GREEN CORN FODDER FOR MILCH COWS.

Jefferson Shaner, Chief Burgess of the Borough of West Chester, and one of the best dairymen in this section, informs us of the great value he puts on corn-stalks for stimulating his cows, and in connection with it, suggests a new idea to us, and a new practice, the advantage of which he has fully proved.

Instead of sowing corn in the usual way broadcast or in drills, he plants, in addition to his regular corn-field, a piece of ground convenient to his cow-sheds, at the ordinary distance apart, which is here 4½ feet each way.

About the begining of the ninth month (September,) he cut down the whole stalk, the grain having passed the stage of being what is called "in milk," but still quite soft, and feeds to his pigs by chopping the ear up with a hatchet. They then cut cob and all, and thrive on it much faster than on the very best sound corn. This he has fully tested. Perhaps some of our agricultural chemists can explain the reason. The green stalks he feeds whole to his cows, who consume it all, and in preference to the corn-stalks which had been sown broadcast. These latter when given along side, will not be eaten till the large stalks are consumed.

Our friend Shaner's theory of the reason of this preference is no doubt correct, and is a strong illustration of the well known fact, light and free circulation of air are indispensable to healthy vegetation. He instances the case of a potato sprout in a dark, damp cellar. It will grow 3 to 4 feet long but it has no maturity of sap or strength and being brought to the light soon dwindles away.

In the full grown corn-stalk exposed to the sun-light and a free circulation of air through the rows on all sides, there is probably a full developement of saccharine juice, in which we know corn-stalk abound Its chemical constituent, whatever they are, are well elaborated. It is therefore palatable to the stock, and nutritous.

Thick sown corn either broadcast or in drills, but especially the former, has growth of stalk of pale green, and sometimes of an almost white and sickly color, comparable somewhat to the potato vine in the cellar. The sun and air have not reached it, and it may therefore be comparatively innutritious and unpalatable to stock, though still worthy of cultivation as a change of food or partial substitute for either grass or hay.

We should be pleased to hear of other experiments in this same direction, so as to have this matter fully tested.—Practical Farmer.

AN ELOQUENT DEFENCE OF WOMEN.—"Dey may rail against women as much as dey like," said a darkey, lately, "dey can't set me against dem. I hab always in my life found dem to be fust in lub, fust in quarrel, fust in de dance, fust in de ice cream saloon, and de fust, best and last in de sick room. What would we do without dem? Let us be born as young, as ugly, as helpless as we please, and a woman's arm am ready to receive us.—She it am dat gave us our fust dose of castor oil, and put clothes on our helpless, naked limbs, and cubbers up our foots and noses in long flannel petticoats; and it am she, as we grow up, dat fills our dinner basket wid doughnuts and apples as we start for school, and licks us when we tear our trowsers."

IT costs about $3 a head under the Grant Administration to govern the United States, but it costs $28 a head to govern the Democrat-ridden city of New York.
