Farmer and Gardener.

Re-seeding Meadows.

The Ohio Farmer recommends the following mode of re-seeding meadows :

Spread well-rotted manure over the meadows, either early in the spring, or at the commencemnt of the fall rains, and let this be followed by thorough harrowing, and afterwards rolling in the spring. If meadows are well harrowed in the latter part of April. and grass and seed sown upon them, and then rolled, the seed sown will readily grow.

If the meadows absolutely need plowing, we should prefer to wait until the fall; then plow, and give the land the benefit of the winter's frost. In the latter part of March, sow barley, and after it is well up, or about the first of May, sow about four lbs. of red clover, and half a bushel of orchard grass to the acre, with a proportion of any other grasses desired, and then roll. Or, instead of barley, spring wheat may at the proper time be sown, if preferred. Either of these crops are favorable to the growth of grass, shading it but little.

There are several reasons why meadows require re-seeding. One is this; under bad management the crop of hay is annually carried off, while no manure is supplied to the land to maintain its fertility. Another reason is, the almost universal preference given to timothy, which though excellent is not a perennial grass, and is therefore very difficult to retain for a succession of years.

Grapes.

The opinion is held by many that our grapes will do better if allowed a much more extensive, so to speak, standard growth, than is generally advised.

By many it is held, and scemingly with cause, that as our notice of pruning and treatment of the vine are derived from Europeans almost entirely, and as the grape is native with us, and is very different in many characteristics from that of Europe or the East, the system recommended and by many fullowed, is not the correct one for our country. The view taken by such, has support in the fact that vines upon houses, and running rampant upon trees and trellises often do well with very little care.

When we consider the cultivation of the vinc on a large scale, it comes to be a question simply of manure and labor, repaid by fruit. If we should cover house and barns, with vines and make broad trellises besides. the product would not compare with a small piece of well-cared for vineyard, the labor would be greater, and the product less sure. Our vines in habit and general character do not differ essentially from those of Europe. and they do as well under vineyard culture. Probably the characters of our winters, and especially of our summer weather, (between droughts and heavy rains we divide the sea-son; but there the climate is much moister with less rain and less sunshine to,)—will lead to a different mode of culture and pru-ning, though in the main European systems of vine-dressing will prevail. This modification, we think, will consist in leaving more wood in summer pruning, and leaving more wood in summer pruning, and in securing a good mulch for the roots in the heat of summer. The idea has been suggest-ed in connection with this subject of mulch-ing—that the mulch should be removed after August, and the ground lightened somewhat so that the warmth of the sun may the better penetrate the soil during the month of Sep-tember. Besides we are inclined to believe that the system of vine-dressing of France in securing a good mulch for the roots in the and Germany keeps the vines too small.-Ohio Farmer.

vass inside the barrel, dipped in melted brimstone. The fumes will penetrate all the pores, and destroy the must and correct the sourness. After the fermentation is over, draw off into elean barrels, and clarify it .---This can be done by mixing a quart of clean white sand with the whites of half a dozen eggs, and a pint of mustard seed, and pouring the mixture into the barrel. It may stand in the barrel, or, if a nice article is wanted, it should be put into some quart bottles, and corked.

This cider will be fit to drink in case of sickness, and will always bear a good price in market. It retails at twenty-five cents a bottle, and would bring at least two dollars a dozen, by the quantity. This is much better business than to make a poor article from decayed apples, in a slovenly manner, and sell it for two dollars a barrel.-Cor. American Agriculturist.

ANN ARDOR, November 6, 1856. ANN ARDOR, November 6, 1856. PROF. O. J. WOOD-Dear Sir: I have heard much said of the wonderful effects of your Hair Restorative, but hav-ing been so often cheated by quackery and quack nos-trums, hair dyes, &c. I was disposed to place your Resto-rative in the same category with the thousand and one loudly trumpeted quack remedies, until I met you in Lawrence county some months since, when you gave me such assurance as induced the trial of your Restorative in my family-first by my good wife, whose hair had become very thin and entirely white, and before exhausting one of your large bottles, her hair was restored nearly to its original brown color, and had thickened and become beau-tiful and glossy upon, and entirely over the head; she original brown color, and had thickened and become beau-tiful and glossy upon, and entirely over the head; she continues to use it, not simply because of its beautifying effects upon the hair, but because of its healthful influence upon the head and uind. THE LIVER INVIGORATOR !-

PREPARED BY DR. SANFORD.—Compounded en-trely from GUMS is one of the best purgative and Liver medicines now before the public, that acts as a Cathartic, easier, milder, and more effectual than any other medicine known. It is not only a Cathartic but a Liver romedy, acting first on the Liver to cject its morbid matter, then on the bowels and stomach to carry off that matter; thus accomplishing two purposes effectually, without any of the painful feeling experienced in the operations of most Cuthartics. It strengthens the system at the same time that it purges it; and when taken daily in moderate doses will strengthen and build it up with unusual rapidity. will strengthen and build it up with unusual rapidity.

How to make Good Cider.

There is hardly a tithe of cider made now as compared with forty years ago. Many of the old orchards have died out, and the temperance reform has prevented their renewal. The market for fine fruit has greatly expanded, and nearly all the trees now planted, are for the production of market apples. It took eight bushels of apples to make a barrel of cider, and the barrel sold for only a dollar. Apples now bring every year from fifty cents to a dollar a bushel. Fruit growers can hardly be expected to lament the change that is so much for their pecuniary interest.

Yet cider is still made all over the country, in small quantities, some for the apple-butter, some for vinegar, and still more for a beverage. When bottled and properly handled, it is as palatable, and much more wholesome, than most of the wines of commerce. In affections of the kidneys, it is an excellent remedy, and should have a place in every well-appointed cellar. It is a matter of some importance, that what cider is made, should be made in the best manner.

The apples should be well-ripened, but not in the least decayed. Every apple with the least speck of rot in it, should be removed, if you wish a first-rate beverage. The decayed and inferior apples may be reserved for making vinegar. Perfect cleanliness pressing, and the pomace permitted to stand and mellow in the vat, until it assumes a deep red color. Clean dry straw should be used in forming the cheese. If the straw be musty, the flavor will be communicated to the juice. If water be added, it will make it hard and unpleasant to the taste. The casks, also, in which it is put for fermentation, should be thoroughly cleansed, and finished off with a fumigation of brimstone .---This is done by burning a few strips of can-
