It was founded on the Indian superray, pray for thy children-ior th' erring stitions of Massachusetts, and it displays that intimate knowledge of early New England history which is so observable in Mr. Whit-tier's poetry. Whittier's chief works are so well known to our readers that we need not mention their titles here. Next to Longfellow his works JF Chan nave a larger circulation than any of our Joshus Beans D poets. He is emphatically a self-made writer. His early life was passed on a farm in severe manual labor, and until he was eighteen he had no educational advantages, save such as could be derived from a few winters' JP Linton D attendance on the public schools of his native district. At the age of twenty, however, he. had managed to secure two years' tuition at a Pray, too, for the Nations—the great and the town acadamy, but then he left school to town acadamy, but then he left school to Clearfield Elk and Forest Venesses and War Vince his way in the world, and what he has live large to the Citation Conserved McKean I it clark E since learned he has gathered from contact with actual life, or by solitary study in his own library. To this lack of classical culture may doubtless be attributed the charming simpricity of his style, and the peculiar American character of all his writings. Mr. Whittier was, we believe, never mar ried; but till within about a year, he has been blessed with the most devoted of sisters, who has been his constant companion, ministering to his domestic needs, and sharing his studies. She was a woman of fine literary taste, and herself wrote some poems that were quite equal to any of her brother's productions. She died about a year ago, greatly lamented by Mr. Whittier, who has since lived a seclu ded life in his quiet home in Amesbury.

A MANIACON A RAILWAY TRAIN. - The Detroi: Post of the 7th says: A gentleman who arrived from Chicago on Tuesday morning. gives the following particulars in relation to an affair which transpired on the train, and if the circumstances are as stated, they are sad indeed, A middle aged man came into the sleeping-car just after leaving Chicage, on Monday night, and ordered a berth, and it was observed by his fellow-travelers that he seemed in great mental agitation, and would often press his hands to his temples, at the same time muttering to himself unintelligibly After entering the berth he commenced groaning, and was then asked the cause of his trouble, when he stated that he was the captain of a boat which had laid up for the winter at Milwaukee,.. where he had been paid his wages, amounting to $2,000, but had then been enticed into a gambling saloon and had there many years, he never saw him for a moment fallen a victim to two sharpers, who introducin any other temper than that in which he ed a novel game known as "three card monte;" should wish to live and die; and if any hu and left him penniless.
