DISCRIMINATING.—A woman advertising for a husband wants him to be not only "strictly religious, but of good character."

ATTEMPT TO COMMIT SUICIDE.—A young clerk in Lewistown undertook to commit suicide last week by shooting his daguerreotype. He was unsuccessful, however. This is the third attempt he has made on his life within the last three months. Cause-broken sleep, brought on by intense devotion to a young lady with auburn ringlets.

MAX. GREENE is in Harrisburg. The report that he contemplates starting a paper at Altoona, we are informed, is incorrect—a " false alarm," entirely. The person who will, in the year 1857, chew tobacco

Horace Greely and them One Thousand Dollars.

The New York Tribune thus explains the charge made against Philosopher Greeley of having accepted a bribe of $1000 for services rendered in Congress to the Des Moines River Improvement:

Mr. Greeley was at Washington, when some of the Company were looking after their interests before Congress. Just as he was leaving one of them handed Mr. Greeley a draft for $1000, asking him if he would take it and honor their draft at New York for that amount. Mr. Greeley, supposing it a financial accommodation, said he would. But subsequently concluding that it was intended as a compensation for services which and good will. But there are certain princithey might ask, intimated to them that they could get their money when they wanted it, and it was drawn out of his hands.

Oh, ho! It is there you are, old Truepenny? Buying lobby influence has to be done very slyly in Washington, we should judge from the round-about way this Des Moines man went about it. But Mr. Greeley's explanation will of course satisfy his friends.— He only took "them one thousand" supposing it to be "a financial accommodation."-Nevertheless, for the benefit of those who think Horace more of a sinner than a saint, we give the following extract from the Report of the Corruption Investigation Committee, read in the House of Representatives on Thursday last:

It was to be used entirely at his dissily and effectually closed against us by Engthat he had received the money, but that he had no personal interest in it. The witness underwent a long examination, saying, in seems to have conceded them in a great measurement. underwent a long examination, saying, in reply to a question by Mr. Davis, "If the bill had passed the House, Mr. Greely had power to make whatever disposition of it he saw proper. There was no limitation whatever upon him. I had confidence in him that he would use it properly." It became necessary, he further said, that the bill should have the attention of some one; Reverdy Johnson being absent on account of professional engagements, or for some cause, the witness wished to provide that some one should be here as agent.

An Unwritten History Concerning Mr. Brooks.

A correspondent of the Charleston Courier, writing from Washington, gives some items of Mr. Brooks and his attack on Sumner. which has never before been published. He

Prominent among these reminiscences is the fact of the reconciliation of the deceasedwith Lewis D. Campbell of Obio, the advising and corresponding friend of Anson Buringame, in his sham demonstration of fight with the gallant Southron. Campbell meet ing Brooks during the present session of Congress, tendered him his hand, which the latter refused to accept, declaring that there were some things to be unsaid before friendly relations could ever be restored between them. Campbell then declared that he earnestly desired a reconciliation, adding emphatically that "he wished to associate with gentlemen," and was willing and ready to remove any obstacle that stood in the way of his purpose. The necessary retraction was made, and amity was restored, and Campbell's sincerity was signalized by his conduct and deep agitation at the death bed of Brooks, and by his subsequent eulogy of Brooks on the annunciation of his death in the House of Representatives." The poltroonery of Burlingame was a settled belief in the mind of Brooks; and he so declared to a General, a Colonel, or Mr. James, (of Wisconsin,) I think, who, it is said, was to have been Burlingame's second, in the very improbable contingency of an actual duel. He further told James that, if Burlingame came within his reach he would cane him, and to let his principal know it.-It is notorious that Burlingame, after his Quixotic expedition towards not to the Clifton House, never ventured to show his face, in Washington, during the last session of Congress, and kept out of Brooks' reach, although the latter made several efforts, but wholly unsuccessful ones, to ascertain his whereabouts, from Campbell. During the present session, I am credibly informed that Burlingame kept carefully out of Brooks' reach, never coming to or leaving the capitol, ways borrows the next number of his neighbor to see it except in a close carriage, and not even venthe withdrawal hasn't killed the editor, and dressed the turing on Brooks' side of the House, while the latter was alive; but that, since the death of Brooks, he has been sitting in a chair next to the seat or desk which B. used to occupy. Yet the creature is regarded by a large portion of his hood-winked and cheated people at home, as a hero and champion, and they have covered him with, not "with blushing honors," but with honors that must make him blush in secret and in shame under a sense of his own unworthiness and deceit. I learn, also, that Brooks was only restrained, by the earnest entreaty of his personal and political friends, from castigating Senator Wilson, of Massachusetts, as he had done W.'s colleague, Sumner, and thus putting them on their proper level, as par ignobile fratrum.

As a proof of the generosity and kindness of heart characteristic of Preston S. Brooks, may be mentioned the fact, that having been assigned by President Pierce the privilege of naming some one for a Lieutenancy of the U. S. Marines, he unasked, and of his own motion, named a nephew, or other near relative, of Colonel Louis T. Wigfall, now of Texas, with whom he had fought a duel, on his father's quarrel, in youth or early manhood, and by whom he had been severely wounded, and with whom he had never been

A CHARACTER FOR WASHINGTON.—The Rev. Theodore Parker, one of the three thousand reverend denunciators of Senator Douglas, says "Washington had not a great reason, no philosophic power, no imagination, no fondness for beauty in art or literature.-At times he poured out the ghastliest of oaths, was not an affectionate man, and few flowers of benevolence gleamed across his path," and the reason for all this was "the fact that he lived a died and slaveholder!" This is monstrous. But then it is this same Parker who gives to Charles Sumner all the qualities which were lacking in Washington, and deems him a hero and a saint, because we suppose he is not a slaveholder. The reverend gentleman is one of the bright and shining lights, one of the leaders and teachers of Abolition Black "Republicanism." What does he most deserved

The Dallas Treaty.

The treaty now before the Senate for confirmation is important in many respects. It is designed to settle all difficulties between this country and England in regard to the Central American States. It would be very comfortable and desirable to have all those difficulties ended, and have no cause of contention with Great Britain. It is the interest of both countries to preserve perpetual peace ples of vital importance to this country that should not be abandoned for any purpose whatever. From the partial information we have in regard to the terms of the treaty before the Senate some of those principles seem to have been lost sight of in the negotiation. Since the time when Monroe was President it has been the steadfast aim and purpose of our government to prevent the European powers from acquiring any more influence or any more colonies on this continent than those they already possessed. That is the substance of that "Monroe doctrine," of which so much has been said and written within the last fourth of a century. And it is a known fact that England at first favored that idea; and not only applauded the American government for its adoption, but in fact encouraged its adoption. Yet, in defiance of it, England has for several years past sought to acquire a controlling influence over por-John Stryker, of Rome, N. J., a director tions of Central America. cretion. The witness; three weeks ago, met land. To compel England to abandon her Mr. Greeley in New York, and he told him aims and pretentions in that direction has ure, and in so far to have been an abandonment of the "Monroe doctrine." The treaty appears to aim to form a sort. of a partnership for an Anglo-American protectorate of the Central American States; and that, too, without their participation in the contract, or consent to its terms. The treaty, if adopted and carried out, would seem to be a serious encroachment upon the sovereignty and independence of those States. Those States must either consent to the arrangement of the treaty, or resist them. To resist them were vain against two such powers as the United States and England. To assent to them would be a surrender of sovereignty and independence. If rightly informed such appears to be the import of the treaty; and it is not surprising that its ratification meets with a strong opposition in the Senate. We want no English interference in Central America. If the treaty recognises and permits it, it should be rejected. But we await more full information, and the action of the Senate.—Pittsburg Post.

CORRESPONDENCE OF THE GLOBE.

WHITE HALL, Porter township. MR. EDITOR: -A number of Teachers and friends of education assembled in the Loop School House in this township, on Friday evening, the 20th ult., for the purpose of holding a Teachers' Institute. The meeting was organized by choosing the President of Board of School Directors, Da-VID KNODE, Esq., Chairman, and G. P. Eld_ ridge, Secretary. The subject for the evening's discussion was, the importance and utility of Teachers' Institutes. The Secretary opened, followed in their advocacy by Messrs. Tussey, B. F. Brown and Speer. The President then made a few remarks, strongly approving of meetings such as the one over which he was presiding, and expressing his conviction of the superiority of the present School system over the old; after which the Institute adjourned until Saturday morning. On Saturday, in the absence of Mr. Eldridge, H. S. Johnson was chosen Secretary. The morning session was occupied in discussing the advantages of, and the best method of teaching, Geography and Grammar.-Messrs. Johnson, Tussey and Speer severally illustrated their mode of instruction in these branches. The propriety of introducing Composition and Declamation into our Common Schools was made the special order of the afternoon. The discussion on this subject was quite animated and interesting. Anawakened feeling was now manifest among the many citizens who were present. The Institute adjourned at 5 o'clock P. M. to meet at 7. In the evening, the number in attendance was very large. Fathers with their sons and mothers with their daughters had left the quiet home circle, and come to listen to the discussion of a theme, alike dear to them all-the education of their own children. The reciprocal duties of Teachers, Parents and Scholars was the subject of the evening. It was very ably opened by Mr. Tussey, who was succeeded by Messrs. J. D. Brown, B. F. Brown, Johnson and Speer, all urging the absolute necessity of the co-operation of directors and parents, in order to secure success in the school room. J. Tussey, Esq., made some very timely suggestions, for which he is well qualified by his long experience in teaching. The President then expressed the pleasure he had felt in attending the Institute, and also his willingness to acquiesce in every measure, tending to further the cause of edu-

On motion, it was then Resolved, That the directors and citizens of Porter township feel a deep interest in the Common school system, and will withhold no exertions to advance the progress of the same.

Resolved, That R. Milton Speer prepare a notice of the meeting of the Institute for publication. The Institute then adjourned.

It is but just to add that the people of this township are beginning to realize the too long neglected fact, that with the education of our youth rests the future destiny of our country. And under the liberal supervision of its present Board of Directors, aided by the intelligence of its citizens, Porter township will, ere long, have schools, well worthy itself and the present age. Her schools now rank among the first in the county, commanding alike the pride of their patrons and the admiration of all. The Democratic party now consists of the slave power of the South, allied with the Catholics of the North, with just enough doughfaces thrown in to give a triangular variety to the mixture.—Republican Paper. Whatever the "mixture" is, it has proved a most admirable remedy for disunion fanaticism and religious proscription.

The Republican movement needs compactness, breadth, vigor, nationality, generosity.—Spring field Republican.

The wife of Rufus Adams, of Cohasset, Mass., died lately from the brutal treat-ment of her husband. The physician testifies that the cause of her death was, that she went, on the night of her confinement, barefoot, over the snow and ice, to get a woman to come and stay with her, the brutal husband refusing to go. The scoundrel ought to be hung on a gallows higher than Haman's.

From the earliest period to the present time, the history of every nation, ancient and modern, being separately given. By S. G. Goodrich, author of several works of History, Teter Parley's Tales,' &c.

It is believed that the above work will be very acceptable to the American public. It is the result of years of toil and labor, assisted in his researches by several scholars toll and moor, assisted in his researches by several scholars of known ability, and has been got up at a great expense by the proprietors. No pains have been spared in the execution of the Illustrations and Maps, which are prepared expressly for this work. Indeed, all the other historical writing of Mr. Goodrich, sink into insignificance, when compared to this, the result of his riper and maturer years. It is admitted that one hundred dollars could not purchase the same matter in any other share, and the publishers It is admitted that one hundred dollars could not purchase the same matter in any other shape, and the publishers confidently expect, in consideration of the great literary value of the work, the large sum expended in preparing it for the press, and the exceedingly moderate price at which it is offered, that it will be favorably received by every lover of good books. Many of our first scholars, divines and gentlemen, who have examined the work, have given it their unqualified approbation and commendation, which it richly deserves.
