THE BAREFOOT BOY.

BY J. G. WHITTIER

Blessings on the little man,

And thy merry tunes-

Barefoot boy with cheeks of tan!

Kissed by strawberries on the hill-

With the sunshine on thy face,

With thy upturned pantaloons,

With thy red lip, redder still,

Oh! for boyhood's painless play,

Health that mocks the doctor's rules Knowledge never learned at schools-Of the wild bee's morning chase,

Of the wild flower's time and place,

Flight of fowls and habitude

Of the tenants of the wood: How the tortoise bears its shell. How the robin feeds her young,

How the oriole's nest is hung. Where the whitest lilies blow.

Mason of his wall of clay.

And the architectural plans Of gray hornet artisans,

Nature answers all he asks'

Face to face with her he talks

Blessings on the barefoot boy

Cheerily, then, my little man,

Live and laugh as boyhood can

Every evening from thy feet

In the prison-cells of pride, Loose the freedom of the sod,

Like a colt for work be shod :

Made to tread the mills of toil

Happy if thy tracks be found

Never on forbidden ground-

Quick and treacherous sands of sin Ah! that thou should know the joy

Happy if they sink not in

Ere it passes, barefoot boy!

Shall the cool wind kiss the heat:

And too soon those feet shall hide

Though the flinty stones be hard, Stubble-spread the new mown sward

Every morn shall lead three through

Part and parcel of her joy-

For eschewing books and tasks,

Hand in hand with her he walks.

Where the wood-nut trails its vine.

Where the wood-grape clusters shine: Of the black wasp's cunning way,

The letter by the Hon. James L.
