THE GLOBE.

Huntingdon, Wednesday, July 14, 1858.

Hon. Edw. Everett on the 4th of July. At the dinner at Fancuil Hall, Boston, on the 5th inst., Honorable Edward Everett re-Washington."

Mr. Mayor: I feel greatly honored by the manner in which you have called upon me to respond to the toast given to the memory of Washington. I have elsewhere thought it right to say that to be named in connection with him is an honor so far beyond any desert of mine, that there would be a degree of vanity in thinking it necessary to disclaim it. You will give me credit, if not for the self knowledge and humility, at least for the good taste, which would lead me to put far aside any such associations with that great name, which more than any other name of human renown has drawn to itself incommunicably the gratitude and affection of his own countrymen and the admiration of mankind. But I may, without presumption, return you my thanks for affording me the opportunity of giving utterance, on your behalf and on the behalf of the city of Boston, to the emotions with which the mention of that illustrious name, ever honored, ever dear, must warm the bosom of the true patriot on the anniversary of our national Independence.

I feel, sir, more and more as I advance in life, and watch with mingled confidence, solicitude and hope the developements of the momentous drama of our national existence, that it is well worth our while, that it is at once one of our highest social duties and important privileges to celebrate with ever-increasing solemnity-with annually augmented pomp and circumstance of festal commemoration—the anniversary of the nation's birth, were it only as affording a fitting occasion to bring the character and services of Washington, with ever fresh recognition, to the public notice, as the great central figure of that unparalleled group, that "noble army" or chieftains, sages, and patriots, by whom the Revolution was accomplished. This is the occasion, and here is the spot, and this is the day, and we, citizens of Boston are the men, if any in the land, to throw wide open the portals of the Temple of memory and Fame, and there gaze with the eyes of a reverent and grateful imagination on his benignant countenance and majestic form. This is the occasion and the day, for who needs to be told how much the cause of independence ewes to the services and character of Washington, to the purity of that stainless purpose, to the firmness of that resolute soul? This is the spot, this immortal hall, from which as from an altar, went forth the burning coals that kindled into a consuming fire at Lexington and Concord, at Bunker Hill and Dorchester Heights; we, citizens of Boston, are the men, for the first great success of Washington in the Revolutionary War -was to restore to our fathers their beloved and native town. This is the time-the accepted time-when the voice of the Father of his Country cries aloud to us from the sods of Mount Vernon, and calls upon us, East and West, North and South, as the brethern of one great household, to-be faithful to the dear bought inheritance which he did so much to secure to us.

Nor is the fame of Washington confined to our own country. Bourdaloue, in his eulogy on the military saint of France, exclaims-"The other Saints have been given by the church to France; but France in return, has Born into the family of nations in these latter days, receiving from foreign countries, inheriting from ancient times, the bright and instructive example of all their honored sons, it is the glory of America, in the very dawn of artillery, the 5th and 10th, and probably her national existence, to have given back to the world many names of which the lustre will never fade; a name of which neither Greece nor Rome, nor republican Italy, Switzerland, nor Holland, nor constitutional England, can boast the rival: "A character of virtues so happily tempered by one another." (I use the language of Charles James Fox,) "and so wholly unalloyed by any vices, is hardly to be found on the pages of histo-

It is deligiful to witness the generous re-cognition of Washington's merit, even in countries where, from political reasons, some backwardness in that respect might have been anticipated. Notwithstanding his leading agency in wresting a colonial empire from Great Britain, England was not slow to appreciate the grandeur and beauty of his character. Rufus King, in writing to General Hamilton in 1797, says: "No one who has not been in England can have a just idea of the admiration expressed among all parties for General Washington. It is a common observation that he is not only the most illustrious, but the most meritorious character which has yet appeared." Nor was France behind England in her admiration of Washington. Notwithstanding the uneasy relations of the two countries at the time of his decease, when the news of his death reached Paris, the youthful and fortunate soldier, who had already reached the summit of power by paths which Washington could never have trod, commanded the highest honors to be paid to him. A solemn funeral service was performed in the "Invalids," in the presence of all that was most eminent in Paris. "A sorrowful cry," said Fontanes, the orator chosen by Napoleon for the occasion, "has reached us from America, which he liberated. It belongs to France to yield the first | partment. response to the lamentations which will be echoed by every great soul. These august attached to the staff of General Harney. arches have been well chosen for the apotheosis of a hero."

How often, in those wild scenes of her revolution, when the best blood of France was Platte. shed by the remorseless and ephemeral tyrants, who chased each other dagger in hand during the Reign of Terror-how often did under the orders of Brigadier General Johnthe thoughts of Layfayette and his companions in arms, who had fought the battles of constitutional liberty in America, call up the image of the pure, the just, the humane, the | tional. unambitious Washington! How different would have been the fate of France, if her the 29th of June. victorious chieftain, when he had reached the giddy heights of power, had imitated the great example which he culogised! He might have saved his country from being sician he was and whose daughter he was crushed by the leagued hosts of Europe; he might have prevented the names of Moscow and Waterloo from being written in letters of blood on the pages of history; he might have escaped himself from the sad significance of those memorable words of Fontanes, on the occasion to which I have alluded, of Washington as a man who, "by a destiny in his native land, where he had held the abdomen, causing her death in three hours.

first rank, and which he had himself made sult!

But it is of course at home that we must of his own. I own, Mr. Mayor, that it has been to me a source of inexpressible satisfaction to find, amidst all the bitter dissenment-veneration for the name of Washington-is planted down in the very depths of the American heart. It has been my privilege, within the last two years, to hold it up to the renewed contemplation of my countrymen, from the banks of Penobscott to the banks of the Savannah, from New York to St. Louis, from Chesapeake Bay to Lake Michigan, and the same sentiments, expressed in the same words, have everywhere touched the same sympathetic chord in the American heart.

To that central attraction, I have been delighted to find the thoughts, the affections, the memories of the people, in whatever part of the country, from the ocean to the prairies of the West; from the land of granite and ice to the land of the palmetto and magnolia, instinctively turn. They have their sectional loves and hatreds, but before the dear name of Washington they are absorbed and forgotten, In whatever region of the country, the heart of patriotism warms to him .-As in the starry heavens, with the circling of the seasons, the pointers go round the sphere, but their direction is ever toward the pole .-'They may point from the East, they may point from the West, but they will point to the Northern star." It is not the brighest star in the heavens, as men account brightness, but it is always in its place. The meteor, kindled into momentary blaze from the rank vapors of the lower sky, is brighter.— The comet is brighter as it streams across the firmament,

"And from his horrid lair

But the meteor explodes; the comet rushes back to the depths of the heaven; while the lode-star shines steady at the pole, alike in summer and in winter, in seed time and in harvest. It shone for Columbus at the discovery of America; it shone for the pioneers of settlement; the pilgrims of faith and hope at Jamestown and Plymouth; it will shine for the mariner who shall enter your harbor to-night; it will shine for the navies which shall bear the sleeping thunder of your power while the flag of the Union shall brave the battle and the breeze. So, too, the character, the counsels, the example of our Washington; he guided our fathers through the storms of the Revolution; he will guide us through the doubts and difficulties that beset us; he will guide our children, while America shall hold her place in the family of nations.

UNTINGDON WARM SPRINGS.

The WARM SPRINGS, at the base of Warrior's Ridge, five miles North of Huntingdon, overlooking Standing-Stone Creek, and environed by romantic hills and woodlands, have been leased by the former proprietor of the Leamer House. The extensive Hotel buildings, Bath houses, &c., creeted at great expense by Gen. A. P. Wilson, have been completed—and the Groves have been beautifully laid out and adorned. The Hotel Parlors and Chambers are airy and comfortably furnished; and the prospect. fully laid out and adorned. The Hotel Parlors and Chainbers are airy and comfortably furnished: and the prospect, from the Verandalis, for Beauty, cannot be excelled.

For half a century, these Springs have been celebrated for their Medicinal qualities, and the Great Virtue of the waters in Rheumatic or Chronic affections. The temperature of the water being 69½ degrees renders the Bathing delightful and invigorating. In the surrounding woods and mountains Game abounds, and the finest fish are exactly in Stone creek caught in Stone creek.

Persons in pursuit of health or pleasure will find this a most delightful and healthful retreat; and its nearness to the Pennsylvania Railroad, and the cheapness of the rates charged guests, give it a decided advantage over any other watering place in the State. The Proprietor has had years of experience in the business, and no pains or trouble will spared to make guests comfortable.
