For the Karmer.

The Horse Taming Secret. We have already given our readers two theories for subduing wild and vicious horses. One system was founded upon Faucher's published experience in horse training, and assumes that the horse's kindness and affection could be conciliated to such a degree, through the gratification of the sense of taste and smell, as to make him more succeptible to the trainer's teachings; while the other advocated the opposite system of force, and asserted that you must in a positive manner show the animal you are his superior and master. It advocated the tying the animal's fore leg in an unnatural position, exausting his strength and patience by torture, and virtually throwing him to the earth—a slight variation of a brutal course of treatment that has been tried

We now have another theory on the subject; and as its trial cannot, under any circumstances, do injury to the noble animal it is intended to render submissive. we would advise those of our readeres who feel an interest in horse taming to put it to the test, being careful to observe our former advice in practicing a gentle and kind course of treatment in connection with it.

This new system of taming is founded on the laso, and consists in simply gradually adauthority of Catlin, in his "Letters and Notes on the American Indians," that this process is the one practised by the Indians in taming the wild horses of the prairies, and that it is invariably attended with success. It is mentioned by him that it is breathing, not blowing, into the nostrils that is to be performed, and that it ought to be, continued some time to ensure success.

Speaking of the astonishing power thus exercised over wild animals, Catlin says:-

"I have often, in concurrence with a known custom of the country, held my hands over the eyes of a buffalo calf, and breathed a few strong breaths into its nostrils, after which I have with my traveling companions, rode several milees into our encampment, with the little prisoner busily following the heels of my horse the whole way, as closely and affectionately as its instinct would attach it to its dam. This is one of the most extraordinary things I have witnessed since I came into this wild country; and although I had often heard of it, and unable exactly to believe it, I am now willing to bear testimony to the fact, from the numerous instances which I have witnessed since I came into the coun-

Mr. Catlin further states that the wild horse of the prairie is made docile and tractable by the same simple, kind, and singular

While upon this subject we may observe that the last accounts from Europe represent Mr. Rarey as realizing a splendid fortune there by imparting the secret of his peculiar art. He has publicly stated that the system of force exhibited at Astley's Circus, and alleged to be substantially the same as his own, and referred to in our last issue, is directly opposite the process he practises; and he authorizes the Messrs. Tattersalls to pay to any person other than his own pupils, who will subdue wild and vicious horses as successfully as by his method, the sum of one thousand guineas. Mr. Rarey does not mind acknowledging in public that the key to the art of horse-taming is a process of alchemy, however close he may keep the other portion of his secret.—Scientific American.

Suggestions about Hay-Making.

I know that horses and cattle like early cut hay better than that which is cut late .-They will fatten on it by giving them what they will eat, while they will barely subsist on that which gets dead ripe before it is cut. Cows which go to pasture early in the spring will make yellow butter, and so they will in winter if fed on early cut hay, if it be well cured. It is more work to make hay of early cut grass, than that which stands and dries up before being cut. It is an old adage, "to make hay while the sun shines." I think

McCAULEY & CO. will make yellow butter, and so they will in hay dried in the shade, is more fragrant and better than if dried in the sun. But in having time we are in haste to dry it as soon as possible, and get it into the barn out of the rain. I have noticed that women who have occasion to gathar herbs for winter use, usually gather them when in blossom, and dry them in the shade. I believe it is correct.-If it be so with herbs, is it not with grass?-I don't know which will pay best-to cut meadows once or twice the same season. I think it will be better to cut twice; and I think the quantity will be as much or more on the right kind of land, if cut twice the same season. I do not know but grass would be more likely to kill or die out, if cut twice a year; think it would; but would it not pay to reseed it every two or three years? I wish you would persuade John Doe or Richard Roe, or some of those big farmers who own a hay-scale, to take, say two acres of meadow ground, cut one acre early so as to cut it twice the same season, and the other acre to cut but once, and weigh it in and weigh it out again on feeding, and feed it to two steers or cattle of nearly equal size, and weigh them every few days, so as to determine which is the most economical plan, or which will pay the best. I should like to see the result of such an experiment in the Country Gentleman.

Stake up the trees transplanted this spring firmly-not by driving the stake parallel with the tree, sometimes injuring the roots, and at best giving it but an unsteady support; but by planting the support at an angle of forty-five degrees, and where the tree is fastened to it, wrapping round like a little woolen cloth. It will be found to be a much firmer, and better way. The tree also can be made to stand perfectly upright. Evergreens should be particularly well-staked, or the high winds of April, finding in them so much resistance, may loosen the roots and destroy their vitality .- Germantown Tele-

LIME FOR POTATOES .- A correspondent of from time immemorial without any beneficial in each hill tends to prevent the potato rot .-The lime, he states, brings the potatoes earlier to maturity, and imparts to them a vigor which resist the attacks of the desease .-An experiment with lime can be conducted by any of our farmers at a small expense, and if it does not prevent the potato rot the lime will certainly enrich the soil for other

A REMEDY FOR RATS .- When a house is infested by rats which refuse to nibble at the usual baits, a few drops of the highly scenthe well-known process employed in subdu- ted oil of rhodium, poured on the bottom of a ing buffalo calves and wild horses taken by cage trap, will almost invariably attract it full of the "mischievous varmints." We have the completely crowded night after night, until the house was cleared of them.—Exchange.

> To Make Cows Give Down their Milk .-Give them a taste of salt. Mr. Leonard Gillet, of North Colebrook, Massachusetts, has practiced this for fifteen years, and has never known it to fail. The animal should be kept a little hungry for salt, so that the pleasure of getting some takes off her attention from other things.

DOLLARS.

This company has been organized with the above capital for the purpose of supplying the demand for the COMBINATION PORTABLE STEAM SAW-MILL, and other improved machinery.

They have purchased the entire machinery business heretofore carried on by J. M. Emerson & Co., also the Montgomery Works at Yonkers, on the Hudson, near this city, and with the experience and facilities combined in its organization are prepared to furnish machinery of all kinds DOLLARS. ganization are prepared to furnish machinery of all kinds at more liberal rates, than has ever been offered at any other establishment.

The Combination Saw-Mill was patented October, 1856, and is now generally acknowledged to be the cheapest, and most practical, and efficient lumber manufacturing machine in the world. A number of them are in successful operation in different sections of the country, Canada, Cuba, and South America, and wherever their merits have been tested they are being adopted by lumber manufacturity.

been tested they are being adopted by lumber manufacturers in preference to all other mills.

The following letter expresses the general opinion of those who are using the Combination Mill:

Messas. Emerson & Co.—Gentlemen: I have tried the saw-mill purchased of you, and will say that it performs well, and more than meets my expectations. I am well pleased with its performance. I set it up on a small stream that afforded constant water about as thick as my little finger, which was much more than sufficient to supply the boiler. We are able to cut 3,000 feet of beautiful lumber in 12 hours, with something less than one cord of wood. in 12 hours, with something less than one cord of wood.—

It is the very thing we have so much needed in our county for a long time. With a little trouble and expense, we are able to move it from five to ten miles per day, and set it up in the heart of the timber, which saves the great burden of hauling the logs a long distance to the mill.

Yours respectfully,

Louisville, Tennessee.

Yours respectfully,

Yours respectfully,
