This minimist is marticularly calculated to benewhich are trees, grapevines and the small fruits. They have become accustomed to this kind of food, and thrive upon it. Apply plentifully.-If the roots liedeep remove some of the New Store Room near Court-house! soil, and having filled with leaves, return all, or the greater part of it. Be not afraid to use the leaves plentifully, mixed with the soil, or without it simply lying on the surface of the ground enough soil to hold them. We make it a business to use all kinds of vegetable refuse that presents itself. Where it is wanting it is a good plan to draw it from the forest, scatter it smong the trees, and let it lie ther until the soil requires working in the spring or early summer. We find i a good plan to leave the black surfac undisturbed till the hot weather sets in. It will draw the heat where there is but little of it, and when it is most required. This is true especially with grape vines.

But now is the time to save the leaves and discarded grasses. Do you think they are valueless because so light. There is much substance for the weight, or rather much effect. The reason for this is that they afford a natural food for the trees, shrubs and vines. Applied in abundance, with proper tillage, nothing can be better. Then gather the harvest of leaves and imitate natures wisdom.-Utica Her FOWLS IN ORCHARDS.—The public has yet to learn the full advantage of keeping poultry. Few seem to appreciate what they may do mong trees in an orchard. Let any one try them in an orchard of a quarter of an acre, where the may be kept by picket fence four or five feet high; put in, say one hundred and twenty-five fowls, and observe the result. They will avoid annoyance in the garden, of which so many complain;—while they will work among the trees, doing just what is needed, and destroying everything that can injure the fruit trees, in the shape of bugs, worms, or any other insects, and lay a large number of eggs, which are a cast article, to say nothing of chickens, which pay well for raising at the present time. I have tried it and know it is so. I have about one hundred fowls, which have worked admirably among my trees, keeping the ground in good condition, keeping off the insects, and promoting the growth of the orchard. I am satisfied that we have yet to learn the full benefits which may be derived from the proper management of fowls; and it is quite possible that the method] have suggested may offer the best way of getting our apple orchards in bearing condition.—Farmers' Home Jour-
