The Honsekeeper.

As cool weather is coming on, and the flies are disappearing, it is time to think about making sausages; hence we present the following methods of making them, from the repertoire of a noted cook:

PORK SAUSAGES .- There are many receipts for the making of pork sausages. Several counties have their own peculiar receipts, the peculiarity in their sausages being the quantity and variety of herbs which they introduce, the prevalence of some particular one, giving the flavor, as well as the peculiarity to each. The presence of so many herbs is, however, not always considered an agreeable feature; and many palates are offended at that which forms to others the great merit.-The following is a very simple receipt:

Take of the fat of pork, one pound, that of the loin of a large, richly fed pig, or the inward fat of a small one; chop it finely with half a pound of lean pork; add to it four or five sage leaves finely chopped, some lemon, thyme in a small quantity, and three dessert spoonfulls of crumbs of bread, powdered .--Be careful not to put too much of the latter, as it tends to turn the sausage sour if kept. Amalgamate these ingredients well; dust on grated nutmeg, mace and cloves in powder, and finish with black pepper and salt, being sure to season well; the meat may then be put into the skins, or may be put in jars covered down from the air, to be used for rolls, or stuffing, or any required purpose.

All skin must be pared from the fat before which may impair the taste when eaten.

lean pork, young, white, and delicate, put suet; the pork must first be chopped very fine; add three dessert spoonfulls of bread which has been dipped in Port wine, dried, and grated fine; work it together with the yolks of three eggs smoothly beaten; season it with pepper and salt, and dried sage: a very little cavenne may be introduced, and a very small piece of garlic; work the whole paste; it may then be put into wide skins, or pressed down into jars, for future use; it is cut into square pieces, dredged with flour, fried in fresh butter, and sent to the table on a toast, as a breakfast dish.

Another Way .-- Chop particularly fine, about two or three pounds of lean pork, and an equal quantity of fat; have ready some sage, seive, or chopped very fine, a small piece of head might be watered from the roof. shallot, a few grains of ground cloves; season it with pepper and salt; mix a few fine bread-crumbs up with it; have your skins of the discharges at the caves. In the abovefore you fry them; you may do them in the oven, if it should be hot.

Another Way .- Chop the pork as before; well with pepper and salt; mix it all well to- same depth, would be sufficient for 800 bar-fry them, as above.

Brown Bread Another Way. [From the Germantown Telegraph.]

Several modes of making brown bread have already been published in the Telegraph. but it is believed the subject is not exhausted. and that the following plan may still suit some:-

Take flour made of good wheat, ground down without bolting; use good yeast only for raising; make up and bake as every good bread-maker does with fine flour. It is better to bake in a moderate heat and rather longer than required for fine flour. By adding about a table-spoonfull of good molasses (when kneading) for every ordinary sized loaf, the bread will retain its moisture and softness, till several days or a week old.

To have it less brown, make the sponge of fine flour, and when light, knead into it as much of the bran flour as will make the dough stiff enough for moulding into loaves.

As this kind of bread is particularly adapted to persons in delicate health, and invalids, all acids and alkalies should be avoided in its preparation. Made in the foregoing plain, simple manner, it is a very superi-

Too much can hardly be said in favor of good, light, sweet bread, forming as it does so staple an article of food; while that which | ferent diameters, are as follows: is sour, heavy, of imperfectly baked, as frequently happens, is not only unwholesome at best, for any one, but entirely unfit to be eaten by persons of weak digestion. To the dyspeptic, sedentary, and those of costive habit, good bread of unbolted wheat flour, is an almost invaluable article of daily food. It is not only easier of digestion, but by its coarseness and roughness, acts mechanically, and aids in producing regular habits of the sytem indispensable to good health.

columns. They are worth a careful perusal ccase.

How to Make Tomato Figs.—Pour boiling | THE GREAT BEAUTIFIER water over the tomatoes in order to remove the skins; then weigh them and place them in a stone jar, with as much sugar as you have tomatoes, and let them stand two days; then pour off the sirup, and boil and skim it until no scum rises. Then pour it over the tomatoes, and let them stand two days, as before, then boil and skim again. After the third time, they are fit to dry, if the weather is good; if not, let them stand in the sirup until dry weather. Then place on large earthen plates or dishes, and put them in the sun to dry, which will take about a week, after which pack them down in small wooden boxes, with fine white sugar between each layer. Tomatoes prepared in this manner will keep for years.

For the Karmer.

Farm Cisterns.

We copy the following valuable article from the Country Gentleman. We say VAL-UABLE-and it will prove so to every farmer or gardener who has a short supply of water, and contemplates providing more through the aid of a cistern. The article should, indeed, be preserved for future reference:

Our readers have heard of the man who was from year to year annoyed with a leaky roof-because, when the weather was fair, it did not need repairing, and when raining, he could not mend it. In the same way, some farmers neglect to make provision for watering domestic animals, until drought actually arrives, and then they cannot. We well chopping, and every sinew removed from the know one, who, during the present dry lean pork, as well as any bone, or anything weather, drives his cattle a mile to water, at the same time that he has roof enough on his Another Way .- To a couple of pounds of large barn to give them all the drink they need, if a cistern of proper capacity had been three-quarters of a pound of minced beef prepared to retain it. The barn cost a thousand dollars; the cistern might be built for fifty-yet every animal of his large herd has to travel nearly thirty miles each week for necessary drink. He might construct a cistern now, but it will be another year before he can derive benefit from it, and so he puts off the labor.

His barn is about 35 by 70 feet-if three well together in a mortar, until it forms a feet of rain falls annually, three cubic feet of water will be afforded by every square foot of surface-more than 7000 cubic feet from the whole roof, which would be about 1700 barrels. This would be enough to water daily, the year through, (each animal drinking each day, four twelve-quart pailfulls,) thirteen head of cattle; but if this water were reserved for the dry season only, either dry or green, either passed through a or when small streams are dry, thirty or forty

Every man, almost, makes his eisterns too small, and often they do not hold a tenth part ready cleaned, then fill them; or if pre- mentioned instance, it would not be necesferred, roll into balls, and fry them; you sary to construct one large enough to hold will tie them the length you wish the sau- the entire 1700 barrels. If the cattle were sages to be; prick the skins with a fork, be- watered from it the year round, and its contents thus constantly drawn as it fills, one large enough to hold 400 barrels would do; but if used for the dry season only, it should only add half the quantity of lean yeal, a be more than double. A cistern 14 feet in pound of suct chopped equally fine; a French | diameter and 12 feet deep, would hold about roll soaked in milk, but no crust; season it | 400 barrels-20 feet in diameter, and the rels. If built under ground, and contracted Another Way.—Chop pork as before, and | towards the top, it would require to be a little an equal quantity of fat, and the quantity of larger in dimensions, to allow for the conlean yeal, and the same of suet, and two or tracted space. Such a contraction would be three handfulls of the bread-crumbs; have absolutely necessary to admit of convenient ready a few sage leaves, a few of knotted and safe covering at the top, and could be majoram, and one shallot; pound all well to- effected without any difficulty, if built of gether; season with white pepper and salt; | masonry. An ignorant stone-mason whom either put them in skins, or roll them, and we once employed to construct a small cistern of this character, stoutly refused to contract the walls, asserting positively that they would immediately tumble in if thus made to lean, apparently knowing nothing of the security of the arch, which this would possess on every side. The pressure of the water outward, would be counterbalanced by the pressure of the earth against the exterior, especially if well rammed in as the wall

Now, at the present time, while the inconvenience of an ample supply of water is felt, and while there will be no annoyance from the streams which at other times ooze through the earth into the excavations made for cisterns, every deficient farmer should take hold of the business, and construct such as may

DOVER, N. II., Feb. 2d, 1857.

PROF. O. J. WOOD & CO.—Gents: Within a few days we have received so many orders and calls for Prof. O. J. Wood's Hair Restorative, that to-day we were compelled to send to Boston for a quantity, (the 6 dozen you forwarded all being sold,) while we might order a quantity from you. Every bottle we have sold seems to have produced three or four new customers; and the approbation, and patronage it receives from the most substantial and worthy citizens of our vicinity, fully convince us that it is A MOST VAL-UABLE PREPARATION.

Prof. O. J. Wood—Dear Sir: Some time last summer we were induced to use some of your Hair Restorative, and its effects were so wonderful, we feel it our duty to you and the afflicted, to report it.

Our little son's head for some time had been perfectly covered with sores, and some called it scald head. The covered with sores and some called it scald head. The hair almost entirely came off in consequence, when a friend, seeing his sufferings, advised us to use your Restorative; we did so with little hope of success, but, to our surprise, and that of all eur friends, a very few applications removed the disease entirely, and a new and luxuriant area of hair soon started out, and we can now say that our boy has as healthy a scalp, and as luxuriant a crop of hair as any other child. We can, therefore, and do hereby recommend your Restorative, as a perfect remedy for all diseases of the scalp and hair.

GARDINER, Maine, June 22, 1855.

Prof. O. J. Wood—Dear Sir: I have used two bottles of Professor Wood's Hair Restorative, and can truly say it is the greatest discovery of the age for restoring and changing the Hair. Before using it I was a man of seventy. My Hair has now attained its original color. You can recommend it to the world without the least fear, as my case was one of the world without the least fear, as my case was one of the worst kind.

Yours respectfully,
