An Interesting Sketch.

NIGHT BEFORE THE WEDDING.

In the quaint old village of Thyndon, England, dwells its good old rector, a widower with one unmarried daughter. The other lives at Merton's End-as a happy and adored wife. We have something to tell of that fair dame: a deed so courageous that the village has been two or three degrees prouder of itself ever since it happened.

The Squire had fallen in love with the fair Adelaide, and the wedding day was to be on the morrow of that on which our adventure happened. Grand preparations were made for the wedding; and the rector's fine old plate, and the costly gifts of the bride, were discussed with pride and pleasure at the Hare and Hounds, in the presence of some strangers, who had come down to a prize fight which had taken place in the neighborhood.

That night, Adelaide, who occupied a separate room from her sister, set up late-long after all the household had retired to rest. She had had a long interview with her father, and had been reading a chapter to which he directed her attention, and since had packed up her jewels, etc. She was consequently still dressed when the church clock tolled for midnight. As it ceased, she fancied she heard a low noise like that of a file. She listened, but could distinguish nothing clearly. It might have been made by some of the servants still about, or perhaps it was only the creaking of some of the old trees. She heard nothing but the sighing of the winter wind for many minutes afterwards. Housebreakers were mere myths in primitive Thyndon, and the bride elect, without a thought of fear, resumed her eccupation .-She was gazing on a glittering set of diamonds, destined to be worn at the wedding, when her bed room door softly opened. She turned, looked up, and beheld a man with a black mask, holding a pistol in his hand, standing before her.

She did not scream, for her first thought was for her father, who slept in the next room, and to whom any sudden alarm might be death, for he was old, feeble, and suffering from heart complaint. She confronted the robber boldly, and addressed him in a whisper: "You are come," she said, "to rob us. Spare your soul the awful guilt of murder. My father sleeps next to my room, and to be startled from his sleep would kill him. Make no noise, I beg of you."

The fellow was astonished and cowed .-"We won't make no noise." he replied sullenly, "if you give us everything quietly." Adalaide drew back, and let him take her jewels-not without a pang, for they were precious love-gifts, remarking at the same time that two more masked ruffians stood at the half-opened door. As he took the jewel case and watch from the table, he demanded her purse. She asked him if he intended to go into her father's room, She received a surly affirmative, "He was'nt agoin' to run a risk, and leave half the tin behind!" She proposed instantly, that she should go herself, saying: "I will bring you whatever. you wish, and you may guard me thither, and kill me if I play false to you." The fellow consulted his comrades, and after a short parley, they agreed to the proposal, and with a pistol pointed at her head, the dauntless girl crossed the passage, and entered the old rector's room. Very gently she stole across the chamber, and removing his purse, watch, keys and desk, gave them up to the robbers. who stood at the door. The old man slept peacefully and calmly, thus guarded by his child, who softly shut the door, and demanded if the robbers were yet satisfied.

The leader replied that they should, when they got the show of plate spread out below. but that they could'nt let her out of sight, and that she must go with them. In compliance with this mandate, she followed them down stairs to the dining room, where a splendid wedding breakfast had been laid, to save trouble and hurry on the morrow. To her surprise, the fellows-eight in number, when assembled-seated themselves, and prepared to make a good meal. They ordered her to get them out wine, and to cut her own wedding cake for them; and then seated at the head of the table, she was compelled to preside at the extraordinary revel.

They ate, drank, laughed and joked; and Adelaide, quick of ear and eye, had thus time to study, in her quiet way, the figures and voices of the whole set. When the repast was ended, and the plate transferred to a sack, they prepared to depart, whispering together and glancing at the young lady. For the first time Adelaide's courage gave way, and she trembled; but it was not a consultation against her, the leader approaching her, told her that they did not wish to harm her-that she was a "jolly wench, reg'lar game," and they would not hurt her, but that she must swear not to give an alarm till nine or ten o'clock the next day, when they should be all off safe. To this she was of course, obliged to assent, and then they all insisted on shaking hands with her. She noticed during this parting ceremony, that one of the ruffians had only three fingers on the left hand.

. Alone, in the despoiled room, Adelaide, faint and exhausted, awaited the first gleam of daylight; then, as the robbers did not return, she stole up to her room, undressed. and fell into a disturbed slumber. The consternation of the family, the next morning, may be imagined; and Adelaide's story was still more astounding than the robbery itself. of the fault.

Police were sent for from London, and they, guided by Adelaide's lucid description of her midnight guests, actually succeeded in capturing every one of the gang, whom the young lady had no difficulty in identifying and swearing to—the "three-fingered Jock," being the guiding clue to the discovery young lady had no difficulty in identifying being the guiding clue to the discovery .-The stolen property was all recovered, and the old rector always declared-and with truth-that he owed his life to the self-possession and judgment of his eldest daughter. The only ill effort of the great trial to her nerves, was a disposition, on the part of the young heroine, to listen for midnight sounds, and start uneasily from troubled dreams:

How to Cook Fork.

To Pickle Pork .- Dredge it with salt pounded nearly as fine as flour; place upon four sticks crossed upon a dry, cold flag-stone or in an earthen-ware dish; let it remain to drain from 18 to 25 hours; then rub it well in with a brine, consisting of one pound of salt, half a pound of course brown sugar, and two ounces of saltpeter. If many pieces are being salted, put them into a tub, and pack them closely, filling up the interstices with common salt; place a weight upon the my case was one of the worst kind. top to keep the meet down, as well as to prevent the admittance of any air, and, when taken out for cooking, scrape off the salt; under a water-tap, letting the water run upon | TEW CLOTHING! it two or three minutes, turning it occasionally, or it may lie in soak half an hour; it should be put to boil in cold water, and, when JUST RECEIVED, the rind is tender, it will be done enough.

Boiled Pork, of all Kinds .- The leg you must skin the same as ham, and dish its back part upwards, and glaze it; place a ruffle at the knuckle; sauce, sourkrout or stewed red cabbage; pease pudding to all pork when and Sh

PORE CUTLETS .- Cut from a neck, or what called foreloin of pork, the best end; trim as you do lamb or mutton, leaving a little fat; scrape the bone; rub or chop some sage fine, with a very little piece of sharlot; mix it up with only sufficient bread-crumbs, herbs dip each cutlet in clarified butter or melted lard, press the crumbs well upon the cutlets, bave a sauce-pan greased with lard, lay them into it, fry them a nice light brown, take them up and dry them on paper, dish upon mashed potatoes; use sauce robert, or sobies, or tomatoes, or any other as to palate.

PORK CUTLETS,-Cut them from a small delicate loin of pork, bone, and trim them neatly; fry them a light brown; put into a small stow-pan a little -rinegar, and eschalus chopped very finely, two table-spoonfulls of tomato-sauce, and sufficient brown gravy to make it tasty; stew the cutlets in the sauce five minutes, and send them to table, dished handsomely. If the cutlets are broiled, they may be dipped in the yoke of egg and bread crumbs, and broiled over a clear fire, and served with tomato sauce or sauce robert.

PORK CHOPS OR STEAKS.—Cut from the best end of the loin, or from the chump or leg of steaks; remove the fat and skin; turn them frequently and quickly while boiling. If your grid-iron be of the old fashion, it is better to keep it aslant on the fire. The handle being the lowest part, it prevents very much of the fat from falling into the fire, the flare of which is apt to impart a disagreeable flavor to the chops. This observation applies also to mutton-chops, and will be found useful if followed. Sprinkle them with salt when nearly done, and rub with a little fresh butter previous to serving; if for a side dish. garnish with crisped parsley.

To Collar a Pig's HEAD .- Clean thoroughy, and put it in pickle for a week; boil it tender then take out the bones carefully, turn the upper part of one check to the snout of the other cheek, season them with pepper and salt, roll it lightly in a cloth, and secure it; boil and let stand until next morning; then skim and bottle it, and in three days it will be fit for use.

Sandwiches for Evening Parties.-Chop fine some cold dressed ham, say about a quarter of a pound; put it in a basin with a tablespoonfull of chopped pickles, and a tea-spoonfull of mustard, a little pepper of cayenne: put about six ounces of butter in a basin, and with a spoon stir quickly till it forms a kind of cream; add the ham and seasoning, mix it well, have sandwich bread cut in thin LOAKS, TALMAS, RIGOLETTES, slices; have already cut, thinly intermixed with fat, either cold roast beef, veal, lamb, mutton, poultry, fowl, pheasant, grouse, partridge, &c., either of which lay evenly, and not too thick, on your bread; season with a little salt and pepper; cover over with another piece of bread; when your sandwich is ready, cut them in any shape you like, but rather small and tastily, and serve. You may keep them in a cold place, if not wanted, as they will keep good under cover for 12

Kicking Cows.—Cows sometimes move their feet from impatience or restlessness, and sometimes kick for the same reason. Any invariable and prompt infliction of a short, quick punishment, will soon cure them. They dislike to have their teats jerked, and if, whenever they kick or step, this infliction always instantly follows, they will soon cease. It is of the utmost importance that it be always uniformly severe, not irregular, and never but once performed for each repetition

THE GREAT BEAUTIFIER

FOUND AT LAST!

DOVER, N. H., Feb. 2d, 1857.

PROF. O. J. WOOD & Co.—Gents: Within a few days we have received so many orders and calls for Prof. O. J. Wood's Hair Restorative, that to-day we were compelled to send to Boston for a quantity, (the 6 dozen you forwarded all being sold,) while we might order a quantity from you. Levry bottle we have sold seems to have produced three or four new customers; and the approbation, and patronage it receives from the most substantial and worthy citizens of our vicinity, fully convince us that it is A MOST VAL-

HICKORY GROVE. St. Charles Co., Mo., November 19, 1856.

Prof. O. J. Wood—Dear Sir: Some time last summer we were induced to use some of your Hair Restorative, and its effects were so wonderful, we feel it our duty to you and the afflicted, to report it.

Our little say's head for some time had been perfectly covered with Sores, and some called it scald head. The hair almost entirely came off in consequence, when a friend, seeing his sufferings, advised us to use your Restorative; we did so with little hope of success, but, to our surprise, and that of all our friends, a very few applications removed the disease entirely, and a hew and luxutions removed the disease entirely, and a new and inxuriant crop of hair soon started out, and we can now say that our boy has as healthy a scalp, and as luxuriant a crop of hair as any other child. We can, therefore, and do hereby recommend your Restorative, as a perfect remedy for all diseases of the scalp and hair.

We are, yours respectfully,

SARAH A. HIGGINBOTHAM.

GARDINER, Maine, June 22, 1855.
PROF. O. J. WOOD—Dear Sir: I have used two bottles of Professor Wood's Hair Restorative, and can truly say it is the greatest discovery of the age for restoring and changing the Hair. Before using it I was a man of seventy. My Hair has now attained its original color. You can recommend it to the world without the least fear, as Yours respectfully,
