The Killing of Jenkins, of Lawrence, by Gen. Lane. [From the St. Louis Democrat of the 8th.]

The fact that Gaius Jenkins, of Lawrence, was killed by James II. Lane, on Friday last, has already been reported by the telegraph. The particulars of the horrible affair, as we learn from a gentleman who left the Territory on Saturday morning, are as follows: There was a dispute between Lane and Jenkins concerning a valuable land claim, lying in close proximity to Lawrence. This dispute engendered a cordial hatred, which extended to the private relations of the parties. Some weeks ago Lanc's family arrived in Kansas, and Lane took them upon the contested claim, without having a legal title to the same—the suit concerning the title being Still before the proper tribunal. This action on the part of Lane excited Jenkins, but nothing passed between them till Friday, the 4th instant. On this day Jenkins informed Lane that he intended drawing some water from the well, on the claim. Lane told him to refrain, but Jenkins paid no attention to the caution and made his appearance near the claim during the day. He was provided with a gun and an axe, and was accompanied by three companions. As he approached he laid down his gun, and took up the axe to knock the chain from the lock by which it was fastened. As he stepped forward, Lane appeared in front of the house armed with a loaded shot gun. Jenkins gave a look of defiance at his enemy, and in the next moment fell to the earth, a corpse, having received an im-mense charge of buckshot in his breast.

As Jenkins fell, one of his friends fired three times at Gen. Lane, one ball missing him, the other grazing his forehead, and the third burying itself in the calf of his leg, bringing him to the ground. It was a harrowing spectacle. The body of Mr. Jenkins was soon removed and Lane taken into custody. Mrs. Jenkins was nearly crazed at the fearful intelligence of the death of her husband. She is lying in a dangerous condition. Jenkins bore an excellent character, and his loss will be deeply regretted.

It is proper to state that Gen. Lane claims that he was fully justified in shooting down his adjutant general-for, strange as it may seem, such Jenkins was-and asserts that he can establish his justification before the courts of his country.

The feeling against Lane was general throughout the Territory.

Last reports indicate that there was some talk of lynching Lane, but it is hardly probable that this will be done. Lane is at present in close custody, and his trial will come off at an early day.

FULLER PARTICULARS.

The Evening Bulletin publishes a letter, dated Lawrence, June 3d, giving the following version of the affair:

General Lane stated the facts of the case to be in substance as follows: "There has been some dispute as to the right he has to take water from the well, and as he abused my wife in this connection I decided to nail the gate leading to his premises, and also to put a lock on the well. This morning he sent me word by a young man, saying he should come this noon and take some water, and should not be frightened out of it. I replied, tell Jenkins for God's sake not to come,

Jenkins' men frequently came for water; we spoke to them about the condition of it and urged them not to get any more of it; they disregarded this and the water was still un-settled, so my husband decided to lock the ting ou. well. Col. Jenkins came soon after, and with an axe commenced breaking it open .--I told him I thought it very ungentlemanly in him to do so against my desire. I then took hold of the axe and said, if you insist on doing it you must get another axe. I also added that my husband would soon return, and that he ought to desist until he came.-He then went to a neighbor's house and got an axe, but decided not to use it. This morning a young man came and told my husbaud that Colonel Jenkins intended to come during the evening, and was determined to have some water. My husband told him to go back and beseech Colonel J. not to do it. I said to my husband that Col. J. would probably shoot him if he resisted, and that he ought to send for assistance.— He replied, no, I will risk myself. I then said, let me go after your pistols, you certainly will be in danger without them. He compelled me to remain, and said he had a single-barrelled shot gun in case of emergen-cy. After dinner I saw Col. J. chopping down the gate with three armed men. My husbaud went to him unarmed, and asked him to desist. Col. J. had succeeded in gaining an entrance, and was approaching my husband with an uplifted axe. I supposed he would kill my husband, and I hurried into the house so as not to witness it.-(It was at this time that General L. returned to the house, got the gun, and shot him.)

Gen. Lane and the men under Col. Jenkins have been duly arrested, and an impartial trial will doubtless be had. Gen. L. is in considerable pain, the ball not having been extracted. Both were brave men and jealous of their honor, and each determined not to succumb. This, and not the water, I believe, was the cause of the fatal collision. The house in which Gen. Lane lives was built by a man by the name of Chapman, who, Col. Jenkins says, was his agent. The digging of the well was paid for by Jenkins, and not to have the use of it exasperated him. Gen. Lane maintains that he bought all, the land and improvements, of Mr. Chapman, three years ago. Various other things in addition to this makes it a very knotty case. Mrs. Jenkins has often remarked to her husband that the claim would cost him his life. The above I believe to be an impartial statement of this unfortunate affair.

The Money Glut.

In the language of Wall street, there is a glut in the money market. The banks cannot obtain enough good paper to meet their ability to discount, and the private discount-ing houses are puzzled to find profitable employment for their funds. The money glut is even greater in London than here; and at last dates, first-class bills were readily negotiated at one-half of one per cent. discount. This state of the money market gives animation to the stock market, but it indicates an unhealthy condition of business. The capital which should be flowing through all arteries of trade, commerce, and industry, giving health and activity to business enterprise, and employment to labor, has been drawn back into the great financial centres, until its accumulation becomes oppressive. But this condition of things, the natural result of the panic, cannot long continue, and when this accumulated capital begins to circulate again freely through all the channels of trade and industry, new life and new vigor will be imparted to business enterprise, and labor will find abundant and profitable employment. There is one satisfactory thought suggested by the money glut. It proves that there is abundant capital in the country to carry on its legitimate works of material improvement. It is not money that we want, but a proper use of the money that we have, to revive our prosperity. There is plently of tion apply to money in the country to employ, and plenty June 16, 1855 of food to feed every willing worker in the land; and if our capitalists, and merchants, and manufacturers will use their means and their opportunities wisely and well, they may make the close of 1858 as prosperous and promising as the close of 1857 was disastrous and discouraging.-N. MARRIED,

On the evening of the 10th inst., at Spruce Creek, by Rev. Geo. Guger, Mr. HENRY L. HARVEY to Miss LIZZIE GARDNER, all of Huntingdon co., Pa.

From the Shirleysburg Herald.

On the Death of Dr. Henry A. Dorsey.

BY THE BARD OF MOUNTAIN GLEN.

Ye Brothers in the healing art attend, And drop one tear for a dear, noble friend, Whom tyrant Death hath rudely from you torn, And made humanity and friends to mourn! Insatiate Death! Hy name is fraught with fear, Even to the wretch to whom no tic is dear,— First to the writch j hand is into is into in the set of the writch to whom no tie is dear,— A bitter bane, a terror and a dread, To men in irons or to misery wed, Or to the aged whose fond hopes are dead. In any shape thou art a fearful thing, But doubly bitter in life's blooming spring. When the young life-blood in full vigor flows, And future promise to the fond view glows,— When hope is high, and fancy to the mind Paints brilliant goals of happiness to find,— When love burns warmly in the gladsome heart, And some dear object seems of us a part— 'Tis then that pity's self must drop a tear, When ends in night ambition's bright career. O, noble Donsær! frank and gen'rous friend! Who that has known thee but deplores thine end ? Kind to a fault, and ready to forgive, True, open-hearted, scorning to deceive; True, open-hearted, scorning to decive; Blind to all faults, and oft forgetting wrong, Oft made the victim of the heartless throng; Can'out to friend in commencements Gen'rous to friends in sorrow, weal or woe. A friend to all, but to yourself a foe! Fair genius weeps at thy untimely fate, For Time but tarried to have marked thee great! And must thy spirit take so sudden flight, When life's fair prime just ushers into light Those noble qualities of heart and mind? Must buoyant hope such quick oblivion find? Must the paie May-moon in sweet sadness weep, O'er thy dark grave where worth and goodness sleep? The wild Spring flowers, which plucked and withering, Of thy hard fate a sad remembrance bring ; And the soft breeze, that wafts above thy tomb, Sings a lone requiem o'er thy narrow home. A friend to all, but to yourself a foe! And the softeners, the water above by the Sings a lone requient o'er thy narrow home. Aspiring mant and this thy certain doom, To live and love,—to lauguish and desire,— To taste life's mingled pleasures, and expire ! Peace to thine ashes, friend, so lowly haid; Peace to thine ashes, friend, so lowly laid; Thy debt of nature hast been early paid. And let no zealot lessen now thy meed, Altho' a stranger to his vaunted creed; The gen'rous glow that filled thy honest heart Knew not the subtle, low dissembler's art; Without the garb that marks the bigot's clan, You knew your duty, and, to play the man. Let the Great Power who weighs tho deeds of all Decide thy merits, now in death's dark pale; "Tis all thine humble friend, tho bard, desires, "Tis all that merey, instice, Heaven requires. 'Tis all that mercy, justice, Heaven requires. May 31, 1858.

The great point in the treatment of all human maladies, is to get at the disease in the direct manner.— All medicines are estimated by their action upon the organ requiring relief. This is the important fact upon which Inhalation is based. If the stomach, if the lungs are diseased, breathe or inhale medicated vapors directly into the stomach. that I do not intrude on his premises, not even to visit the grave of my daughter, back of his house, and that I cannot let him intrude here-tell him I beg him not to come. Immediately after dinner I looked out and saw Col. Jenkins beating down the gate with an axe, in company with three armed men. I went out to the gate and told him to desist .--He replied with oaths, saying, "You cannot alarm me, and I will have water at all hazzards." He then entered the gate, when, being unarmed, I returned to my house to get my gun, (the distance being about 100 feet.) I returned and met them a short distance from the fence, approaching the well. I ordered them to stop, which was disregarded. I then said, do not advance a single step at the risk of your lives ! (or something to this effect.) They continued to move forward; Colonel Jenkins swung his axe in a menaing manner, and his men presenting their pistols. · I again begged them not to move another step, but 'twas of no avail, and feel-ing my life in jeopardy, I put my gun to my shoulder and fired. (The distance was about twelve feet, and Col. Jenkins fell on his face and expired immediately.) One of his men then discharged a pistol at me; the distance was only about six or eight feet, and as I looked into the pistol, I suddenly moved my head. At this moment he fired, the ball striking my hair, beside my forehead. I then received a ball in my leg, and being unarmed I retreated to my house."

It appears that owing to the caps being bad the pistols were not discharged as often as intended. The ball struck Gen. Lane in the side of the left leg just below the knee, and run upwards. It is feared it will make him a cripple for life. He regrets having killed Col. Jenkins, but feels justified in shooting him, as he felt compelled to do in self-defence. The musket was loaded with shot, ninetyfive of them entering his breast. The size of the shot were BB, the ordinary squirrel shot. It is very evident that Gen. Lane did not premeditate an attack upon Col. Jenkins as his pistols were away being cleansed, the shot gun being the only weapon remaining on the premises.

The feeling occasioned by this calamity was intense. Among Col. Jenkins' friends their was some talk of lynching Gen. Lane, but this feeling grew out of the immense excitement felt at a tragedy so unexpected; it soon abated, and their better judgement yielded in favor of giving him an impartial hearing, and a punishment deserving of the crime.

For a long time there has existed between the above parties a very bitter feeling .---Threats of shooting each other have not been uncommon. Col. Jenkins remarked to a friend during the morning that he anticipated a row with Gen. Lane after dinner, and did not know but 'twould be an ugly one.-Col. Jenkins' friends do not deny that his workmen who accompanied him were all armed, and state that Col. Jenkins put his rifle beside the fence, and took the axe to cut down the gate, and after accomplishing this object, he laid it down beside the fence.

This statement differs from Gen. Lane's, Mrs. Lane's, and those of two or more other witnesses. I think it will be proved that he retained it in his hand until he was shot .--Mrs. Lane (the wife of Gen. Lane) gave me the following particulars: "When we moved in this house a few weeks ago, we found it exceedingly dirty and required a great deal of water to cleanse it, consequently the water in the well was very low and dirty. Latest from California.

NEW YORK, June 12 .- The Star of the West has arrived, with nearly half a million dollars treasure.

The California news is unimportant. The mining and agricultural reports are satisfactory, and abundant crops are predicted.

Considerable excitement exists in consequence of recent discoveries of gold on Frazer river, in the British possessions; 1500 persons left San Francisco for the mines. The advices are highly favorable.

The Indians are troublesome. At Plumas fight occurred between the savages and whites; 20 Indians were killed.

Twenty gamblers have been indicted at Sacramento, including Ned M'Gowan.

Col. Freemont has entered a complaint against the Mercer Mining Company, for trespass and waste on Mariposa, involving very important mining interests. The negroes of San Francisco are preparing to emigrate to Vancouver's Island. The reports of pioneers are highly favorable.

S. Galley, a French importer, was assassinated by his mistress.

The news from Oregon and Washington is unimportant. The Frazer river gold excitement prevailed there.

Died at Alexandria, on the 27th of May, 1858, DAVID JONES, aged — years, a member of Hartslog Lodge, No. 286, I. O. C. F., Pennsylvania. PREPARED BY DR. SANFORD.—Compounded en-tirely from GUMS is one of the best purgative and Liver medicines now before the public, that acts as a Cuthartic, easier, milder, and more effectual than any other medicine known. It is not only a Cathartic but a Liver remedy, acting first on the Liver to eject its morbid matter; then on the bowels and stomach to carry off that matter; thus accomplishing two purposes effectually, without any of the painful feeling experienced in the operations of most Cuthartics. It strengthens the system at the same time that it purges it; and when taken daily in moderate doses will strengthen and build in the unusual rapidity. The Liver is one of the unusual regulators of the will strengthen and build item with unusual rapidity.
