

For the Farmer.

How to Raise Early Potatoes. A correspondent of the Country Gentleman gives the following method for raising early potatoes:

About six weeks previous to the usual time of planting in the open ground, mark out a piece, say five or six feet wide, and as long as required, on a dry and sheltered piece of land; dig out the surface to a depth of five or six inches; place boards around, to keep up the loam or sand; then fill to the depth of six inches, with horse manure which has been thrown over to produce heat; tread it down lightly, as for a hot bed, and cover the manure with four inches of loam. I keep some in my barn cellar through the winter, to be ready at any time. It is also well to keep the ground covered through the winter, where the bed is to be made, with straw, or something to keep out the frost. Then pack your potatoes as close as you can, over the surface, a single thickness; cover with four inches of loam, or what is better, sand, as the sprouts are together and do not separate so easily from the potato in lifting. I cut my potatoes a day or even weeks before, and place them out side down. At night cover with straw or coarse hay; in the morning, if mild and no rain, rake off the covering and replace at night. In case of continued dry weather a slight watering may be of service, though seldom necessary. When the time for planting arrives, land manured and furrowed, take up the front board, and with a dung-fork lift as many as it will hold; give them a shake, and separate each plant carefully by hand, placing them in a basket or box; then drop them either for hills or in rows, and have a person follow to cover as fast as possible, placing an inch or two of earth over the tops, through which they will break in a few hours.

If planting has been delayed from any cause, and the plants should have attained considerable growth, (I have planted them when a foot high and had them do well,) lay them down and cover as above. If your field is not too far from your dwelling, make the bed there, as it saves exposure in carrying the plants to a distance. With a few boards and stakes a shelter can be made to keep off the cold winds.

By sprouting potatoes in this way you can have them ready to dig at least three weeks earlier.

Raising Turkeys. I propose giving my mode of raising turkeys. It is my opinion that farmers can raise a pound of fowl easier and cheaper than a pound of pork. Heretofore I have been unfortunate in raising turkeys, but this season I adopted a different mode—a plan of my own invention—by which I have been very successful. Others may have adopted the same course, but not to my knowledge.

Young turkeys are apt to die before they attain the age of three weeks. I came to the conclusion that the fatality among them, was caused by vermin, heavy feed and cold, damp weather. My method this season, has been this—Take the eggs of the first laying, and set under hens; the second laying let the turkeys hatch. Two or three days before hatching, sprinkle the nest and the fowls themselves with sulphur. When the young were hatched, I took a little sulphur, gunpowder and lard, mixed, and greased their heads an necks to keep off the vermin, while the young brooded. It does not remain on, in eight or ten days put on another coat.

Mode of Feeding.—I took equal quantities of wheat bran and Indian meal, and mixed with sour milk, or lapped milk, with a good lot of fine-cut shives, once in two or three days, in with it, and fed them till a month or six weeks old; then lessen the bran. Feed them early in the morning to keep them from rambling in the dew.

Such has been my method of feeding and management, and I have lost only two out of forty hatched. Ducks managed in the same way—lost three by accidental causes, out of thirty-five hatched; one, only, died while young. Chickens in like manner, with greased heads and sulphured nests—lost three in about sixty. This is my mode and my success.—Cor. Prairie Farmer.

STARTING SEEDS EARLY.—Rev. Daniel Emerson, Summit county, Ohio, writes that he has been successful in giving garden seeds an early start in the following manner: Having selected the quantity needed, each sort is tied by itself in a cloth, the name being plainly written on a slip of paper, and enclosed with the seed. The packages are then buried about two inches deep in the ground for a week or two. When ready to plant, the kinds needed for planting are taken from the bag and used. They will be found to have swelled, perhaps sprouted, and ready to grow. If the ground should be quite dry, it is best to water the drills after dropping the seed, and then cover with dry earth. Mr. E. says that by this plan he has never failed to raise plants from every seed planted. If each seed is placed where it is wanted to grow, it will save the labor of thinning, though many prefer to thin their rows, leaving the most prominent plants to grow.—American Agriculturist.

TRIMMING GRAPE VINES.—For many years we have raised grapes by the bush from a single vine, and our trimming is done in the following manner:—The first week in July, commence and cut back to the second leaf or bud of the present season's growth. Have a sharp knife, and trim a portion every day (a little at a time) until the whole vine has been gone over. Autumn, winter and spring pruning are avoided; but we have large, nice, smooth grapes in abundance.—C. C. L., North Bloomfield, N. Y.

THE LIVER INVIGORATOR! PREPARED BY DR. SANFORD.—Compounded entirely from GUMS is one of the best purgatives and Liver medicine known to the public, that acts as a Cathartic, easier, milder, and more effective than any other medicine. It is not only a Cathartic, but a Liver medicine, acting on the Liver to effect its morbid matter, then on the bowels and stomach to carry off that matter; thus accomplishing two purposes effectually, without any of the injurious feelings experienced in the operations of most Cathartics. It strengthens the system at the same time that it purges it, and is adapted to moderate doses with strict and a built up with unusual rapidity.

The Liver is one of the principal regulators of the human body; and when it is diseased, the whole system is almost entirely deranged. The action of the Liver for the functions which it is called upon to perform, is dependent on the healthy performance of its functions; which is, in fact, the basis of the system in all its operations. Liver having ceased to do its duty, the system is deranged, and the whole system is almost entirely deranged.

These Gums remove all the system, supplying it with the most valuable and most perfect food, and restoring the health to the whole machine, and preventing the return of the disease. Bile attacks are cured, and the system is restored to its natural state.

One dose after eating is sufficient to relieve the stomach from raising acid souring, and to relieve the system from all its ailments. Only one dose taken at night, loosens the bowels, and relieves the system from all its ailments.
