made of which he has been deprived by a "usurpo believe that politics is a part of their busiing" Congress. The army and navy, with all Republican officers removed, including, of ourse, General Grant and Admiral Farragut, he thinks will obey his orders. The South, he supposes, will rally round him to a man. The thoroughly rebel military organization in Maryland, controlled by a Governor after his own heart, will interpose obstacles to the passage of troops from the Northern States to ness, as long as the safety of their business is not threatened by civil disorders. They think the reconstruction question is practically settled, and when you speak to them of plots such as are now hatching in Washington, and which seem as preposterous as the story of a sensational novel, their incredulity confirms them in a notion that it is safe to allow things to take their course. Their very good sense Washington. The Democrats in those States makes them blind to the designs of such a will do all they can to prevent troops from Bobadil Cromwell as Andrew Johnson. The great body of the Republican party, indeed, shows at present a little of the exhaustion which is apt to follow a series of victories. around him, of which at least a majority will and exhibits altogether too much of the confidence which so often attends an incompleted riumph The Democratic party, on the contrary, it all alive, and is preparing for one last desperate attempt to recover its old position in the nation. Its leaders fear that, if the Congressional plan of reconstruction be carried out, it will result in republicanizing the Southern States. This would be the political extinction of their party. In fighting against that plan, they are, therefore, fighting for life, such an egotist Mr. Johnson assuredly is. It is needless to say that it would break down fligate in the character of the stimulationey address to whatever meanness, baseness, dishonesty, lawlessness, and ignorance there may be in the nation. Taxation presses hard dent ; for the danger is not so much the success the people, and they have not hesitated to of the attempt as the convulsion which the mere attempt would occasion. That the dan-means of relief. The argument is addressed ger is a serious one, provided the October and to ignorance and passion, for Mirabeau hit the reason of the case when he defined repudiation publican loss, is evident from a consideration at taxation in its most cruel and iniquitous of the President's position. He has already form. But the method of repudiation which the Democratic leaders propose to follow is of all methods the worst and most calamitous. They would make the dollar a mere form of expression by the issue of an additional billion 🗿 or two of greenbacks, and then "pay off" the debt in the currency they had done all they could to render worthless. In other words, they would not only swindle the public creditor, but wreck all values. A party which advocates such a scheme as this to save it from the death it deserves would have no hesitation in risking a civil convulsion for the same pup pose. Indeed, the re-opening of the civil way would not produce half the misery which, would be created by the adoption of their party ject to dilute the currency. Now, if by apathy on the part of Republic cans and audacity on the part of Democratic the autumn elections result unfavorably, if will then be universally seen how true was Senator Sumner's remark made in January Senator Summer's remark made in January last, that "Andrew Johnson, who came to in preme power by a bloody accident, has be come the successor of Jefferson Davis in the spirit by which he is governed, and in the mischief he is inflicting on the country;" that "the President of the rebellion is revived in the President of the United States." What this man now proposes to do has been impress this man now proposes to do has been impressively stated by Senator Thayer, of Nebraska, in a public address at Cincinnati : "I declare, he said, "upon my responsibility as a Senard" tor of the United States that to-day Andrew Johnson meditates and designs forcible real tance to the authority of Congress. I make this statement deliberately, having received from unquestioned and unquestionable authors Congressional plan of reconstruction. His ity." It would seem that this authority could be none other than the authority of the Acting Secretary of War and General of the Army of don defeated rebels and public enemies by the the United States, who, reticent as he is, does wholesale, is certainly not greater or more not pretend to withhold his opinion that the country is in imminent peril, and in peril from in its plan of reconstruction, Congress has the action of the President. But it is by some granted to subordinates powers which constitutionally belong to him. If he can exalt his ments that, if Mr. Johnson should overturn will over Congress in the one case, there is no the legislative department of the Government, there would be an uprising of the people which would soon sweep him and his supporten Johnson practically claims that his power to from the face of the earth.
