For the Farmer.

"Got any Ashes?"---What to Do with [From the Country Gentleman.]

"Got any ashes?" asked an itinerant gatherer of the dust, calling out from the road-

"Yes, a hundred bushels or so," answered the farmer.

Down jumped the "ash-man." and was about to open the gate, when he was told to "Hold on !"

"Hold on! why, I want a load of your ashes." "But they are not for sale, my friend; we shall need all we have for use at home" Wondering what one man-or woman, rather-could want a hundred bushels of ashes, the "peddler" went grumbling on. Farmer, let him go,! If you have "got any ashes," keep them, and use them at home, as a manure for your farm. Let us give you some authorities in regard to their

Ashes have been employed as a fertilizer of the soil from a very early age. Cato, a Roman writer upon agriculture, recommended the use of wood-ashes as a manure, and the ancient Jews, Romans and Britons, burned over their stubbles preparatory to another

Johnston, "may be applied to thin, almost sterile soils, with good effect; larger quantities would be to exausting, unless, the soil be naturally rich in vegetable matter, or mixed from year to year with a sufficient quantity of barnyard manure."

Ashes are employed in Great Britain as a manure for root crops, and are used for this purpose in connection with bone dust, and drilled in with the seed. According to Johnston, as much as fifteen bushels of each are applied to an acre, and often with great success. Turnips, carrots, and potatoes, seem equally benefitted by ashes. "They may be equally, benefitted by ashes. "They may be used with advantage for simost every class of crops," says Browne, "but especially for grass, grain, and Indian corn," though according to Sprengel, "the immediate benefit of ashes is most perceptible upon leguminous plants, such as clover peas, beans, &c." Upon red clover "the effect will be more certain if previously mixed with one-fourth their weight of gypsum."

The use of ashes as a manure for corn, is becoming quite general in this section of the country—they are applied as a hill-dressing immediately after the first hoeing, at the rate of two table-spoonfuls per hill, or about two bushels per acre. They are found useful, applied at the same time, to potatoes, and to a political politics. We have used them in these ways and upon grass land, to the benefit of the crops and the permanent amelioration of the soil, and have no doubt but that it will be far more profitable to any farmer to "use them at home." than to sell them for the pittance generally offered-8 to 10 cents per bushel "in trade,"—equal to perhaps one-half that amount, net cash.

The Apple Orchard.

The Michigan Farmer makes these sensible remarks upon the present apathy or neglect respecting the apple orchard, which we reprint as being perfectly applicable to Pennsylvania and surrounding States:

"The old orchard planted by our forefather regoing to decay, or have already deposite. On some farms they are replaced by vigorous bearing trees. On others the only apple trees are a few scattered seedings, bearing indifferent fruit. The owners buy their winter apples every year or go without.

"Our soil and climate are so admirably adapted to this fruit, that we have no excuse for going abroad for our supplies, and yet thousands of barrels come to us every year from Central New-York, and farther west.—

This is a disgrace to our husbandry, for we can raise this fruit fifty per cent. cheaper than anybody can raise it for us. In seleting a site for an orchard, avoid the spot that has been previously occupied by apple trees. the experiment has been tried, and all who had experience in the matter, agree, that new ground is best for this purpose. A recently eleared wood lot, where oak, hickory, chestnut have thriven, will bear good apples. But such ground is scarce in the common. their winter apples every year or go without. But such ground is scarce in the commonwealth, and any good corn land, bearing sixty bushels to the acre, will answer. The apple tree delights in a deep, gravelly loam, with a yellow subsoil two or three feet deeper. If not in good heart, it should be made fertile dy manuring and cultivation."

To Save Harness.

It is the hairy side of leather that cracks: and if the harness be made (if double) so that the fleshy sides are outward, and (if single) so that the hair side is next to the horse, it will not crack. The moisture of the horse, will soften the hairy side; and the bend being so that the fleshy side is on the outside of the segment of the circle, no provocation is given to the inside of the circle, to crack. Wagon harness has lasted twenty years uncracked; simply by this means. The harness maker will object to it because he cannot put infcrior leather in as he otherwise could. But stirrup-leathers are made so, and so are shoes. and why not harness.

Dued for it a combination of literary and artistic talent prob-ably unrivaled by any other Magazine in the world. Du-ring the first month, the sale in the trade and demand from subscribers exceeded 90,000 copies, and the numbers al-ready issued of the consolidated work are universally con-ceded to have surpassed, in the richness of their literary contents, and the beauty and profuseness of their pictorial illustrations, any magazine ever before issued from the American press. Encouraged by these evidences of favor, the publishers have determined to commence the new vol-ume in January with still additional attractions, and to offer such inducements to subscribers as cannot fail to offer such inducements to subscribers as cannot fail to place it, in circulation, at the head of American magazines. With this view they now announce the following splendid programme. They have purchased that superb and costly steel-plate ongraving, "THE LAST SUPPER," and will present it to every three-dollar subscriber for the year 1858. It was engraved at a cost of over $5,000, by the celebrated A. L. Dick, from the original of Raphael Morghen, after Leonardo Da Vinci, and is the largest steel-plate engraving ever executed in this country, being three times the size of the ordinary three-dollar engravings.

The first impressions of this engraving are held at ten dollars, and it was the intention of the artist that none of the engravings should ever be offered for a less sum than five dollars, being richly worth that amount. Thus every three-dollar subscriber will receive the Magazine one year—cheap at three dollars—and this splendid engraving, three-dollar subscriber will receive the Magazine one year—cheap at three dollars—and this splendid engraving, richly worth $5; thus getting for $3 the value of $5.

We shall commence striking off the engravings immediately, yet it can hardly be expected that impressions of so large a plate can be taken as fast as they will be called for by subscribers. We shall, therefore, furnish them in the order in which subscriptions are received. Those who desire to obtain their engravings early, and from the first impressions, should send in their subscriptions without delay. The engraving can be sent on rollers, by mail, or in any other manner, as subscribers shall order.
