The Crystal Palace Destroyed. From the New York Enquirer, Oct. 6.

The Crystal Palace, situated on Reservoir-Square, 6th Avenue and 42d street, in which, up on his way a glass case containing a numthe Fair of the American institute was being held, was destroyed by fire shortly after five, his shoulders, he returned to the place where o'clock last evening. The fire originated in his son was standing, and both then started a room in the north nave used for the storage for the door, and reaching it much exhaustof some articles left in the Palace since the ed. Mr. Townsley estimates his loss at about Industrial Exhibition of 1851, and the alarm' $1000. was scarcely sounded throughout the building before the flames began to spread in all directions. The galleries being hung with goods, the fire was almost instantaneously communicated to the different sections of the Palace, and the spectators and exhibitors about 2000 in number, had scarcely time to save them-selves. The scene which followed was most fearful; the greatest consternation prevailed, all rushing for the doors, except some of the exhibitors, who made an effort to save their goods: The rush and press at the doors was for a time suffocating, but fortunately the Palace was well planned for means of egress, and the people soon found themselves safe ontside.

The floors of the building being of Georgia piae, burned like so much tinder, and soon. deprived the grand structure of much of its support. Many of the exhibitors clung to their valuable goods to the last moment possible, but very few managed to save anything. Some came out with their clothes on fire and narrowly escaped sufficiation. It was the general impression for some time, that a large number of persons had been shut off by the flames, those coming out last reporting several behind. The most painful apprehensions were entertained, at least thirty persons were thought to be lost in the flames, but fortunately such was not the case. Those supposed to be in the building at the time, had escaped out of opposite doors to those who had reported them lost.

In fifteen minutes after the discovery of the fire, the dome fell in, and in five or ten minutes more, the magnificent structure, for ser- north part of the edifice. and, leaping up, en years one of the principal ornaments of soon enveloped the galleries. The door at the city, was in a heap of ruins. Fragments the Fortieth street entrance was then thrown of the walls and portions of the iron frame remained. The contents continued to burn less than three minutes thereafter the interiand smoulder up to a late hour.

The firemen were early at the premises, but could do nothing to stop the progress of and neighboring buildings was very grand, the flames. The dome was ready to fall in and thousands of persons thronged to the when they got to work, and then, efforts were | scene of the conflagration. found necessary to prevent the fire from communicating to buildings on the streets adjoining.

At a late hour the painful impression of persons having been lost by the catastrophe was chiefly removed. No one was known to be missing, and it was believed that no lives were lost.

The fire was supposed to have been the work of an incendiary-some thought for the purpose of plunder. The entire loss is tho't to be upwards of a million of dollars. The Palace lately became the property of the city under the charter given the original owners, and was not known to be insured. The corporation does not insure its buildings. The Palace had been insured by its previous owners for $50,000. It originally cost $700,000 to $800,000 !

Some of the individual loses were large. Robert Rait, jeweller in Broadway, lost a case of diamonds valued at $80,000; the Castleton State Company lost $5000 worth of property; the New York Steam Heating Company $6000; Mr. Chickering, plano manufacturer, $10,000: the Washington statue was worth $15,000; the Amazon $10,000.

The following is the statement of Captain Maynard, of the municipal Police :

The fire originated at the Forty-second clock. This entrance is usually kept closed, and telling of narrow escapes.

Messrs. Hathaway & Co., of Maine, saved a portion of their astronomical instruments. Those lost are valued at about $2200. Of the fire machines, the carriage of No. 1 Hose Company (Eagle,) do, of No. 6 Hose Company (Croten,) engine of No. 16 (Gothom,) Hook and ladder No. 11 (Mutual.) and engine of No. 28 (Pacific.) were destroyed .-Only two were saved-No 38 (Oceanic) hose carriage, and No. 40 (Empire) hose carriage. Mr. James Smith, who had charge of the American watches and watch materials, exhibited by Appleton, Tracy & Co., valued at $6,000 succeeded in saving them all without injury, but suffered severely himself from the inhalation of hot-air smoke. :Mr. Wallis, the agent of Howard & Davis, exhibitors of clocks and watches assisted Mr. Smith in his perilous undertaking, but failed to save any had the pleasure of being present, as being of the valuable stock of Messrs. II. & D., anything else than a failure. The Exhibiwith the exception of a small case of watches,

Mr. Godfrey, a visitor in the Palace, says that at 51 o'clock he was in the lower part of attendance, spoke well for the right spirit exthe building near the machinery. Ile heard the cry of fire, and saw the women much alarmed coming down from the galleries.— He then moved under the domo, when he saw the fire and large volumes of smoke issuing from the nave toward Forty-second street. By that time every one in the galleries had got down. Some of the employces got a stream of water from one of the Palace ydrants, but it seemed to have no effect.--The fire increased rapidly, and deuse volumes of smoke and flames came from the open, which created a great draught, and in or was one mass of flames. Mr. Godfrey then made his escape. The view from the street,

The room in which the fire originated contained a large quantity of models and other property that was on exhibition at the World's Fair, and the Directors of the Institute were under bonds not to disturb anything therein, or occupy the apartment as long as the property was in dispute betwen them and the ori ginal Directors of the Exhibition.

There was a rumor that the Palace had been set on fire, and, in fact, this rumor was very general, and was talked about in every direction. Some said the gas leaked, and that the escaped gas ignited; but this idea was cept of our thanks. scoffed at. Numbers asserted that there was a strong smell of camphene or turpentine from the room, and that no such volumes of smoke could be caused otherwise than by the ignition of turpentine. It is said that a man was seen coming from the room with his coat collar turned over the back of his head in order to disguise himself. The party, it is said, is known, and will no doubt be arrested at an early moment. One hundred policemen were left in charge of the place in order to prevent thieves from prowling about and stealing any articles that might have escaped destruction. The office. bar-room, and reading rooms of the Fremont House, on Fortieth street, opposite the Palace was filled with people, among whom were | farmers to make it convenient to see "Nor-

The County Fair.

As almost everybody was in town, during the Fair, last week, it is almost unnecessary for us to refer to it. It came fully up to our expectations-and was considered by all who anything else than a failure. The Exhibition itself, was very creditable to the citizens of the county-and the crowd of people in isting with them. By reference to reports of Committees, in our paper of to-day, the reader can form some idea of the extent and grandeur of the Exhibition.

PRESENTS .- We came in for a large share of presents from our friends, during the Fair. From Mrs. CHRISTIAN LONG, we received a plate of fine grapes.

From Mrs. JACOB WEAVER, we received a three-bushel bag full of cabbage, pumpkins, beets, squashes and apples. Also, maple sugar, apple butter, home-made molasses, grape jelly and vinegar.

rior bread. From Mr. DAVID HARE, a few of the finest apples brought to town this season. From Mr. JACOB HETRICK, a basket full of corn and mammoth onions.

From SAMUEL S. BARR, of Hollidaysburg, two corn brooms-the best made we ever saw. Mr. BARR manufactures the same kind of brooms at his manufactory, in Hollidaysburg, where persons can get a supply, wholesale or retail.

"NORMAN."-This valuable horse, owned by Mr. ABRAM LEWIS, of Mt. Union, was on exhibition at our County Fair last week, and was greatly admired by everybody, particularly by all good judges of horses. He is a splendid animal-heavy, and of great power and speed, and his gentleness and docility attracted universal admiration. His Sire, "Young Norman," is of the celebrated trotting stock of Canada and Vermont, and when last sold brought the handsome sum of four thousand dollars. We would advise all

THE ELECTION .- We go to press before receiving any returns of the election held on vesterday. We might predict the result, in the State, in the District, and in the county, but we shall patiently wait the returns, which we expect will be full enough in a few days to enable us to know who' has been elected, and who has been defeated. We shall be greatly disappointed if, at least a portion of our county ticket is not successful. Full particulars will be given in our next. P. S.-Wednesday noon.-The State has gone against Porter, by thousands. PERSU-ING, is also defeated. Our county ticket, ditto. This does not agree with the prediction we would have made.

and is so arranged as to form a lumber room. and there is no fire anywhere in the neighborhood of it. I was standing at the public entrance on Sixth avenue, and the first intimation I had was the cry of "fire." There was then a rush of people for this entrance, which was the only one open. In connection with the visitors, exhibitors, and employees, there were about two thousand people in the building, all of whom appeared to rush for the door. In connection with the managers, I kept them back so that no accident should happen by their piling on top of each other while going down the steps. From the time the fire started until the crowd passed out, which was not over fifteen or twenty minutes, the building was filled with smoke and flames from the dome to the floor, and the speed of the fire was so great that no one of the exhibitors had time to save anything except what they could carry easily out. The only property saved at the Sixth avenue entrance was a few light articles which the exhibitors carried in their hands, one light carriage, and a glass case containing the gold and silver medals, silver cups, intended to be awarded to the exhibitors at the present Fair. The visitors had for the most part got out before there was much spread of the fire, and when all were pretty much out I was startled by a tremendous crash or fall of glass. I rushed to see what caused it, when I found the fire immediately over my head on the Sixth avenue entrance. The last thing taken out was the case above mentioned, and the flames leaped after us as we left the edifice with it.  $\Lambda$  young man named Smith, in the employ of the Institute, was about the last in the building, and saved a case of valuable watches .-In an almost incredible short space of time the dome fell in, and soon rendered the structure a perfect wreck.

Mr. Smith says he was at the extreme end of the Fortieth street gallery, engaged in fixing a case, when he heard the alarm of fire. He finished the case and closed the door, and then went toward where the fire was. The smoke was so intense that he almost suffocated. He saw the fire at the Forty-second street entrance, and then ran back to the case of watches, which he carried or dragged along the gallery, down a flight of stairs, and so out into Fortieth street. When he came out the dome was all in flames, and he was, he thinks, the last one in the building.

At the time of the conflagration there were about fifteen hundred people in the Palace, including exhibitors and employees, all of whom immediately rushed for the Sixth Avenue entranco, the only means of egress. We learn that all succeeded in effecting their escape without injury. For about fifteen minutes after the fire was discovered, the entire building was filled with dense smoke and flames, which prevented the exhibitors from saving their valuable goods. After much exertion and exposure to imminent peril, one or two of the many who had goods on exhibition succeeded in removing a porton of their stock from the building.

Among these was Mr. L. D. Towsley. manufacturer of revolvers, who was within the Palace at the time the alarm of fire was raised. He had with him his son, a boy of much enlarged and greatly improved in its is \$40,000, of which \$30,000 has been subabout ten years of age, whom he directed to general appearance $\Lambda$ ll th bar-rooms in the vicinity were thronged, and everybody seemed desirous of informing everybody about the fire, and it was astonishing to one walking about from place to place to hear of the many that were lust in the building. PROPERTY LOST.

Owing to the large number of articles on exhibition, no estimate can at present be formed of the loss. We give below a list of all the houses whose names we could ascertain.

Hinckley & Egery lost one horizontal steam engine worth about $2,500. Woodruff & Beach, Hartford, an engine worth about the same sum. The Newark Engine Company lost an engine of similar capacity and value. Corliss & Nightingale of Providence, R. I., lost an engine. There were also two small engines lost belonging to a manufacturer in Paterson, worth perhaps $1,200 each. An Ericsson engine, worth $1,200, was also destroyed, and a small engine and boiler worth about $800.

A fine collection of circular knitting machines, worth about $5,000; was lost.

Rathbone & Co., lost several of their Albanian stoves. The Tiverton Coal Company lost a considerable amount of their coal, which had been taken to the Palace to drive the engines. Hesker lost a large quantity of flour, farina, &c. Houghton & Co., lost a number of magnificent rosewood bedsteads. Boardman & Gray lost several fine pianos, worth about $5000 Chickering, 26 pianos, worth between $7000 and $8000; Steinwass & Sons, 7 pianos valued at $3000 to $4000; John A. Holder also lost several planos. Genin lost a case of fancy articles worth $6000.

Several of Dick's anti-friction presses and utlery, in charge of Mr. Stackey, valued at 34000, were lost.

Wm. H. Andrews were lost. Robert Rait lost jewelry and watches to the amount of $19,000. About two hundred ranges and stoves, belonging to various exhibitors, and worth $4000 or $5000.

About fifteen very fine carriages, worth $10,000 or $12,000, were destroyed.

Mr. Treadwell, the proprietor of the saloon at the Palace, lost about $4000.

Among the works of art lost, were all the Photographic and Daguerreotype pictures .--There were but three leading artists, however, in the Fair. The chief of these was Mr. Faris, of the well known "Root Gallery," corner of Broadway and Franklin street .--Mr: Faris had a very fine assortment-one of the best ever got up for an exhibition-all of which are gone. His loss at the least valuation must be nearly $2000, while the real value of the pietures, many of which cannot be replaced, is far greater.

penses only $22 50 per quarter.

pordering upon the meditaranian the crop is variously reported, but upon the whole may be regarded as equal to, if not exceeding an average. Egypt will furnish an average. Spain and Portugal will not require any supplies from other countries. In Belgium and 4000, were lost. Two large centrifical pumps belonging to the Baltie regions, including Northern Germany and western Russia; the yield is below an average, although high prices may induce exports to some extent. In France there is a fair crop of wheat and ryc, oats being inferior. The cereal crop of England exceeds the average, and a portion of the extraordinary wheat yield of last season still remains in the hands of farmers, to be added to this year's harvest. Other breadstuffs are somewhat under the average. In Ireland all kinds of produce are abundant, compared with recent years. The wheat crop of Scotland is excellent, other crops being medium, and possibly below. On the whole, the United Kingdom will this year require smaller imports of grain than in ordinary seasons. The supplying power of Central Russia is not yet determined.
