Raising Fruit Trees from Seed. M. M. Ferguson, Williamson co., Texas, and several other inquirers, who write that they live remote from nurseries, will not find it difficult to raise their own trees. The main thing necessary is to have access to a few is perceptible in the tenderness of the two. trees of desirable kinds to obtain grafts or Vegetables boiled in pure water are vastly buds from. Another difficulty in newly settled countries is to get suitable seeds for so far in the case of onions that they are alstarting. Sometimes it is necessary to obtain | most entirely destitue of either taste or odor, them from seedsmen or others at a distance, but as a general thing it is desirable to take them direct from the fruit itself, if possible.

Collect the seeds of the various kinds of fruits when fully ripe, separate from the pulp ed in pure water. Water which contains or flesh, and put in boxes of earth at once; or they may be put in the ground immediately. With many of them, especially the stone fruits, to allow them to become thoroughly able and flavoring principles of the vegetadry before planting, is nearly equivalent to | bles. destroying them, as they seldom vegetate. Where, from any cause, they become somewhat dry, and fail to vegetate the following Spring, it is better to leave them undisturbed another year, as they frequently sprout the second season. Seeds placed in boxes in the Summer and Fall should be exposed to sun and rain until late in the Fall, and even watered during dry weather. There is danger of too much wet and frequent freezing | After the third time, they are fit to dry, if the and thawing when left exposed during the Winter. A shed or dry cellar is a good situation for them till Spring. It is immaterial whether they freeze at all-they certainly should not freeze and thaw frequently. Plant them out thickly in beds in early Spring, covering the same as corn. We have often cracked the peach pits in the Spring, planting | ner will keep for years. the kernel only, but they will usually burst themselves unless they have become too dry. The afture culture consists in keeping down weeds and the ground loose, for one, and sometimes two years, when they are transplanted into rows some three to three-and-ahalf feet apart and eight to ten inches in the row, for grafting or budding with approved varieties. Having heretofore described these processes we omit them now.

The peach grows very rapidly and is frequently ready for budding during the first season, and may be transplanted into the orchard at the end of the second year. Apples, pears, plums and cherries, are usually budded when two years old, and set in the orchard two years afterwards. The practice of most tree growers is to bud or graft their trees close to the ground, when one or two years old; but it is a question with others whether it is not better to allow them to form a trunk, and either graft four or five feet from the ground, or perhaps better, graft the branches, saving the body of the seedling as a more natural and healthy stock. Our series of articles on the Orchard has valuable suggestions upon this and other topics, connected with fruit growing.-American Agri-

Don't Neglect the Grape Vines.

If our readers have given heed to our monthly hints on this subject, they have already begun the Summer pruning of their grapes. They have rubbed off the superfluous shoots which often spring from a single joint, leaving only one to grow, and that the strongest. And as numerous rampant suckers have sprung up around the stump of the vine, they have pulled them off, unless it so happened that they wanted a new shoot or two to supply the place of some defective branches, At present, then, their vines are not a mass of wild, ungoverened foliage, but the canes are just numerous enough, and so laid in as to well cover the trellis, and yet afford light and air to the leaves and fruit.

As the berries attain to the size of large shot, remember to pinch off the shoots two or three joints beyond the fruit. This will check the flow of sap and the formation of unnecessary wood, and will throw the forces of the vine into the clusters. After a little while, the buds below will push again. Let them grow an inch or two, and then give them grow an inch or two, and then give them a second pinching, and even a third, if necessary. By the time this last application has been made, growth will cease, and the grapes will begin to ripen.

If it is your object to get the greatest possible number of grapes, let the clusters all grow, large and small. But if you wish to grow only the best possible fruit, then take off the smaller clusters, here and there, all over the vine, and the clusters remaining will get all the food they need to develop themselves handsomely. It may cost you a slight struggle to throw away so many bunches; but if you mean to surprise your friends next September and October, with some splendid fruit, or if it is your ambition to carry off the prizes at the approaching Fairs, then don't hesitate between quantity and quality. And further, after you have fixed upon a lot of superior clusters in different parts of the vines, go over them carefully with the sharp-pointed scissors made for the greatest possible fruit, the sharp-pointed scissors made for the grown as a preventive of the system in recommending this medicine as a preventive for Feveraan Aou, Guill, Fever, and all Fevers and Feventice for the system in recommending this medicine as a preventive for Feveraan Aou, Guill, Fevera, and all Fevers and preventive for Feveraan Aou, Guill, Fevera, and all Fevers and preventive for Feveraan Aou, Guill, Fevera, and all Fevers and preventive for Feveraan Aou, Guill, Fevera, and all Fevers and preventive for Feveraan Aou, Guill, Fevera, and all Fevers and preventive for Feveraan Aou, Guill, Fevera, and all Fevers and preventive for Feveraan Aou, Guill, Fevera, and all Fevers and preventive for Feveraan Aou, Guill, Fevera, and all Fevers and preventive for Feveraan Aou, Guill, Fevera, and all Fevers and preventive for Feveraan Aou, Guill, Fevera, and all Fevers and preventive for Feveraan Aou, Guill, Fevera, and all Fevers and preventive for Feveraan Aou, Guill, Fevera, and all Fevers and preventive for Feveraan Aou, Guille Fevera, and with the sharp-pointed scissors made for the purpose, and nip out all the small or diseased berries, so that those remaining can swell to a larger and more uniform size. If you are a bungler, you will prick some of the fairest and best berries, and do more harm than good. PROF. O. J. Wood—Dear Sir: I have heard much said of the wonderful effects of your Hair Restorative, but having been so often cheated by quackery and quack nostrums, hair dyes, &c., I was disposed to place your Restorative in the same category with the thousand and one loudly trumpeted quack remedies, until I met you in Lawrence county some months since, when you gave me such assurance as induced the trial of your Restorative in my family—first by my good wife, whose hair had become very thin and entirely white, and before exhausting one of your large bottles, her hair was restored nearly to its original brown color, and had thickened and become beautiful and glossy upon, and entirely over the head; she Ann Arbor, November 6, 1856. original brown color, and had thickened and become beau-tiful and glossy upon, and entirely over the head; she continues to use it, not simply because of its beautifying effects upon the hair, but because of its healthful influence upon the head and mind. Others of my family and friends are using your Restorative, with the happiest effects; therefore, my scepticism and doubts in reference to its character and value are entirely removed; and I can and do most cordially and confidently recommend its use by all who would have their hair restored from white or gray (by reuson of sickness or age,) to original color and beauty. THE LIVER INVIGORATOR! PREPARED BY DR. SANFORD.—Compounded entirely from GUMS is one of the best purgative and Liver medicines now before the public, that acts as a Cathacric, easier, milder, and more effectual than any other medicine known. It is not only a Cathartic but a Liver remedy, acting first on the Liver to eject its morbid matter, then on the bowels and stomach to carry off that matter; thus accomplishing two purposes effectually, without any of the painful feeling experienced in the operations of most Cathartics. It strengthens the system at the same time that it purges it; and when taken daily in moderate doses will strengthen and build it up with unusual rapidity.
