UNDERGROUND RAILROAD. At the final meeting of the Pennsylvania Anti-Slavery Society, beld in Philadelphia last week, a number of interesting reminiscences of the "Underground Railroad," in the dark days of the fugitive slave law, when to aid a fugltive slave was visited with a heavy fine and imprisonment,-Among others William Still (colored) gave the following:

"Nobody professed to own the U. G. R

R. No roll or stock books were kept. Or course Abolitionists as individuals had great sympathy with it and supported it heartily, out as a society their funds and efforts were never designed for this class of sufferers, but rather for the uprooting and overthrow of the entire system of oppression. A great many slaves daily prayed for the opportunity of passing over it to Canada; while, on the other hand, slaveholders universally barous enactments found in their codes indicate, and, as have been frequently shown, promised to work kind in it, thru thick and to any and all who might be so unfortunate Samaritan to one of these poor wayfarers. to be connected with the vigilance committee for many years. Brown was a man of invention, as well as a hero. In point of interest, however, his case is no more remarkable than many others. Indeed, neither before nor after escaping did he suffer one half what many others have experienced. He was decidedly an unhappy piece of property in the city of Richmond, Va. In the condition of a slave, he felt that it would be impossible for him to remain. Full well did he know, however, that it was no holiday task to escape the vigilance of Virginia slave hunters, or the wrath of an enraged master for committing the unpardonable sin of attempting to escape to a land of liberty. So Brown counted well the cost before venturing upon this hazardous undertaking. Ordinary modes of travel he concluded might prove disastrous to his hopes; he, therefore, hit upon a new invention altogether, which was to have himself boxed up and forwarded to Philadelphia direct by express. The size of the box and how it was to be made to fit him most comfortably, was of his own ordering. Two feet eight inches deep, two feet wide, and there is no eminence there to put them on ; the country is as flat as your hand. A fine Seminary for young ladies, and a beautiful Court house are also ornaments to the city. Altogether Jacksonville is a very pretty city; the streets are wide, lined with fine shade trees, but are very muddy, no means of paving them being at hand, unless at great expense, as there are no stones in that section suitable for paying. Next I came to Springfield, the capital of the State, and stayed over Sunday. Springfield has but few attractions in the way of public buildings, but will soon have one of the finest State Houses in the United States, which will add much to the city. The old State House is a miserable affair. Adams county is well represented in this city and by some man comes into the car | he finds his comof its most hospitable and clever sons. I rade in a sweon, and feels his own senses visited Lincoln's tomb and found nothing failing him, but a common brick vault, and had I not been told it was the tomb of the immortal Lincoln, would never have thought so by any outward appearance; however the
