MARK THE TRAITORS! The Charge of Disunionism Fastened upon the Traitors.

The overwhelming democratic triumphs in Pennsylvania and Indiana, and the large democratic gains in Ohio, which partake of the character of a general victory, may in part be attributed to that inherent love for the Union with the masses, the depth and strength of which becomes more and more apparent as danger threatens to weaken its power or affect its duration. When our glorious confederacy has been imperilled by foes within or without, when the industrial interests of the country have been paralyzed by the machinations of political sharpers and gamblers, and when attempts have been made by bigots and fanatics to destroy those institutions upon which the Union has so proudly actively engaged with the black republicans and so securely rested for more than three open, zealous, boisterous canvassers for Frequarters of a century, the people have always turned, and never turned in vain, to the democratic party. It is barely possible that a very large number of the people of the northern States might have been deceived for a few months longer with the catching but hypocritical generalities of black republicanism. It is barely possible that many very worthy people could have been kept for several weeks -say until after the election—in a state of political phrensy and convenient darkness by the cry of free soil, free speech, free love, and Fremont. It is barely possible that the fraud upon bleeding dupes in the name of bleeding Kansas might have been kept up until ex-Governor Reeder had gathered a rich harvest from his land speculations. But when it became apparent to the dullest comprehension that all the last six months noise and talk, and fury and phrensy, about border-ruffianism, free speech, northern rights, southern aggressions, destroying a sacred compact, &c., were but the workings of the old leaven of abolitionism, with all its infidelity, its revolutionary purposes, and its malignant hatred of the white race, the daily desertions from the black republican ranks became so large as to fill the leaders with apprehension and alarm. The New York Herald assured its readers that the Fremonters were the only true, conservative, Union-loving, constitu-tion-supporting party in the field. The same assurance was given by the New York Times. Greeley declared, in a spirit of great magnanimity, that in this special instance the statements of the Herald and Times might be credited. Mr. Speaker Banks, in his famous Wall street speech, went a few steps further. According to his own showing, he stood with Webster in his veneration and admiration of the federal constitution. He stood with Buchanan in the enforcement of those great conservative principles by which fanaticism is robbed of its proscriptive terrors, and our free institutions preserved from the excesses of injudicious friends and the assaults of open enemies. He stood with Clay in his love for the Union. It is true that he once exclaimed, "let the Union slide;" but the exclamation was simply a figure of speech, and was merely designed to convey the idea that he was in favor of the Union sliding—sliding perpetually—on its consti-tutional axis! And last of all, and more than all, he told his astonished audience that

But this impudent attempt of the black. republicans, at the eleventh hour, to change front and to repudiate their own acts and their own sentiments was of no avail, and | army to victory will be no Washington will be of no avail. Their treasonable designs cannot be effaced from the public offi- to send another such as he." cial record. There are now filed away in the office of the Clerk of the federal House of Representatives no less than seven petitions, signed by three hundred and twenty-nine citizens of the States of New Hampshire, Rhode Island, New York, Pennsylvania, and Ohio, praying for a dissolution of the Union. These petitions, of which the following is an exact copy, were presented in the House of Representatives on the 14th of August last by Hon. Joshua R. Giddings, of Ohio:

he stood with Mr. Douglas upon the great platform of "popular sovereignty!"

The love of the Fremonters for the Constitution and the Union as shown by their petitions to Congress.

[The person to whom this petition is transmitted is earnestly requested to circulate it for signatures of the men and the women in his town, and see that it is speedily sent to either Senators WILSON, HALE, WADE, SEWARD, and FESSENDEN, or to Messrs. GIDDINGS, BURLINGAME, COLLAMER, CAMPBELL, or any other SUITABLE representative at Washington.

To the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States:

The undersigned, citizens and inhabitants -, State of ----, respectfully submit to Congress: That as, in the nature of things, antago-nistical principles, interests, pursuits, and institutions can never unite:

That an experience of more than three score years having demonstrated that there can be no real Union between the North and

of civil war, in consequence of their conflicting views in relation to freedom and slavery: That the South, having declared it to be not only her right and purpose to eternize her slave system where it now exists, but to extend it over all the Territories that now belong or may hereafter be annexed to the re- this position, whatever an ultra organ, North public, come what may; and having outlawed or South, may declare to the contrary. from her soil the entire free colored populafrom her soil the entire free colored populanorthern white citizen to exercise his consti-section of the country, and even in the nato all free institutions universally: We, therefore, believe that the time has come for a new arrangement of elements so hostile, of interests so irreconcilable, of institutions so incongruous; and we earnestly request Congress, at its present session, to take such initiatory measures for the speedy, peaceful, and equitable dissolution of the existing Union as the exigencies of the case require, leaving the South to depend upon her own resources, and to take all the responsibility in the maintenance of her slave system, and the North to organize an independent government in accordance with her own ideas of justice and the rights of man.

We venture to assert, without fear of contradiction, that every one of the three hundred and twenty-nine persons who signed the above petition is now an open and an ardent supporter of John C. Fremont, the black republican candidate for the presidency. The New York Tribune may endeavor to crawlout of the infamous difficulty by asserting that Giddings is an abolitionist of the black est shade and fiercest kind, and then falsely adding, as in the case of Garrison and Wendell Phillips, that the abolition party proper are the "inflexible opponents" of Mr. Fremont. But was not Mr. Giddings a delegate to the convention that nominated Mr. Fremont for the presidency? Did he not your for that remination? Her he presidency are to this for that nomination? Has he not up to this very moment supported that nomination with all that ruffianly zeal for which he is noted in and out of Congress? Would he utter one word in favor of that nomination if he entertained the remotest suspicion that Fremont's Union sentiments and slavery sentiments differed in the slightest degree from his own? It would seem from the above that Senators Wilson, Hale, Wade, Seward, and Fessenden, and Representatives Burlingame, Collamer, and Campbell, were willing to act as godfathers to these infamous petitions. Are they, too, abolitionists of the Boston Liberator school, and the "inflexible opponents" of John C. Fremont? Is it not known to the whole country that all these persons are now mont? - Washington Union.

Tom Corwin on the Dangers of the Country.

In his speech at Carthage, Mr. Corwin's allusion to the dangers which environ the Republic and the Union, in the present Presidential strife, was very touching. The following extract is worthy of perusal, especially by those who affect idle indifference, if not contempt, of all intimations of peril to the Union. Mr. Corwin said:

"I am not electioneering, gentlemen, for anybody whatever, and whoever is elected I shall acknowledge him as President of the United States, and aid him in carrying on the legitimate purposes of his government; but I do say that at no period in the history of this Republic since peace and tranquility were restored to its borders, after the terrible revolutionary struggle, has there been so much frightful apprehension in the minds of the American people, of some vague and entire disruption of the bonds which hold this Union together.

"Does it not become us to consider how we will answer to that remote posterity who we may fancy holding up their hands to us a thousand years in the future, and appealing to us by the blood of our fathers, if you will aid an act which by any possibility, may imperil the existence of this Republic! Give no heed to the men who sneer when you tell them the Republic may be destroyed—to the men who sneer at the power of the South; give no heed when they say the North is in a majority, and may do as it pleases! If this alienation of feeling goes on, not a man is there acquainted with the history of the past transactions of mankind but will tell you it shall be impossible to avoid the conflict of arms. Men now-a-days are too free in spirit to hear oppression, real or imaginary.

"They will fight. You may trample on them if you will, but if they believe them-selves, however erroneously, to be injured, they will bring you to a conflict, and when that comes, you have heard the death knell of this Republic and of your Constitution. Separate these States once, and you may again have a constitution, but it will not be the one under which you now live. It will be a different government, for the government that then comes will emerge from the blood, and the smoke, and the conflict of battle. The strong man that shall lead his it is not we believe, in the providence of God

livered his opinion of John C. Fremont: "As to Col. Fremont, all I have to say of him is that he has no antecedents. (A laugh.) I believe he is an intelligent man, a gentleman in his manners, and I would be willing, under other circumstances, to see him elected to the office; but he is not the man I want in these times of peril, so eloquently described by Mr. Harrison. I do not want a man who has never been at the helm, and tried the motion of the ship. I want a man who has navigated the same ship amid the shoals and breakers, and brought her safe and proud and high into haven."

That's So.

We find the subjoined paragraph in an exchange paper which places an important matter on its true ground. Read it attentively:

THE SLAVERY EXTENSION FALSEHOOD. The charge of slavery extension cannot be sustained by fact or by argument against the Democratic party. The platform adop-ted at Cincinnati does not contain a line, a word, or a letter, which pledges the Democratic party of the country to the extension of slavery beyond its present limits. The candidates of that convention have not written or uttered a syllable in favor of such a policy. The Democracy remain upon the same ground assumed by them upon the ac-South, but, on the contrary, ever-increasing quisition of California and New Mexico, alienation and strife, at the imminent hazard maintained in 1848; sustained in 1852, and then endorsed by the Whig national convention, to wit—the principle of non-intervention, and the policy of non-interference, by Congress, with slavery in the States or Territories of the Union. The Democracy do not propose to depart, and they are not to be driven from tion of the North, made it perilous for any | brought to a settlement, it will be through the instrumentality of the people of that tutional right, of freedom of speech in that | Territory, and not by the dictation of citizens of Missouri or Massachusetts; and wholly in tional capital, and proclaimed her hostility accordance with the doctrines of the Democratic party.

PHILADELPHIA MARKETS.

The Next Congress.

Probably the most gratifying result of the recent election throughout the United States, says the Harrisburg Patriot, is the fact that the next Congress will undoubtedly be Democratic. Already the Democratic gains amount to 44, which renders the political complexion of the next House certain, and the probability is that the Democratic majority will be large. The Senate will remain as at present. This fact, coupled with the certainty of Mr. Buchanan's election, will be gratifying to the whole country. The factions which control the present House of Representatives have become a curse to the country, and the people are tired of seeing our national halls of legislation made the theatre for the propagation of treasonable doctrines and sectional agitation. Like all popular errors, the Republican delusion will be short lived, and the destinies of the country will once more be placed in the hands of men who are actuated by patriotic motives and hold political principles wide enough to embrace the whole American Union.

It is a pleasure to consider, that while the wildest ideas are germinated in our free country, and the most venal passions are sometimes encouraged by the designing until they grow into monstrosities, yet the reason and reflection of the people are always certain to check them ere they become dangerous. It will be thus with the dark god of Abolitionism. For a time it threatened to grow to such a magnitude as to overshadow one half of our country, but the giant Democracy has placed his foot upon the neck of the prostrate deity, and it will writhe in the dust until it

When James Buchanan is inaugurated President of the United States, on the 4th day of March, 1857, he will find himself surrounded by men who sympathise with him on all great political questions, and who will aid him in quelling the jealousies that have arisen in our land. The time is not far distant when the bitterness which now exists between different sections of the Union will vanish, and our whole country will be harmonious and all our people happy. For this great result the Democratic party strives, and its invincible power will accomplish it.

A Valuable Work.—" Next to having something to eat is having it cooked in a style fit to be caten. Every house-keeper does not understand this art, and, probably, only for want of a little elementary teaching. This want is easily supplied, for T. B. Peterson has just published Mrs. Widdifield's Cook Book, in which the experience of that celebrated person in this line, is given so clearly and with such precise details that any housekeeper of sufficient capacity to undertake the management of household affairs can make herself an accomplished caterer for the table without serving an apprenticeship to the business. The book is published in one volume, the typography good and paper excellent, with as much real useful information in the volume as would be worth a dozen times its price. Get it at once." (Read what the Editor of the Ladies' National Magazine says of it in the number for October:)"

"The author of this book, Mrs. Hannah Widdifield, was celebrated, for nearly fifty years, as a cake baker and pastry cook in Philadelphia. None of the receipts have ever before been published. They have been tried for years, by hundreds of Mrs. Widdifield's pupils, many of whom we know personally; and we can, therefore, conscientiously recommend them. They have, moreover, the advantage of the hein's too extravagant, as most receipts in modern cook recommend them. They have, moreover, the advantage of not being too extravagant, as most receipts in modern cook books are; and they also comprise everything relating to the table, preserving, &c. We have no hesitation in pronouncing it the best work on the subject there is. The great majority of the cook books, it is well known to the initiated, are made by incompetent persons, who have never tried the receipts they profess to recommend. We advise all to purchase this one at once."

(Read what the Editor of the Dollar Newspaper says of it.)

"All the receipts in this book are now for the first time published in book form, and none of these receipts have ever before been issued in any other work but this; and we have no hesitation in saying, that we believe it will prove, on examination to all, to be the most useful and popular Cook Book ever issued. The merit of these receipts is, that they have been tried for years, and therefore can be recommended conscientiously.
