There has been a great deal of activity lately in that mystery of mysteries, the "Endowment House," and hundreds of the new converts have passed through the "degrees," and taken the fearful Mormon oath, in which they swear fealty to the Prophet and eternal enmity to the Government of the United States. As a large proportion of these new converts are ignorant proselyted foreigners, just arrived from the Old World, you may suppose that this oath is sworn with a will, and without mental reservation. The ceremony of initiation is generally concluded by the "sealing" of one or more women to every male; priated women are becoming scarce in the territory, and the polygamous monsters of the Southern settlements entered Brigham's office, and asked if he knew where he could get another wife. The cold hearted villain told him that he would give him Miss Whitney. Being reminded by the applicant that she was already engaged, Brigham declared who was then sitting by Furguson's side in the room. With a degree of courage that even men rarely evince here in the presence would have nobody but Miles. Brigham immediately ordered Miles on a mission to the Sandwich Islands; if he refuses to go he will be excommunicated, and in constant danger of his life. In all probability, the poor girl's only refuge from dishonor is in a suicide's Some two or three weeks ago, I met, by accident, a very interesting girl, apparently the reader be surprised at this nomenclature sixteen years of age. I was informed not on learning that an ancestor of the present long afterwards that Brigham Young had sent monarch rejoiced in the following polysyllafound with Brigham a man by the name of McRay, who has several wives already. Brigham said to the father: "You have two daughters; what are their ages?" The father replied that one was ten and the other sixteen years of age. Young then told him that he must give the eldest to McRay. The father, not daring to give a flat refusal, put them off by saying he believed she was engaged.—Subsequently Heber C. Kimball, who stands now to Young in the Priesthead of Fored a next to Young in the Priesthood, offered a yoke of oxen and wagon for the girl. This purchasing of young girls from their parents is not uncommon here, and if, in such cases, doubt, be a most imposing demonstration.—

Territorial Marshal. The Mormon leaders are very anxious to get fast hold of the young girl to whom I have sculptured in Philadelphia. It is of pure alluded, for fear of losing her, as she visits a white marble, six feet in height and reprefamily not in the church, and her Mormonism sents the "Printer Philosopher" at a period is thus endangered. In Ward meeting, on of life much earlier than the generality of the Gentiles, she should have her throat cut— ter looking than the venerable figure we are and that if her father would not be her executioner somebody else should.

But I weary of these sickening details, although what I have given you is only an inkling of what we suffer here. Let me close with an earnest appeal: "Come and help us!" "Pass Books" and "Store Accounts," then I fear, alas! that no aid can be afforded now by the government ere it is too late for very many of us; but there is a rising generation here, comprising many an innocent and as yet unpolluted young girl, who may be saved from degredation and a life of wretchedness. In any event, there is time to avenge our deaths if we should fall, and to wipe out the foul blot which the Theocracy that rules these plans has fixed upon the National escutcheon. I will write again should I have opportunity.
