Huntingdon, Wednesday, Nov. 3, 1858. The Use of Coal--- A Curious Delusion. The anthracite coal of Pennsylvania has been used for only thirty-one years, and yet the consumption amounts already to the enormous figures of 3,500,000 tons. The Philadelphia correspondent of the New York Tribune, relates the following most extraordinary facts respecting the prosicution which the first person suffered who brought the first sample of coal to Philadelphia. It is hardly Thirty-one years ago, the first coal came to Philadelphia—being ten wagon loads, hauled over the mountains by George Shoemaker, of Pottsville. Few could be induced to purchase it, and most of these were wholly unsuccessful in their attempts to make it burn. Everybody considered it a mere stone. Mr. Shoemaker was denounced in all quarters as a cheat, and measures were taken to arrest him for swindling; but he escaped arrest by leaving the city by a circuitous

The most remarkable features in this extraordinay speculation, was that Mr. Shoemaker himself, did not know how to make the coal burn. He was therefore unable to to convince the public that it would ignite.-Had he experimented at home, and brought with him a grate or stove, in which to kindle a successful fire, the exhibition would have no doubt, hastened, full ten years the development of the coal business. He returned home disgusted at the beligerent temper of our citizens, and heart sick at the ill-success of his adventure. His reputation as an honest man, was rescued, however, by an iron master in Delaware county, into whose hands some of the repudiated mineral fell. He tried the coal, caused it to burn freely, and with intense heat, and was so pleased with it that he proclaimed the fact in the newspa-pers. This led others to try, and they also Wade may be indicted and convicted of burpers. This led others to try, and they also succeeded, the prejudice was removed, and consumption went on from this beginning until it last year reached the enormous quantity 3,436,862 tons.

Singular Desertion of a Young Married Lady.

A Scotchman of the name of J. J. Clark, a few years ago, upon the death of his father, (a wealthy Glasgow merchant, who had been engaged in the West India trade,) became possessed of a handsome fortune. Shortly afterward, he married a young Scotch lady of education, engaging manners, and prepossessing appearance, with whom he came to this country about six months ago, and after visiting all the principal cities and places of interest, recently went to Philadelphia and made a sojourn there of about three weeks, during which period they stopped at the house of Mrs. Stanley, No. 307 Spruce street, where Mr. Clark privately prepared himself during the visits of his wife among her acquaintances. When ready for a start, he accompanied his wife to the residence of one of her friends, and there left her under pretence of going to see a ship launched, when he returned to his boarding house and carried off his baggage, and with his servant started for parts unknown, taking with him behind him a letter addressed to his wife, work up. He soon ascertained that Mrs. C. had only $2 of the $10 left, whereupon he invited the distracted young lady (for she is vet only 19 years old,) to go to his house and become one of his family while he was engaged in ferreting out some information for her. The first clue of the runaway was, that he had put up at Lovejoy's Hotel, under the name of Muir—that, with his servant, he had started for Albany the day before. Upon this discovery, Mrs. Clark, provided with a passage ticket, started for Albany in pursuit. On her arrival there, she ascertained that her faithless liege lord had stopped one day and night at Stanwix Hall, and while there he had got his servant into a state of intoxication, and then given him the slip, starting off westward alone, and that the servant, on coming to his senses, had gone in pursuit of his master. Mrs. C. followed in the lightning train, and ere this, it is hoped and believed, she will have overtaken her truant husband. What motive Mr. C. can have had for thus singularly attempting to desert his wife, is quite a mystery.—N. I. Tribune, Oct. 25th.

Singular Attachment of One Bird for Another --- A Crow Starving Himself

Some weeks since, Mr. Pratt, the senior proprietor of the Spencer House, owned an owl and a crow that had apparently formed a deep attachment for each other. They were always together, and seemed to hold a kind of mutual conversation, which, however unintelligible to others, must have given them great satisfaction. The crow would often bring food to the owl, and was always anxious to do some act that would prove acceptable. The firm friendship existing between the two birds, was the subject of general remark by the guests and habitues of the hotel, who frequently watched them by the hour. Their intimate association and kindness were really curious to witness, and elicited many speculations upon the nature of birds and their capability of affection. One day the owl fell ill, and the crow, ever at his side, expressed as much sorrow and sympathy as a human creature could, appealing ever and anon by looks to passers-by, as if inviting aid and comfort to his sick friend. The owl was dangerously indisposed for nearly a week, and at the termination of that period died, in spite of every effort of the crow to prolong his existence.

The crow was inconsolable. Nothing could banish the memory of his feathery friend, he been a poet, he would have written an-

would "die first"—and he did. One morning, early, the senior proprietor, but bones, not a particle of flesh remaining beneath his ebony plumage. The crow had been true to his friendship as an ornithological Orestes, and had resolutely conquered, serving after the loss of his "other soul"— tions of that early period.—Fairfield (lowa) the owl.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Probable Murder.

An unknown man was found lying on the track opposite Mr. Wood's Hotel in Altoona, on Wednesday morning. He was first discovered, about five o'clock, with life entirely in the case of the control of the city from Ozyka, found himself sitting vis a vis with a company of strangers in the had been murdered, and by others that he had been murdered, and by others that he fell in attempting to get on the Express train going east. There were no scars or bruises on his person, with the exceptions of a wound received on the left side of his head, which fractured his skull, and caused death. The wound was evidently given with a slung shot or some other round or blunt instrument.—
From letters and other documents about his person, it is thought that he halis from Chicago; he had also a ticket from that place to New York, and had in his possession thirty-ince dollars in quarters and halves. LAR CASE.—One night last week, Jane Wade, a girl, about twenty years of age, broke into the State Prison, Connecticut. She scaled the stone wall that encloses the prison by climbing a tree. The wall was about twenty feet high. From the yard, she crawled into the kitchen, which is separated from the male prisoners, and is not guarded at night, through an outlet for the ashes, which connects with the yard. She slept in this ash hole for six nights, and when found had six | empty mush or pudding pans by her side, which she had taken from the kitchen when full. On Sunday night last, she snored so loud in her ash-hole bed as to attract the attention of the matron, and after a search she was found and dragged out. The opinion of an eminent lawyer has been given that Miss Wade may be indicted and convicted of burglary—she having broken into the State Prison in the night season, and stolen six pans full of meal pudding! There is not hardly a parallel case on record. hardly a parallel case on record.

INFORMATION WANTED .- Some two months since we published an item stating that John R. Reilly, a son of Andrew Reilly, of Laneaster, Pa., had left his home on the 19th of January, 1858. He has not since been heard of; his parents are naturally anxious about him, and we again give a description at their request :- He is about twelve years old, four feet six inches high, has a very fair complection and straight hair, two large teeth in front. He is a very intellgent boy, and talks rapidly. He wore, when he let home, a blue cap and drab roundabout and pants. His parents request that no one will harbor him, out assist in restoring him to his family, and for any information leading to his recovery, a suitable reward will be given. Letters addressed to Andrew Reilly, Lancaster, Pa., will be promptly answered. Our exchanges will confer a favor on an afflicted family by giving circulation to the above.

> THE KICK THAT KILLED BOTH .- While a horse was standing on Old street, near Sycamore, a dog passed, underneath him, and received a kick which completely smashed his skull, killing him instantly. The owner of the horse soon after left the city, but had not proceeded far before the horse fell and expired. Upon examination, his left hind foot, with which he had kicked the dog, was found to contain a piece of bone several inches in length, apparently part of the dog's jaw bone burried into the quick, or tenderest part of, the hoof. He died of tetanus.—Petersburg Express.

D. M. BUTTS,

Teacher in the English Department. Teacher of Music and Drawing.

A. S. NOBLE, Monitor. This Institution, formerly an Academy for young gentlemen, alone, has been carried on successfully, for the last year, as a Male and Female Institute. It will, in future, be carried on as a school for both sexes. Those completing the regular course of study pursued in the Institution, will be cutified to DIPLOMAS.

COMMERCIAL DEPARTMENT. The course of study in this Department, is such as to give thorough instruction in Single and Double Entry Book-keeping, Mercantile Calculations, Penmanship, &c. Students can take up this branch of study, either in connection with other studies, or devote their whole time to it alone. Each student receives separate instruction.

The Principal can assure proposts and grantings that The Principal can assure parents and guardians, that they cannot send to a school, where their children will be they cannot send to a school, where their children will be less exposed to temptation. No one, whose moral character is known to be bad, will be received. Immorality will be a sure cause of dismissal. For further particulars, address W. H. WOODS, [October 13'58-4t.] Shade Gap, Huntingdon co., Pa.
