HOUSEKEEPERS will do well to call and examine the assortment of Window Shades. Tassels, Cords, and Fixtures, just received at Lewis' Book Store.

Another dozen of very large Oysters from Mr. Kennedy King's Saloon, found their way into our Sanctum on Monday evening last. We wouldn't want them quite so large at all times, as it was with considerable labor we managed to get the specimen dozen packed down. Lovers of the same sort will give Kennedy a call.

SELECT SCHOOL AT MARKLESBURG.—By reference to an advertisement in another column, the reader will learn, that our able young friend A. B. Brumbaugh, will open a Select School at Marklesburg, on the 19th of next month. It is admitted by all having a knowledge of Mr. B's qualifications as a teacher, that pupils will be properly cared for while under his charge. We hope he may be successful in establishing a large school.

Spring Election .- On Friday next our voting citizens are expected to attend the polls and make a selection of the following officers:

One Judge of Elections.

Two Inspectors. One Constable.

Two School Directors.

One Assessor. Two Asst. Assessors.

If the voters neglect to vote right they should not complain afterwards. The times requires the selection of good officers.

BOLD ROBBERY .- On Sunday night last, some heartless villain or villians, entered the Jewelry store of J. W. Dutcher, adjoining Strous' Store, and took about fifteen hundred dollars worth of jewelry, watches, &c. Mr. Dutcher had two keys belonging to the door of the building, and two of the safe, and on Saturday he missed a key of each door. He immediately instituted search for them, but they were not to be found. On Sunday he resumed the search, but with no better success. He then went to his store and took home with him about one hundred watches, leaving fifteen in the safe, together with all his jewelry, such as breast pins, ear rings, finger rings, &c., which were all gone on Monday morning, and the lost key found

We have not the least doubt but the unmitigated rascal or rascals, have had their eye on Mr. Dutcher's jewelry for some time, and watching their chance, have stolen the keys before alluded to, and on Sunday night made a clean sweep of everything they could get their hands on. We hope they may be ferreted out, and receive the severest penalty the law can inflict.

We have received another letter from our reporter, and he wishes us to employ him again, and as he pleads so hard, we feel disposed to try him. He don't like it because we said he was green, but as he is of a forgiving nature, he forgives us this time, as hethinks wedon't know him very well yet. All right, Ex., let us hear from you often. But hear him :-

MR. EDITOR :- Did you hear the news? I presume you didn't, so I'll tell you. The good citizens of our borough are very curious to know who it was you employed as reporter for your paper, and for fear you will neglect to tell them, I write this letter to inform them it was Me. Yes, the inimitable Me. You know Mr. Editor, that it might give them some uneasiness, if they didn't know who wrote for your paper, as they all feel a deep interest in matters pertaining to other people, but always taking good care to neglect their own.

Mr. Editor, I have a favor to ask of you, and I sincerely trust that it may be granted. You know in my last letter, I resigned my post as reporter of your paper, well, Mr. Editor, I was discouraged and down-hearted, as news were scarce, and sent in my resignation without considering the matter at all. I thought that reporting was a dishonorable business, but reflecting on the matter, I found to my delight, that it was one of the most honorable callings a man can engage in, and I now humbly beg of you, (on my knees) to take me back again, to the same post which I resigned so hastily last week. I repeal that vow which I so solemnly declared, as I only said it to myself in a loud whisper.

Mr. Editor, you hurt my dignity very much in your notice of my letter. You told your readers that you had employed a greeny, to hunt locals for you. Now, I don't wish to quarrel with you, nor call you hard names, but I deny being a greeny, as you term me. I rather guess it takes a man that knows something, to write for the newspapers, and I consider I am one of 'em. Now, please, don't call me that again. You will discover, before I am through writing for your paper, that I am not so green after all. Having no news of importance to communicate this week, I will close, hoping that you will not forget to hire me over again, if my place is not supplied with another.

Yours anxiously

Ex-Reporter. P. S.—You needn't trouble yourself about that vow, I can easily recall it. Ex-R.

SCOTT LEGION OF CENTRAL PENNSYLVANIA.

Agreeably to adjournment the surviving ldiers of the Mexican war, resident in large and the edicining counties met at the large and the edicining countries met at the -Agreeably to adjournment the surviving soldiers of the Mexican war, resident in Blair and the adjoining counties, met at the Logan House, Hollidaysburg, on Saturday March 5th, D. The committee appointed at the former meeting to prepare a constitution and bye-laws for the government of the Legion, submitted, through John McKeage of the Volitgeurs, a constitution and bye-laws, which were read, and, on motion, laid on the table until the next meeting.

On motion, it was resolved that when we adiourn it shall be to meet on Saturday, April 2d, in the Armory of the Hollidaysburg Fencibles, at 8 o'clock p. m., and that all the surviving soldiers of the Mexican war, whether volunteers, regulars or marines, who served in said war and received an honorable discharge, are hereby cordially invited to attend and participate in the permanent organization of the Legion.

GOLD FOUND AT MILL CREEK .-- For some weeks we have heard that gold was found in the neighborhood of Mill Creek, some five miles below this place, but we supposed that some of the sharpers in that neighborhood were trying to hoax our citizens. On Saturday last we were shown specimens of stone containing the gold, and also a piece of gold worth $2,50 in its purity—the same will be sent to Philadelphia, to have tested. If all is gold that glitters, or looks like gold, in that neighborhood, we may expect a Pike's Peak emigration in that neighborhood in a short time. Those into the secret, assure us that the neighborhood of Mill Creek will soon turn up to be a more profitable gold region than Pike's Peak.

DIED

On the 23rd of Dec. at Pernambuce, Brazil, in the 40th year of his age, Samuel Morris, brother of Jas. Morris, of this county.

At Water Street, Huntingdon county, Feb. 10th, 1859, EMBY SUSAN, daughter of John E. and Josephine Seeds, aged 4 years and 9 months. She said, "I shall die," ere her fairy-like form,

Was wilted by death's callous hand; Yet she shed not a tear, she heaved not a sigh, Nor wept at life's fast ebbing sand.

The tones of her voice, once so mellow and sweet Were gone-told, her "passing away," And those beautiful eyes, so oft gemmed with tears,

Sunk deep in her head, by decay. She drooped like a flower, that had fall'n in the blast, That was broken, and bruised, from the tree, But Death's gloomy wings, flapped o'er her at last,

Dissolved all her pain-set her free. Then again like a flower, that's revived by the sun. When dimmed by the night and the dew, In the wind'strembling breath, brighter colors return,

More varied and brilliant in hue. Thus more radiant she opened her eyes in a world, Where myriads of Scraphs sing praise, Whose long silvery wings-crowns-harps of gold, Shine brightly through His lighting rays.

In a little fresh grave, in the churchyard old, Lies Emma, our beautiful child, Deep down in the earth, 'neath the clay and the mould.

There she now rests, so peaceful, so mild. The grave-worm now revels, now feeds on thy form, That once was my joy and my pride, That I cherished, how truly! now blighted and gone, Thou hear'st not the wildwind that means o'er the tomb Its sigh never reaches thy ear, Nor the lightning, the thunder, the furious storm, Play o'er thee, but wake not thy fear.

No more wilt thou stand at my side.

Long ages may roll, yes! heavy o'er thee, 'Fore the graves shall pour forth the dead,' 'Till the angel shall stand on the land and the sea, And swear that all time now has fled.

WATER STREET, March, 1859. On the 25th of Feb., 1859, Calvin Bruce, son of John E. and Josephine Seeds, aged 1 year and 2 months.

March 9, 1859-3m. DMINISTRATOR'S NOTICE. WASHINGTON VAUN, late of Tell township, Huntingdon county, deceased, having been granted to the undersigned, he hereby notifies all persons indebted to said Estate, to make immediate payment, and those having claims against the same, to present them, duly authenticated, for settlement.

WILLIAM VAUN, Every Number of Harper's Magazine contains from 20 to 50 pages—and from one-third to one-half more reading—than any other in the country.

ARPER'S MAGAZINE.

The Publisher's believe that the Seventeen Volunies of Haeper's Magazine now issued contain a larger amount of valuable and attractive reading than will be found in any other Periodical of the day. The best Serial Tales of the foremost Novelists of the time: Leven's "Maurice Tiernay," Bulwer Lytton's "My Novel," Dicken's "Bleak House" and "Little Dorrit," Thackeray's "Newcomes" and "Virginians," have successively appeared in the Magazine simultaneously with their publication in England. The best Tales and Sketches from the Foreign Magazines have been carefully selected, and original contributions have been furnished by Charles Reade, Wirkle Collins, Mrs. Gaskell, Miss Mulcoll, and other prominent English writers.

The larger portion of the Magazine has, however, been devoted to articles upon American topics, furnished by American writers. Contributions have been welcomed from every section of the country; and in deciding upon their acceptance the Editors have aimed to be governed solely by the intrinsic merits of the articles, irrespective of their authorship. Care has been taken that the Magazine should never become the organ of any local clique in literature, or of any sectional party in politics.

At no period since the commencement of the Magazine have its literary and artistic resources been more ample and varied; and the Publisher's refer to the contents of the Periodical for the past as the best guarantee for its future
