Pastor of the Tenth Beptist Church, Philadelphia.

Dr. Jackson—Dear Sit:—I have been frequently requested to connect my name with recommendations of different kinds of medic nest, but regarding the practice as out of my appropriate sphere, I have in all cases declined; but with a clear proof is various instances and particularly in my own family, of the usefulness of Dr. Hoofsmal's German Bittors, I depart for one from my usual course, to express my full conviction that, for general debility of the system, and expectally for Liver Completint, it is a safe and valuable preparation. In some cases it may full; but usually, I doubt not, it will be very beneficial to those who suffer from the above causes.

A RALLYING SONG FOR 1868. HOOFLAND'S GERMAN TONIC BY J. HOWARD WERT. The Great Remedies for all Diseases of the LIVER, STOMACH, OR DIGESTIVE Within the glades of ivy vine The hunted heroes lay, ORGANS.

And heard beyond the swamp's confine Hoofland's German Bitters The dreaded blood-hound's bay. "Our time is short." one faint voice said. Is composed of the pure juices (or, as they are medicinally termed, Extracts) of Roots, Herbs, and Barks, making a preparation, highly concentrated, and entirely free from alcoholic admissiance of any kind. "To-day we've done our best, Ere seeks you level sun its bed Our souls will be at rest: HOOFLAND'S GERMAN TONIC.

No mercy knows the rebel horde,

Is a combination of all the ingredients of the Bitters with the parest quality of Sends Orus Rum, Orange, &c., ma-king one of the most pleasant and agreeable remedies was offered to the public. That swiftly follows on: But still I pray to Thee, O Lord, Those preferring a Medicine free from Alcoholic admix ire, will use 'Thy will, not mine, be done.'" HOOFLAND'S GERMAN BITTERS. "My mother weeps for me to-day," Those who have no objection to the combination of the litters, as stated, will use Said one with golden hair; HOOFLAND'S GERMAN TONIC.

For him so young and fair. They are both equally good, and contain the same medicinal virtues, the choice between the two being a fiere matter oftaste, the Tonic being the most palatable. The stomach, from a variety of causes, such as Indigestion, Dyspepala, Nervous Debility, etc., is very apt to have its functions deranged. The Liver, sympathizing as closely as it does with the Stomach, then becomes affected, the result of which is that the patient suffers from several or more of the following diseases: Sweet sisters in a northern home Will watch and wait in vain, And longing, look for him to come. They'll never see again.

They ve told their death-knell story ; An hour—and points of rebel swords With patriot blood were gory. Thus died 'neath shades of ivy vine, In damp and dark morass, Where noxious plants luxuriant twine Upon the knotted grass -

Than Sparta ever bore-The patriots of that stormy time, Our world deciding war. No monuments above them stand. The swamp-their only bier;

Their praise—they saved our native land Their epitaph—a tear.

Of Appomatox's glory. Yes, peal the bell and bray the horn. Unloose the dull throat cannon, and give to kiss of sunlit morn Our nation's starry pennon.

For victory great and grand; et priest in prayer and poet's lay Thank God, who saved our land. Yet, comrades in that sacred cause, Ye dare not to forget The brave within that dark morass

Was shed by Treason's hand-For Freedom pure and grand: That gentle youth, with raven hair,

Who breathed to Thee, O! God, the prayer "Thy will be done, not mine." Nor yet again that other boy-(A man in thought and pain), Whose blood told out a mother's joy, Who ne'er will smile again. Nor yet alone in Georgian swamps

Where died the men, that fled the damps Of Millen's prison-pen, Vere slain the martyred pioneers Of Freedom's second birth. Which yet shall give in future years New life to all the earth.

Have fed our fields of grain; And many, who went gayly forth, Now sleep on Shiloh's plain. And some on Groveton's sunny slopes, Along the Rapidan,

Of many an aged one. Then, brothers, let that blood cement Our hearts and hopes again, So that we never may lament— "The dead have died in vain."

To do honor to the dead is our noblest privilege; sacrilegiously to disturb their dust, our meanest crime. If the grave of a friend is a spot where the holiest affections of the heart are manifested, that of an enemy furnishes no pretext for violence. At the one, the labors of love and marks of reverence should never cease; whilst the nobler promptings of our nature ask for the other an humble resting-place and "a little earth for chari-

REMARES OF HON. D. MCCOSAUGHY.

On the occasion of planting the Nation:

-as his guide recounted to him the crowned heads and sons of royalty who had pessed beneath it, interrupting him, he exclaimed, "I am above all kings—I am an American citizen!" So, standing at the base of this grand old rock—this majestic monument of nature on this vast mountain height—and looking to its eastern slope, whence stretch away two thousand miles to the Atlantic coast, and then to its western slope, whence spreads an almost equal expanse to the Pacific shore-I am sure that every brea tawells with a prouder emotion, which can only find utterance in the words, "I am above all kings-I am an American citizen!" And as we gaze up, an hundred feet, to where you beautiful flag floats proudly in the mountain breeze, and read upon its folds the names of Grant and Colfax, I can not, nor can you, forget the consciousness of a grander swell in that emotion of honorable pride-for those names are R.
