He was in the seventy-first year of his age, having been born on the 12th of January, 1800. President Grant, on the receipt of the news of his death, sent a telegram to Minister Motley tendering the sympathies of the people of the United States to Queen Victoria and the British people, and condolence to those to whom the loss brings personal grief. The President says the "fame of the Earl of Clarendon belongs to the world, and his loss will be felt by other nations than that in whose behalf he labored for the advance of civilization and the interests of peace." Though he was not what may be termed a brilliant man, he was a shrewd diplomatist, and. as will doubtless be remembered, got decidedly the better of Mr. Reverdy Johnson in the treaty concerning the Alabama claims, which was so promptly and emphatically rejected by the U.S. Senate.
