At the time of our leaving Salt Lake City, on the 16th of September last, all was peace and quiet in Utah. The wheat crops had been harvested, and peaches and other fruit were in abundance. The merchant trains had principally all arrived; goods very high and money plenty. I was informed by the mail-driver who passed us that ex-Chief Justice Eckles had left the scene of his great exploits, and was returning to his home in the States, having received a gentlo hint that his services as Chief Justice of Utah, could very well be dispensed with by the citizens of that Territory. ### The Dignity of Labor.

Gov. Harris, in his recent address at the opening of the Tennessee State Agricultural Fair, very truly characterizes as one of the grave errors of the time, "a want of proper appreciation of agriculture and the mechanic arts as vocations of life." In which connec-tion he further remarks: "It may be set down as an axiom throughout the world, that man never excels, if, indeed, he succeeds, in any vocation where he does not feel that his pursuit in life is in every way worthy of his respect, interest, energies and highest efforts." These truths, says the Nashville Union, are worthy of more than a passing notice. They deserve to be seriously pondered by the thousands of intelligent minds in the country, to whom they have a direct application; for, strange as it may seem, such is the force of habit and prejudice, that errors so evident and absurd to admit of no defence, often fasten themselves upon the most intelligent minds.

The laws of justice emphatically declare that labor is the source of wealth; that industry is the parent of riches; that it is. therefore, honorable to be industrious and useful, and dishonorable to be idle and useless;, that those who build our houses, construct our highways, improve and cultivate the country, furnishing all the necessaries, comforts and even luxuries of life, are the most useful, and consequently the most respectable classes in society.

These are self-evident truths, and yet, in our present artificial state, this natural order of their toil and fatigue into the bargain. An work themselves have absolutely nothing in common with labor, the laws that govern it. nor with the interests that direct it. Whether the position be strictly true or not, society would be greatly benefited if it could, in a great degree, be acted upon, to the breaking down of unthrift and the building up of the rights and interests of Labor.

intelligent persons frankly admit the high respectability of Labor theoretically, the very same parties will deny it practically. We • often speak of the laborer as nature's noble- operations, and finding the odds ten to one man, receiving his patent from the Deity himself; and refer to the proudest names in ancient councils as belonging to the tillers of the barriers, with so bulky an article; especially as the bags must be of uniform size. From this register of the daily supply, the government of the city know at any hour just how many pounds or peeks of grain of a y kind there are in Paris. From the accurate statistics required to be furnished. they know how much flour or meal is baked daily at each bakery, and how much bread of all kinds is consumed. They are, therefore, able to fix the weight and price of loaves, each size and shape of which has its appropriate name, according to the ratio between supply and demand, allowing a fair and just profit to producers, traders, and bakers, no more, no less. This price, thus fairly graduated, at short intervals, is fully proclaimed to the public, the dealers, the bakers, and the police.

The police are authorized to drop in, at any time, into any bakery, or breadshop, wherever bread is exposed for sale, and weigh the loaves. There is also a special inspecting officer appointed for this express purpose. His visits are not stated, that they may not have things got ready for exhibition instead of inspection, according to the English aud American fashion of doing such things. If the inspector finds the weight deficient, or price of a particular kind of loaf too high for the grade, all the bread in the shop is swept off at once, and distributed to the hospitals and other eleemosonary establishments of the city. Thus are the public protected against private cupidity speculating in the means of existence.

Mormon Investigation.

A correspondent of the St. Louis Republican, speaking for the Mormons, demands an investigation, and the editor of that paper calls upon the President to appoint a committee for that purpose-a committee of gentlemen, highminded and unprejudiced. "Let the lion be bearded in his desert-den, and dig from the hidden caves of Utah the dark evidences of their treasons and seditions. The Mormons have demanded, and now the people of the United States demand, investigation. It may be that the nation has, after things is almost entirely reversed. The idle all, been hood-winked by speculators, who class is most respected—those who do nothing have filched the treasure of the nation at but live, are often recognised as the most gen-teel. And yet no one is so deserving of pity as he that does nothing and has nothing to do. The idler is guilty of a permanent fraud upon society; he is not only absolutely good for nothing, but he is more than useless. Ilis existence is a positive evil, inasmuch as he diminishes the wealth of the country, by di-minishing the number of producers, and the minishing the number of producers, and the industrious are compelled to support him by their toil and fatigue into the bargain. Every thing is on the rigidly enforced, which it is easy to do, at grandest scale, and the punctuality and exactness of the running arrangements are worthy of all praise. But at what a cost has all this been accomplished? This road 400 miles in length over a level country, with very few cuts, embankments, and bridges, except between Moscow and Tver, about one fourth of the distance, has been built at an expense of 120,000,000 of rubles, ($90,000,000) or $225,000 per mile. When one takes in consideration the cheapness of labor in Russia, the sum becomes still more enormous.
