MIND WHAT YOU SAY REFORE CHIL-

It is always well to avoid saying everything that is improper; but it is especially so before children. And here parents, as well as others, are often in fault. Children have as many ears as grown persons, and they are generalw more attentive to what is said before them. What they hear they are very apt to repeat; and not having sufficient knewledge of the world to disguise anything, it is generally found "that children and fools speak the truth." See that boy's eyes glisten while you are would not wish to have repeated. He does not fully understand what you mean; but he will remember every word; and it will be strange if he does not cause you to blush by the repetition. A gentleman was in the habit of calling ata neighbor's house, and the lady had always excars run on a six feet guage track, and are and apparent disorder of the crumbling ledge, pressed to him great pleasure from his calls. A RIDE IN THE SEWERS OF PARIS. But a few of the Americans who visit Paris know of the opportunity which may be offered them to visit the very extensive sewerage of Paris and examine its system. [COMMUNICATED. GEOLOGY-NO &

The practical uses of Geology, in its connection with agriculture and the mechanical arts, have been referred to. As a science it has many claims. Next to Astronomy, it is the most suplime among the actences. It does not, like Astronomy, take a view of other planets and systems. It does not measure the magnitude and distance of the sun from our planet, or the distances and revolutions of other planets around it. It does not higuire into the causes of eclipses, tides, change of seasons, the succession of day and night, and many other phenomena, illustrated by the sublime and interesting science of Astronomy. But it does contemplate and explain the grandest features upon our earth. It explains, so far as explanation can be given, the original formation of the earth-the various convulsions, and more gradual changes it has suffered by volcanoes, earthquakes, and the hand of time, together with its present structure, as we all felt as if we were going to "take a leap exhibited in mountains, hills and valleys. By the investigations of Geologists, it has been discovered that amidst the wild confusion pushed on a down grade by two men for each the threatening precipice, and the towering mountain, there is a striking regularity, which affords the most convincing evidence that there is a Hand which weighs mountains in scales and hills in a balance, and takes up the isles of the sea as a very little thing. In connection with the grandeur of the sciriety as well as beauty and grandeur in mountain scenery, and enchanting landscapes, the elements which enter into the composition of our globe are few and simple; and, of course, readily recognized, and easily learned even by child of nine or ten. Simple minerals, sometimes called the Geological Alphabet, are found, in nearly all the mountains, rocks, and soils, which appear under such a beautiful variety and richness upon our globe, most or all of which can be examined and collected by a walk or ride of two hours from the city of Philadelphia. How much more beautiful by penetrating still further into the almost unexplored country. It hence appears that by an excursion of pleasure, of rich and unalloyed pleasure, of a few hours, materials can be examined which represent the elements of the Alps, the Andes, the Rocky, Himmalays, and all other mountains upon the earth. May it not well be asked how the most exclusive devotee of pleasure can spend an hour more pleasantly? The connection of Gnology with its sister science, Geography, not to mention Topography, water-courses, engineering, agriculture, and various other sciences and arts, gives it a ' strong and peculiar claim to an early place in the list of elementary studies. Even travels cannot be well understood without some knowledge of this science, so common has it become for all travellers to give the natural Paris is effected on a magnificent scale, and features of the countries they describe, embrafar surpasses the subterranean wonders of ancing the strata rocks, the structure of mouncient Rome.—Correspondence Cleveland tains, the nature of soils, and other appearances, which it would seem must strike every inadulterated mind as among the first objects worthy of attention. Such being the grandeur, the simplicity, and the various practical uses of this science, it has been uniformly found, as might well be supposed, one of the most delightful studies which can be presented to the minds of children, whether in school or at home; in proof of which may be mentioned the thousands of family and school cabinets which have ebeen collected within a year or two past, and almost exclusively by the hands of children. In proof of the same fact may be mentioned the increased pleasure, and now rapid improvement of children in all their other studies

It is hence gratifying to know that the study of geology is becoming one of the most elementary studies in the most elementary schools, in almost every section of our coun-
