ing a good one: Dig out a trench four and a-half feet wide and sixteen inches deep, and as long as desired; fill in with the earth taken out and manure or rich compost, in equal propor tions, to within four inches of the surface.-Plant the roots in rows one foot apart, and the same distance apart in the rows, then cover with the virgin soil and compost until the bed is level, and let it stand until the succeeding fall, at which time put on two inches of manure and earth, rounding the bed so as to be higher in the middle than at the sides. The second spring a little asparagus may be cut from the beds, but they should not be cut closely until the third year. Give a dressing of salt every spring and of manure every fall, and the beds will last half a century.

Make the beds as early in the spring as the weather will permit -Planter and Farme GREASING WAGONS .- But few people are aware that they do wagons and carriages more injury by greasing too plentifully than in any other way. A well-made wheel will endure common wear from ten to twenty-five years, if care is taken to use the right kind and proper amount of grease; but if this matter is not attended to, they will be used up in five or six years. Lard should never be used on a wagon, for it will perjetrate the NEW GROCERY STORE hub and work its way out around the tenons of the spokes, and spoil the wheel. Tallow is the best lubricator for wood axletrees, and castor oil for iron.

Just enough grease should be applied to the spindle of a wagon to give it a light coating; this is better than more, for the surplus put on will work out at the ends, and be forced by | Sugars, Coffees, Molassee, the shoulder-bands and nut-washers into the hub around the outside of the boxes.

To oil an axletree, first wipe the spindle clean with a cloth wet with spirits of turpentine, and then apply a few drops of castor oil near the shoulder and end. One teaspaonful is sufficient for the whole.

TRIMMING VINES.—A correspondent of the New England Farmer, having experience trims during the period of dormancy, from November to February; prefers to trim when the wood is frozen, with a saw; would never use axe or hatchet; the pruning should commence when the trees are quite young, and only the limbs taken out that seem to have dried up and become useless. MAKING BOOTS WATER TIGHT .- It may be of interest to many readers to know how to preserve their boots and make them at the same time pliable and water-proof. It can be done in this way: In a pint of the best winter-strained lard oil, dissolve a piece of paraffine the size of a hickory nut, aiding the sowith a gentle heat, say 130 or 140 deg F. The readiest way to get pure paraffine is to take a piece of paraffine candle. Rub this solution on your boots a bout once a month they can be blacked in the meantime. If the oil should make the leather too stiff, decrease the proportion of paraffine, and vice versa. A correspondent has used this for eight year past, and his boots have lasted two winters, the uppers always remaining soft, and never cracking. He tried beeswax, rosin, tar, &c. but never found any other preparation half so good.—Scientific American.

A LITTLE MORE CULTIVATING. - We never harrow enough; we never cultivate enough. Too mellow ground cannot be made. The mellower the better. And yet we harrow simply to cover the grain, unless the land is very rough. This is all wrong, wrong. Let the cultivator be used freely, followed by the drag freely. Let them swim through the soil. Some ground needs frequent plowing in addition to the cultivating. You cannot pulverize too much; you cannot pulverize enough. "But there is no time to do all this." True. And here is the great difficulty; we have too much land; our work has got the Allkindsof start of us-and it will keep it always where there is much of it. Better cultivate one acre thoroughly than two in the usual manner-for it will yield as much as two without manure, unless your land is in a very mealy condition, which is rarely the case. Harrow more; cultivate more.—Rural World.

CUTTING AND GRINDING HAY.—Owing to the high price of grain, many of our farmers are feeding it sparingly this winter. It will soon be time to commence a more liberal use of it to prepare teams for the busy spring time. Cut hay or straw, mixed with meal, or wheat bran and shorts, is much more economical than to feed whole grain and hay. In Europe, hay is sometimes ground, and it would pay farmers well, here, in the leisure time of winter, when it sells for over twenty dollars per ton, and probably when it sells at less figures. Americans have yet many lessons to learn in economy

CHICKEN CHOLERA.—As numerous complaints have reached us quite recently, from farmers and others, in regard to the ravages of chicken cholera, we subjoin the following remedy, which we find in the report of the Agricultural Department at Washington: "For the last two years my chickens have been dying of cholers; even turkeys have died the same way. When I notice the hens begin to droop and look sleepy I give them three or four teaspoonfuls of strong, alum water, and repeat the next day. I also mix the feed (say corn meal), with strong alum water, feeding twice a day for two or three days, afterwards once a week. Since I have days, afterwards once a week. Since I have practiced the above I have not lost any."

Selecting a Cow.—It is sometimes the case that the best judges will be deceived. A cow of very promising appearance, coarse in the neck, large boned, and second or third-rate in the selection of the first lass, and second or third-rate in the selection of the first lass, and no pains the country. But a failure in this case is rare. Let the head be light, the forehead the however with a superscript of the however with a su broad, the horn rather thin and clear; the eye clear and prominent, the neck thin, and the fore-quarters rather light, the back straight, the hind quarters well developed, wide over the loins, the carcase deep, the udder coming forward and well shaped, the akin soft to the touch, the teats well set, not too large nor too small, the tail long and thin, like a whip-lash.
