The Pousekeeper.

Curing Hams.

[From the Scientific American.] As the time is at hand for preparing these useful stores of rich and savory food, a few words will not be out of place in regard to them. The legs of hogs, short in the neck, are the best for hams, and should be chosen in preference to lanky hogs. They may be salted by immersions in a clean pickle, containing a little sugar and saltpetre dissolved, or they may be salted by rubbing ground solar evaporated salt over them, turning them every day, and giving them a good rubbing. A little sugar and ground black pepper added to the salt, will much improve the flavor of the meat. It requires about a month to salt hams by the wet process, and three weeks by the dry system. At the end of this period, they should be hung up for a few days to drip, and then they are ready for smoking. Much depends on the kind of material used for smoking them, so as to secure a sweet flavor. Whatever fuel is used for this purpose, one condition should never be overlooked; it should be perfectly dry, or else it will be liable to impart a bitter taste to the meat. Dry corn cobs, and some dry sweet hay are superior to all other agents that we have seen employed for smoking beef and a teacupfull of baker's yeast. You will use hams.

A correspondent-Mr. Wm. H. Bennett, of Warwick, R. I .- sends us the following description of a method practised with great success by him for several years in curing

He first takes the cask in which the hams are to be salted, and smokes it for half an hour over a low fire made with walnut chips. He then makes a pickle for two hundred pounds of ham, by dissolving fourteen pounds of Turk's Island salt, half a pound of saltpetre, and two quarts of molasses in never use salaratus if it does. sufficient water to cover the meat when placed in the barrel. This pickle is skimmed heat. When cooled down, this brine is poured upon the hams in the barrel, and they are allowed to lay in it until they are to dry, and are afterwards rubbed over with a composition of fine salt, black and red pepper, and some ground cloves. When this operation is performed, they are sewed in bags, and hung up with shanks downwards. A dry, cool attic chamber is the best place to keep them. Hams thus preserved, have a very excellent flavor, and do not require to go through the smoking process.

The simple smoking of the cask will have the effect of communicating a mild, smoky savor to the meat. Of this we are confident. because we have seen it done, and can endorse Mr. Bennett's experience in regard to this feature of the process. We believe his practice is a good one.

Our Receipt for Curing Beef and Pork. [From the Germantown Telegraph.]

This receipt, which originated with us, and has now had many years of trial, we believe to be unsurpassed as a pickle. Nearly all the modern receipts which have appeared in the different agricultural journals, and worth anything, partake, in some instances almost identically, of the ingredients and proportions set forth in ours, which we first printed some fifteen or eighteen years ago. Some of the receipts lately published, required a large amount of labor, and are not to be recommended. At this period in the season, when farmers and others will soon be putting down their winter's, and we may add, next year's supply of meat, it may be of service to republish the receipt, which is as follows:

To 1 gallon of water, Take 1½ lbs. of salt, lb. brown sugar, oz. saltpetre. 身 oz. potash.

In this ratio the pickle to be increased to any quantity desired.

Let these be boiled together until all the dirt from the salt and sugar rises to the top and is skimmed off. Then throw the pickle into a large tub to cool, and when cold, pour it over your beef or pork, to remain the usutime, say from four to six weeks, according to the size of the pieces, and the kind of meat. The meat must be well covered with the pickle, and it should not be put down for at least two days after killing, during which time it should be slightly sprinkled with powdered saltpetre.

Several of our friends have omitted the boiling of the pickle, and found it to answer equally as well. It will not, however, answer quite so well. By boiling the pickle, it is purified—for the amount of dirt which is thrown off by the operation, from the salt and sugar, is surprising.

BUCKWHEAT CAKES IMPROVED .- Stir half pint corn meal in a quart of boiling water; let it boil half an hour, and when cool, add three pints water or sour milk; a tea cup of stable manure is applied to a part, as almost yeast, and some salt. Stir in buckwheat flour all stock seem to disrelish the grass which to make a thick batter. If sour milk is used, put in a large teaspoonful of soda. Bake when light, on hot griddles.

Good FLITTERS .- To a pint of good buttermilk, add a little salt and a teaspoonful of soda; stir in flour enough to make a thick batter. Fry them in hot lard.

A NICE DESSERT.—Three even teaspoonfuls of corn starch, three eggs well beaten, one cup of sweet cream, sweeten to your taste.

Jumbles .- Two cups sugar, one of butter, one egg, one wine glass milk.

Indian Meal and Corn Bread. sweet. The broken oil globules become raneid and bitter.

Corn cakes, made of meal and water, with a little salt, mixed into a stiff dough, very thoroughly, and baked on a board before a hot fire, or in a hot oven, or in little cakes on a griddle, till entirely done, are very sweet, wholesome bread.

Corn and Wheat Bread is wholesome and nutritious, and easily made-if you know how. Stir two teacupfulls of white meal in a pint of hot water for each loaf; free it of lumps, and let it stand twenty-four hours. Boil two or three potatoes, peel and slice, and mash in a pint of water, which thicken with flour until it is stiff batter, and then add half about one third as much meal, scalded as above, as you do of flour; knead the meal and yeast, and sponge, and add a little salt with the flour all together, and work it well and mould in pans to rise moderately, and then bake, at first in a hot oven. This bread will be moist, and more nutritious and more healthy than if it were all flour. Buckwheat Cakes are improved by adding corn meal, prepared in the same way, in about the same proportions as for bread. A little wheat flour may be added to advantage. Don't let your batter over-rise and sour, and

Corn Meal Pudding may be made of yellow meal, stirred into scalded skimmed milk, while the salt is being dissolved at a scalding | till as thick as gruel, and, when cool, add ginger, cinnamon, nutmeg, salt and sweetening to suit the taste, and a little fine-cut suet, and some raisins, or dried peaches, or a fine salted. You who do not believe anything made of corn meal can be good, will please try this recipe for a pudding .-Philadelphia Post.

STARCH CAKE.—Take 1 cup of butter, two cups of sugar, 11 cups of starch, one and a half cups of flour, the white of eight eggs, one cup of cream, sweet or sour, if sweet, use one tea-spoonful of cream tartar: if sour. omit the cream tartar, half of soda.

For the Farmer.

Improvement of Pastures by Top-Dres-

Pastures are proverbially a neglected portion of the farm. To neglect them as much as they are usually neglected, is, however, rather poor policy, or a miscalculating economy. The prevailing suppositions in regard to them seem to be, either that they do not need any renovating or fertilizing applications, or that they will not pay for any labor or manurial matter that may be invested in them as capital. As a general rule, or so far as the great majority of pastures is concerned, we think both of these suppositions are not only incorrect and ill-founded, but also injurious in tendency and operation, But our object at present is not to argue or refute, but chiefly to remind those who have any manures accumulated since spring, that they may be drawn out upon their pastures with certain advantage, if they are not too distant or otherwise difficult of access. If drawn out at any time during the fall months, and spread just before winter sets in, manure will lose very little by volatilization even though uncomposed, and nothing at all if intimately mixed with muck or any other absorbent material. The rains and snows during winter, will wash all the more soluble and valuable portions of such a top-dressing into the soil, and the result, so far as what we have seen or have had reported to us, will warrant a conclusion, will be a greater rankness or luxuriance of growth in the fields or parts of fields so treated, than on those which may have received no such dressing. And here it may be well to remark, that there is an it may be well to remark, that there is an advantage in leaving the half or some such Clothing Store, in Long's new building, Market Square, Huntingdon, Pa. When the summer heats make the grass on the unmanured portions scorched and scanty, the disagreeable flavor of the manured portion will have mainly disappeared, and the stock will then gladly resort to it.

In whatever way manure applied to pastures in the fall may operate—whether as a mulch or as a source of several elements of

To KILL LICE ON CATTLE.—Take tobacco and boil it in water until very strong-then was the animal freely with the liquid two or three times. I have a cow that was so for six months, and tried everything I could hear of to no purpose, when I washed her back and flanks freely. This drove all the able ones to her neck and head. I then washed her neck once, which finished all the rest, thus making that detestable weed answer one important and beneficial purpose .- A. M. Brown, Glebe Cottage, Va.

PROF. O. J. WOOD—Dear Sir: Some time last summer we were induced to use some of your Hair Restorative, and its effects were so wonderful, we feel it our duty to you and the afflicted, to report it.

Our little son's head for some time had been perfectly covered with sores, and some called it scald head. The hair almost entirely came off in consequence, when a friend, seeing his sufferings, advised us to use your Restorative; we did so with little hope of success, but, to our surprise, and that of all our friends, a very few applications removed the disease entirely, and a new and luxuriant crop of hair soon started out, and we can now say that our boy has as healthy a scalp, and as luxuriant a crop of hair as any other child. We can, therefore, and do hereby recommend your Restorative, as a perfect remedy for all diseases of the scalp and hair.
