From the Altoona Tribune-Extra of Friday 21. EXECUTION Of DAVID STRINGER McKIM, FOR THE MURDER OF SAMUEL TOWNSEND NORCROSS.

HISTORY OF THE CASE. atoned to the laws of the country, was committed on the morning of the 17th of January last. The whole case sums up as follows: Shortly before the date above mentioned;

Samuel T. Norcross, a native of East Lexington, Mass., was studying medicine in Dunfeith, Ill. David Stringer McKim also work cd in the same town, and the two men became intimate. Norcross was afflicted with an abscess in his side, which it was feared would take his life, and in consequence thereof determined on returning to East Lexington .--McKim proffered his company and it was accepted. Norcross had some seven or eight | pages of foolscap. hundred dollars invested in real estate in the west, and previous to starting for the east, he sold his property, and was induced by Mc-Kim as the evidence on the trial stated, to take the price thereof in cash, instead of eastern drafts. All things arranged, they started and on the 15th of January, landed in Pittsburg and put up at the Eagle Hotel, where McKim registered his name as McKinney, and told the landlord that Norcross was subject to fits of insanity in which he attempted to destroy himself and that he (McKim) was taking care of him. On the night of the 16th of January, McKim and Norcross left Pittsburg in the 10 o'clock train which arrived in this place at 3 o'clock the next morning. On that morning two men were observed to get off the cars and walk up the railroad. About 7 o'clock on the same morning, some laborers going to work on the road discovered a man lying in the ditch along side of the road, at a lonely spot about 21 miles above this place. He was not dead, but insensible. His face and head were much bruised and his throat had been cut with a razor, which article was found beside him.-The injured man was placed on a locomotive which was coming down the mountain at the time and brought down to this place. On examination of papers found on his person, it was discovered that his name was Samuel T. Norcross, on his way from Dunleith, Ill., to his home at East Lexington, Mass. No money or valuables of any account were found about his person. He lingered in great agony until two o'clock in the afternoon when he died. Although every exertion was made, he could not be roused sufficiently to speak. A short statement of the tragedy, together with the name of the unfortunate young man

At ten o'clock the prisoner's irons were taken off. Hymn 330, Watt's collection, was sung by him in conjunction with his spiritual advisers, Rev. Dr. Junkin, of Hollidaysburg, and Rev. O. O. McLean, of Huntingdon, after by the undertaker.

At 15 minutes to 11 o'clock the prisoner accompanied by Rev. Dr. Junkin and Rev. O. O. McLean ascended the scaffold. The rope was adjusted by Sheriff Port. At 10 minutes to 11 o'clock the sheriff proceeded to read the Death warrant of the unfortunate criminal, after which he called over the names of the urors, as follows:

Hofius, Esq., hissenior counsel, went up and shaking hands with him bade him farewell; next in order was Mr. Hammond, the District Attorney; next the Sheriff; next an old acquaintance of McKim's, and last of all Rev. Mr. McLean bade the wretched man a last farewell.

At 28 minutes past 12 o'clock, his arms were pinioned, the rope adjusted, and the cap drawn over the wretched man's face. The Sheriff then asked him if he had anything further to say, whereupon he spoke as follows :---

I die an innocent man. I stand on the pinnacle of death, but I die an innocent man.-I freely forgive those who swore against me. I know you don't believe me, but you must think there is some reality in it in my protesting my innocence while standing on the pinnacle of death-the pinnacle of death. Mr. Junkin heaven.

He had hardly ceased speaking before the drop fell. It was about 27 minutes to one o'clock. He fell about 4 feet. He seemed to die easy. His feet were slightly raised two or three times and his fingers were observed to twitch. The throbbings of his heart were perceptible for about 5 minutes after the drop fell, and his pulse was perceptible some 10 minutes. We don't think however he was susceptible to pain. We have no doubt he was rendered insensible by the fall, although it did not dislocate his neck. After hanging half an hour, at 1.03, P.M.

he was taken down and placed in his coffin. He looked but slightly changed. His mouth was half opened and his tongue which protruded slightly, was covered with blood. His eyes were half closed, and his neck though pronounced by the Doctors as not being broken, bore the marks of the cord, and in one place the skin was badly cut.

As soon as the body was put in the coffin, it was placed in a hearse and transported to the Poor House for burial. His friends having failed to come and claim the body as he expected, he was buried at the expense of the county.

The rope employed in the execution was a new one procured in Philadelphia, by the sheriff for the purpose. It cost $5, and is said to be the best quality of Italian Hemp. Within the last few weeks the sheriff has A man named Fleck said I took breakfast at it. Who has not stole fruit? But I had about 2500 applications for admission as

> Throughout the whole of the trying occasion, McKim behaved himself with great fortitude which at times amounted almost to I could not die happy unless I expressed my | bravado. In speaking he commenced in a opinion. As an American citizen I have a low and tremulous tone, but warming up as squares. It was generally expected he would break down on the scaffold, but he did not.----

•	This little bud, so young and fair, Called home by carly doom. Just come to show how bright a flower
	As the sweet flower that scents the morn, But withers in the rising day— Thus lovely was this infant's form; Thus sweetly fled its life away.
	It died ere its expanding soul Had ever burnt with wrong desires, Had ever spurned at heaven's control Or ever quenched its sacred fires.
	It died to sin—it died to cares, But for a moment felt the rod— Ol! mourner, such the Lord declares, Such are the children of our God.
