It is quite certain that both these fires were the work of some black hearted villians, intentupon the ruin of some of our citizens, and no exertion should be spared in ferretting out and bringing to justice the offenders. It is but a short time since the same diabolical crime was carried into execution against one of our most respectable and industrious citizens, living in the vicinity of the fires just recorded. Harrisburg, October, 1857. Division of School Fund: It has been decided, over and over again, by this department,—as often, doubtless, as a dozen times a year for the last twenty years,—that the school moneys of a district cannot be divided equally amongst the schools, unless the latter are all equal in their circumstances and necessary expenditures. It is difficult to understand how the contrary opinion and practice! should have prevailed. Education, not money, is the object of the school system. The money priation, is a means, not an end; and the means should be so applied as to most fairly and equitably accomplish the desired educa-

The contingent expenses of each school, for fuel, repairs, &c., are to be paid out of the common treasury, according to the necessities of each, whether they amount to the same sum in every case, or not. The wages of teachers could be regulated by their qualifications, the grade and size of the school in which they are employed, and the amount of professional labor they have to performwhether all are equal, or no two alike. The funds of the district should remain in the treasury, without division, until wanted for their legitimate uses, and then be drawn out by orders upon the treasurer, specifying the school and the particular item of expense.-These, of course, will be mostly arranged and understood, before any of the expenses become payable. The schools should all be kept open the same length of time, and in all other respects equal and exact justice should be done to all parts of the district, as near as may be practicable. But equality of money is not justice, unless other circumstances are also equal. Some schools are large and some small, owing to the density of population or to pay the teacher of fifty to seventy scholars, no higher wages than the teacher of twenty scholars, are sold at prices, which twenty scholars are sold at prices, which the teacher of twenty scholars or to be the teacher of twenty scholars or to be the teacher of twenty scholars. the consequent low run of springs and wells, is ascribed as the chief cause of this first-class certificate on the same level as to D. passable temporary certificate. The onlyserious obstacle to the due administration of the system in this respect, is the scarcit of competent teachers, and the difficulty, ifnot impossibility, of getting suitable teacher for all the schools. But this evil is becoming less every year; and until it is entirelyremoved. Directors must take the responsibilty, exercise their own judgment, and do the est they can for the important public intersts committed to their charge.

Effects of Suspension.—The while amount of specie in the United States is etimated at $250,000,000. Pennsylvania, hv ing one tenth of the population, and more than one tenth of the wealth of the Unin, has at least $25,000,000 of this specie-inll probability much more. In ordinary tires this specie circulates freely. In times of panic and of a depreciated currency it scarcely circulates at all. If ten dollars in notes, which are still money for ordingry transactions, are worth fifty cents or one ollar less than specie, nearly every body rfuses to pay out their gold and silver. Tley will not suffer their good currency to be jut on an equality with a bad one. This is jut natural. Consequently, and not only hive the banks withdrawn many of their own notes from circulation, by failing to redem their notes. In a state of suspension, menwhile, those who have specie either hoard it up, or send it to brokers to be sold for a fremium. Thus thousands of dollars are bld every day to brokers in Philadelphia, ind they in turn sell it to parties who requir it to pay their obligations at points outside of our own State, which thus becomes drained of its specie.

Chambersburg, Dr. Hardman treats Consumption, Bronchitis, Asthma, Larryngittis and all diseases of the throat and lungs, by Medical Inhalation, lately used in the Bromton Hospital. London. The great point in the treatment of all human maladies, is to get at the disease in the direct manner.—All medicines are estimated by their action upon the organ requiring relief. This is the important fact upon which Inhalation is based. If the stomach is diseased we take medicine directly into the stomach. If the lungs are diseased, breathe or inhale medicated vapors directly into the lungs, Medicines are antidotes to disease and should be applied to the very scat of disease. Inhalation is the application of this principle to the treatment of the lungs, for it gives us direct access to those intricate air cells, and tubes which lie out of reach of every other means of administering medicines. The reason that Consumption, and other diseases of the lungs, have heretofore resisted all treatment has been because they have never been approached in a direct manner by medicine. They were intended to not upon the lungs, and yet were applied to the stomach. Their action was intended to be local, and yet, they were so administered that they should only act constitutionally, expending their immediate and principal action upon the unoffending stomach, whilst the foul ulcers within the lungs were unmolested. Inhalation brings the medicine in direct contact with the disease, without the disadvantage of any violent action. Its application is medicine directly into the stomach. If the lungs are dis the disadvantage of any violent action. Its application is so simple, that it can be employed by the youngest infant or feeblest invalid. It does not derange the stomach, or interfere in the least degree with the strength, comfort, or business of the patient.

Other Diseases Treated:—In relation to the following discases, either when complicated with lung affections or existing alone, I also invite consultation, I usually find them promptly curable.
