LOST ALICE.

CHAPTER I.

Why did I marry her? I often asked myself the question in the days that succeeded our honey-moon. By right, I should have married no one. Yet I loved her, as I love her

She was, perhaps the strangest character raise my eyes to her grave, quiet face, as she on time. sits opposite me at dinner, that I do not comprehend her yet. There are many thoughts working in her brain of which I know nothing, and flashes of feeling look out at her eyes now and then, and go back again, as captives might steal a glimpse of the outer world through their prison bars, and turn to their brick walled solitude once more. She is my wife. I have had her, and hold her as no other can. She bears my name, and sits at the head of my table; she rides beside me in my carriage, or takes my arm as we walk; and yet I nnow and feel, all the time, that the darling of my past has fled from me for ever, and that it is only the ghost of the gay Alice, whom I won in all the bloom of her bright youth, that lingers near me now.

She was not a child when I married her. though she was very young. I mean that life had taught her lessons which are generally given only to the gray-haired, and had laid burdens upon her which belong of right to the old. She had been an unloved child, and at the age of sixteen she was left to herself, and entirely dependent on her own exertions. Friends and family she had none, so she was accustomed laughingly to say; but I have since found that her sisters were living, and in happy homes, even at the time when she accepted that awful trust of herself, and went out of the world to fulfil it. Of this part of her life she never speaks; but one who knew her then has told me much. It was a time of struggle and pain, as well it might have been. Fresh from the life of a large boarding school, she was little fitted for the bustle of a great selfish city; and the tears come to my eyes as I think, with a kind of wonder, on the child who pushed her way through difficulties at which strong men have quailed, and made herself a name, and a position, and a home. She was a writer.—at first a drudge, for a weekly press, poorly paid, and unappreciated. Bye-and-bye, brighter days dawned, and the wolf went away from the door. She was admired, read, sought after, and-above all-paid. Even then, she could not use the wisdom she had purchased at so dear a rate. She held her heart in her hand, and it was wrung and tortured every day.

"I may as well stop breathing as stop loving," she would say, with a happy smile .--"Don't talk to me about my folly. Let me go on with my toys; and if they break in my hand, you cannot help it, and I shall not come to you for sympathy." She was not beautiful; but something whether it was her bright, happy face, or the restless gaiety of her manner-bewitched people, and made them like her. Men did the maddest things imaginable for her sake; and not only young men in whom folly was pardonable, but those who should have been too wise to be caught by the sparkle of her smile, or the gay ringing of her laugh. She did not truct them; her early life had taught her better; but I think she liked them for awhile, till some new fancy came, and then she danced past them, and was gone. It was in the country that I met her first; that lay between us, and I had a kind of horror of her. I hardly knew why. I was a steady going, quiet short of lawyer, and hated

The Rodolph has a number of passengers. She went to Mound City yesterday afternoon, and left here at 10 o'clock last night. The Vigilance Committee shipped off on her fourteen vagabonds who were not needed here. The New York passed up at 8 o'clock with a good freight.

New Albany for repairs.

The river rose here one and a half inches yesterday, but yet lacks nearly two feet of getting over the Ohio levee at the steamboat landing. The Mississippi was falling as far down as Cape Girardeau when the Rodolph passed there. The Ohio fell a half inch at Paducah yesterday. Wabash is rising very rapidly, being higher than it has been known since 1823. Cumberland is falling, and Ten-

we have experienced the worst, unless a heavy wind should spring up, which would probably do considerable damage inside of the town, and perhaps injure to some extent the buildings on the levee. A very heavy drift was running in the Ohio yesterday, but nearly ceased before night. The Vigilance Committee are watching the town carefully, preventing depredations, and sending off suspected persons and those who desire to leave.

There is a quantity of stock collected upon the levees, with nothing to eat, and the committee yesterday offered to send all the cattle to high ground by the ferry-boat Manchester, We have altered our mind as but the owners refused to let them go. We are somewhat annoyed by people who are

Three hundred feet of the track of the Illinois Central, below Burkeville, eight miles above Cairo, have been washed away; and across that point there is water from Charleston, Mo., to the bluffs in Kentucky, a distance of nearly thirty miles.

The inhabited portion of Mound City is nearly all under water, more or less, and the passage from house to house is chiefly effected by means of boats and rafts. There is three feet of water in front of the Shelton House. The "Locust Mound," whence the place is named, has cracked in several places, and is slightly caving in. A false floor has been arranged in the hotel, which obviates nearly all inconvenience, and the landlord, Mr. Place, continues to supply his guests She was, perhaps the strangest character of her age. In her girlhood, I could not comprehend her; and I often think, when I water, but the trains all arrive and depart

Santa Anna's Manifesto to the Mexi-

In March, Gen. Santa Anna departed from his charming retreat, at Tuabago, in New Granada, where for two or three years he has been enjoying the felicities of repose and cock-fighting, and took up his line of march for Mexico. He was encouraged by the disturbed condition of that Republic to believe that he might once more put himself at the head of affairs. Accordingly he proceeded to the island of St. Thomas, where he has tarried for a season, it being a convenient point for observation. He is there still, having discovered no occasion as yet for presenting himself in Mexico, and there is very little probability that any call will for his services in that quarter will be made.

He has not, however, been an inattentive observer, though not required as an actor, and an address to his countrymen of portentous length has just made its appearance.-This manitesto is an egotistical rehersal of Santa Anna's alleged services, and a tedious recital of the wars of factions in Mexico .-We subjoin the conclusion of his manifesto:

"On arriving at the island last month. I learned with satisfaction that the execrable little tyrant, (Comonfort) after perjuring himself, had been cast down from the post which he never ought to have occupied; and that although faction made its last efforts, it could not again succeed in putting itself above the immense majority of the nation that despised it. I was much pleased, besides, to learn that an Administration had been formed, with which were connected the most honorable citizens, men of wisdom and true patriotism," &c.

Pennsylvania Railroad. Some of the Pittsburg papers having stated that "the Pennsylvania Railroad company has studiously avoided giving any assurance be reduced if the tonnage duty were removed, the president, J. Edgar Thompson, has written a letter to the Post, in which he says that "the freight to and from Pittsburg and stations along the line of the Pennsylvania Railroad, will receive the full advantage of the repeal of this tax or duty. The Company will be content with the increased business resulting from diminishing rates, and the consequent ability of their customers to travel more frequently over the road. The principle of 'discrimination' is not the result of the tonnage tax' or dependent upon it. It affects Philadelphia as well as Pittsburg, and is a law of commerce which cannot be disregarded. when there is a necessity of its application, without injury to this company, and to both of those cities. But the imposition of the tonnage tax must necessarily increase the amount of the discrimination in freight charges, while its repeal would remove all reasonable complaints on that account."

Impostures.

The order of the Postmaster General to the Postmasters throughout the country, directing them to retain all letters, received at their offices addressed to fictitious names, has fallen against him. He watched her one day as like a wet blanket upon a class of sharpers she went with another lady to pick strawberwho have grown rich in practising on the credulity of the public. There are a half dozen or more of this class located in Albany ened to kill her, and drew a revolver, when whose profits have been seriously affected by the order of the Postmaster General. One has grown to opulence by advertising that he is the manufacturer of "love powders," which "possess the power of charming to your embraces the proudest beauties and the most intractable of the sterner sex!" These powders are sent by mail at three dollars a box. They cannot cost the manufacturer much more than three cents each. He assures the all her supplications for mercy, fired at her gullible that the use of one box is generally sufficient; a second is almost certain to cantivate the coldest; but in rare instances a third must be resorted to. That, however, was never known to fail! The victim receives the first and second boxes in return for his six dollars; but he never gets a return for his third investment. He might write fifty times after that to the love powder man, but he will receive no answer. Another sharper advertises that he is the manufacturer of bogus coin, which will pass for good even at the mint-a description of coin, that will successfully stand all chemical tests and defy the shrewdest bank detectives. The rogue who would deal safely in bogus money sends five dollars to purchase some .--He receives in return ten dollars in good coin manufactured at the mint. The sharper is now out five dollars, but his victim, finding that the ten dollars sent him pass readily This fellow, it will be perceived, is complete-sum of fifty dollars he will impart to any lawyer a secret that will, beyond all chances, enable him to win every suit in which he may be engaged, whether of love or law .--The charm consists in the possession of the eyes of a very rare Egyptian fowl, which none can procure but the advertiser! Strange as it may seem this fellow has caught some flats and pocketed their money. When asked what return he proposed to make to one of his victims, he replied that he would go into State street, purchase a spring chicken, cook and eat the meat, extract the eyes and send them to the wistful lawyer, and if they could see further than his victim's eyes, of which he had no doubt, he might win the suit.

These sharpers bear fictitious names, and hence all communications to them are retained. They will be sent to the dead letter

It may not be amiss to say that the general order affects a few, in this city and elsewhere, whose business is deemed by the public comparatively legitimate, but who, for reasons best known to themselves, have thought proper to conduct it under names other than their own. The dfficulty with regard to them is very easily remedied. They have only to abandon their aliases and their letters cannot be withheld.—Albany Argus of the 8th.

Mrs. Barmingham, wife of the master mechanic of the Galena and Chicago Union railroad at this point, made a very narrow escape from drowning last week. It appears that she was being conveyed by a hired man to Pecatonica. When they were within about a mile and-a-half off that point they were compelled to leave their carriage and take to a boat, into which they stepped with two gentlemen, who were there waiting to be carried over. They had rowed some distance, when a dog, which was swimming alongside, put his paws upon the side of the boat, upsetting it and precipitating its occupants into about ten feet of water. Two of the men swam ashore. The other succeeded in reaching a tree near by, up which he clambered. Mrs. Barmingham, after sinking twice, was caught by the man in the tree, and held until persons from shore came to their relief, which was in about three-quarters of an hour. The only injury Mrs. B. sustained was the chafing of her arms, in holding to the tree, and severe footing in the tree, he found he had a necklace in the shape of a rattlesnake. He succeeded in releasing himself from his dangerous companion without injury. One of the gentlemen lost his wallet, containing over $100 in money, besides valuable

UNTINGDON WARM SPRINGS.

The WARM SPRINGS, at the base of Warrior's Ridge, five miles North of Huntingdon overlooking Standing-Stone Creek, and environed by romantic hills and woodlands, have been leased by the former proprietor of the Leamer House. The extensive Hotel buildings, Bath houses, &c., erected at great expense by Gen. A. P. Wilson, have been completed—and the Groves have been beautifully laid out and adorned. The Hotel Parlors and Chambers are airy and comfortably furnished; and the prospect, from the Veraudahs, for Beauty, cannot be excelled.

For half a century, these Springs have been celebrated for their Medicinal qualities, and the Great Virtue of the waters in Rheumatic or Chronic affections. The temperature of the water being 60½ degrees renders the Bathing delightful and invigorating. In the surrounding woods and mountains Game abounds, and the finest fish are caught in Stone creek.

By the 17th section of the Act to provide for the payment of certain claims against the Commonwealth approved the 24th of April, 1855, the Canal Commissioners are authorized to examine all claims against the Commonwealth contracted by Wm. S. Calohan, late Superintendent of the Portage Rail Road, and by J. D. Leet and J. A. Cunningham, late Supervisors on the Juniata Division, and which were not reported by those officers to the Board. In pursuance of this authority the Board of Canal Commissioners will meet in Hollidaysburg on Tuesday the 6th of July, and at Johnstown on Tuesday the 8th of July next, for the purpose of examining all such claims as are embraced in the provisions of said act.

Claimants will present their claims at either of these places as may be most convenient to them, and be preparathentication. authentication.

The claimants will perceive the necessity for their prompt attendance at the times and places above stated, as it may be the last opportunity the Board may have to examine and take action upon these claims.
