Interesting Miscellany.

A True Incident. On a bright summer morning, a young teacher might have been seen wending her way toward a small but neat and pleasant schoolhouse, situated in one of the interior districts of this State. Any one would have been struck with her childish appearance: for scarce sixteen years had passed over her head, yet was she impressed with a deep sense of the responsibility of her calling. Bright young faces at the school house windows grew brighter at her approach, and as she entered the school room, the hushed silence plainly showed that she possessed there an authority such as neither age nor stature can attain unaccompanied by an even, firm, and moderate disposition. She opened the Book of books, read a few verses, and after a short, appropriate prayer, commenced her day's After the day exercises are closed, school is dismissed. The "good nights" are repeated, and the children may be seen leaving the school house-all save one, a little boy of about ten summers. He has told a lie! The teacher's usual happy smile has vanished, and as the boy boldly returns her searching gaze and questions, with repeated denials of his guilt, her heart becomes painfully oppressed, and she raises an inward prayer to Heaven for guidance. But as she tries to awaken in his heart some compunction of conscience, she feels that hers is almost a hopeless task, for the boy had been taught to utter untruths by a mother! She leaves nothing unsaid which she thinks can awaken penitence, but all is in vain. The boy will penitence, but all is in vain. The boy will not confess, but by repeated denials adds falsehood to falsehood. She goes to her Bible, and while she is speaking kind and tender litreceives from the most substantial and worthy citizens of our vicinity, fully convince us that it is A MOST VAL-UABLE PREPARATION.

Send us as soon as may be one gross of $1 size; and one dozen $2 size; add believe us yours very respectfully.

(Signed,) DANIEL LATHROP & Co. and while she is speaking kind and tender words to the erring boy, searches out all those texts of Scripture which refer to lying, holds the holy book before him, and bids him

As the boy reads the threatening against the liar, his lips quiver and his voice grows tremulous with emotion. But an evil impulse triumphs, and though he dares not now raise his eyes, as he did before, he says with a faltering voice, "I did not tell that lie."-The teacher, feeling that she has done all she can, tells him he may go. But she says, "I know the great struggle in your heart, Charley; I know how wretched you feel, and how you will wish, even before you get home, that you had told the truth. Listen, now, Charley, while you are going home, I will be praying that God will give you strength even to turn back and come to me with a confession. Then we can ask His forgive-

The boy was gone. With a sorrowful heart, the teacher prays earnestly that the young child may not be left to perish; for she feels that he is already almost beyond | GOOD NEWS FOR THE PEOPLE!! hope. But suddenly, as she remembers that He to whom she is praying, is perfect in justice, as well as in mercy, she grows calm, and says, "Father, not my will, but thine be done." Then, almost involuntarily, she looks in the direction in which the boy had gone, when lo! he is coming back. With inexpressible joy she meets him at the door, and with breathless interest listens. Pale and trembling with his big effort, he says, "I told that lie," and burst into tears .-The Bible had conquered. Such is the power of the Word of God.

MRS. PARTINGTON'S VERY LAST .- "Where did you get so much money, Isaac?" said Mrs. Partington, as he shook a handful of copper cents before her, guinning all the while like a rogue, as he is. "Have you found the hornicopia, or has anybody given you a request?" She was a little anxious. "I got it from bets," said he, chucking the cents into the air, and allowing them to clatter and rattle about the floor with all the importance of dollars. "Got them from Bets, did you?" replied she. "And who is Bets, that she should give you money? She must be some low creature, or you would not speak of her so disrespectably. I do hope you will not get led away by any desolate companions, Isaac, and become an unworthy membrane of society." How tenderly the iron bowed spectacles beamed upon him! "I mean bets." saidhelaughing, "that I won on Burlingame." "Dear me!" she exclaimed, "how could you do so, when gaming is such a horrid habit? Why, sometimes people are arranged at the bar for it." She was really uneasy until he explained that, in imitation of older ones, he had bet some cents on Burlingame, and had won.
