NEW MUSIC.--- A large addition of new pieces-call and examine them, at Lewis' Book, Stationary and Music Store.

BE READY FOR THE MARKET CAR,-Our young friend William Cunningham, will arthe season.

Boss Westbrook has just opened a splendid stock of Boots and Shoes, Hats and Caps. and material for the trade. Call and examine his stock.

THE FIRST OF THE SEASON .--- Last week Mr. H. W. Miller made us a present of a handsome bunch of young onions raised in his garden. What a feast.

nor The first of May came in, in all the beauty and loveliness, for which it is noted. Clear and calm, and the sun shining with a warmth congenial to our feelings.

Violins, Guitars and Accordeons, fine instruments, received, and for sale at Lewis, Book, Stationery and Music Store. Also a fine assortment of Bows, Strings, Screws, Bridges, &c., &c.

RELIGIOUS .- Rev. A. K. Bell, of Lewisburg, will preach in the Baptist Church, in this place, on next Sabbath morning, at half-past ten o'clock, at which time the Lord's Supper will be administered. He will also preach in the same place in the evening at 7 o'clock.

nor The "Continentals" gave us the benfit of one of their beautiful airs, on Friday evening last, for which we tender to them our thanks, and with a wish, that ere another moon, they may find a convenient season to repeat the same. Long live the "Continentals."

James M. Green, a splendid workman, has opened a marble-yard in Mifflin street .--A number of specimens of his workmanship, are on exhibition at several places in town, and they are considered hard to beat. We hope our young friend may receive liberal encouragement.

. OUR COMMON SCHOOLS .- The Schools were opened on Monday last, with the following ladies and gentlemen as teachers. We think the Directors have made excellent selections.

PUGILISTIC .-- On Friday last, a couple of female darkies, occupying the old stable of M. Strous, on Washington street, engaged in a most disgraceful and outlandish encounter, in the way of pugilism. Knives were freely used, as was the tongue of both combatants. After some very indecent and obscene language, they went at it with knives in hand. and the way they cut and slashed at each

I will stop my musing lest I lead you to the belief that I am a member of that order, commonly known as "Sentimentalists." I am not, Mr. Editor, and don't you believe a word of it. I never make odes to the moon, nor anything of the kind. They say a variety is the spice of life, and that is what I am enrive on Friday next, with all the luxuries of deavoring to give to your readers, however feeble that effort may be. I will leave this subject by quoting those beautiful lines ascribed to Spring, by Lady Carew which are

The Difficulties in Utah.

The detailed accounts received from the Territory of Utah show that a very unfortunate state of affairs now exists there. From the moment the expedition entered its borders, there does not appear to have been an entire cordiality of feeling and harmony of action between Gov. Cumming and Gen. Johnston. The American soldiers after suffering the privations of their long journey, and their exposed winter encampment—with fearful stories of Mormon violence constantly dinned into their ears-naturally enough longed for a strife in which those whose contumacy had led them to that distant region might be punished and military laurels gained; while Gov. Cumming, as a civil officer, wisely and humanely desired to secure a peaceful adjustment of the existing difficulties. The judges knowing that their predecessors had been constantly engaged in a conflict with the Mormon people, previous to the arrival of the army, and conscious that there was very little probability of Mormon juries paying proper respect to American courts, appear, from the outset, to have regarded the Mormons rather with the feelings natural to prosecuting attorneys than the calm and unimpassioned sentiments of impartial judges. After the proclamation of the President, granting amnesty for past offences, had been read and circulated, and the civil control of the Territory fully vested in Gov. Cumming, order and quiet for a time prevailed. The District Attorney weakened this feeling when he unwisely instituted prosecutions for crimes which had clearly been pardoned by the President. But, having failed in that undertaking, another difficulty has arisen. A court has recently been summoned at Provo, an important Mormon town. The Grand jury was composed of men selected by what is called the County Court, which consists of officers of the same character as the County Commissioners of Pennsylvania. Various bills of indictment were framed, among which were bills against two Indians, named Mose and Looking-Glass, who were charged with assault, with intent to commit a rape, on a Danish Mormon girl, and a bill against a Mormon for procuring and enticing soldiers to desert. These bills of indictment were promptly found ; but the attention of the jury was also directed to indictments against a number of leading Mormons, for the murder of the two Parrishes, father and son, and Potter, at Springville, in March, 1857. The allegation was that the deceased had apostatised from the Mormon Church, and determined to emigrate to California; that the stroll over the hills on a Summer's evening at present—the army and the Judge favoring and look at the wondrous workings of nature. while the Governor is anxious to conciliate them and to fully restore peace in the Territory.

The difficulty is an unfortunate one. It is quite evident that there can be no harmony of action for the promotion of the ends of ustice between the Judges and the Mormon juries, and that such a spirit of antagonism has been aroused between them that they act more like two hostile forces, or two opposing parties to one suit, than as co-ordinate branches of a common system of jurisprudence.-Press.

On the 21st ult., by Rev. H. M. Barnetz, Mr. JAMES PARKS, of Birmingham, Huntingdon co., and Miss SUSAN TRUMAN, of Blair co.

On the same day, by the same, Mr. ANDREW GOODMAN, of Cumberland, Md., and Miss MARY M. DRENNAN, of this place.

In Washington City, on the 28th April, at Trinity Church, by the Rev. Dr. Butler, WILLIAM A. SAXTON, of Huntingdon, Pennsylvania, to SALLIE S. youngest daugh-ter of the late James Abercrombie, of Baltimore, Md. DIED.

On the 27th of April, 1859, near this place, Jonn Mc-CAHAN, in the sixty-fourth year of his age, in full hope of a blissful immortality.

An important point in his history was his carly piety. He embraced religion when a youth, and ever after ad. hered strictly to his Christian profession, which, doubtless, exerted a powerful influence in preserving him from the fushionable vices of this generation. We do not claim for him entire exemption from the errors incident to mortal life: but take great pleasure in saving, he was never so much as charged with a crime or dishonorable act; and such was the urbanity of his manners, that he had as few enemies as any other man.

He was also a highly useful member of the Church. His house was at all times the home of ministers, where they were at once made welcome and comfortable; and his money was freely bestowed for charitable and religious purposes; and while he honored God in this respect, the Lord honored him with spiritual blessings in Heavenly places. His example as a lively member of the Church was worthy of imitation, giving punctual attendance on all the means of grace, while his health allowed. The last two years of his life were years of great bodily affliction, during which he exhibited the proofs of a patient chastened spirit. No word of murmuring ever escaped his lips, but many expressions of devout thankfulness to God for the riches of his grace and providence. He stated to his friends that he "desired to depart and be with Christ, if it was Heaven's will, for to be absent from the body, was to be present with the Lord."

His life was one brilliant exhibition of the Christian graces, and his end was peaceful as Summer's setting sun. What more could be desired? He had lived many years, and lived to a good purpose. To his family he left an unsullied reputation, and a holy example for imitation. He accomplished the end of living, got well through and safely out of this world to a better. May we follow him as he followed Christ! M.

A POPULAR "INSTITUTION"-THE SLEEP-ING CAR.—On Wednesday night last, at 10<sup>1</sup>/<sub>2</sub>, we took the sleeping car for Philadelphia, and we must confess it is the greatest improvement of the age for comfort in traveling. We soon fell asleep, and waked up in time to wash, brush up, pull on our boots, handsomely blackened, and were ready for an early breakfast in the city, scarcely believing it possible that we had traveled over two hundred miles. The car, which cost $3500, is substantially and elegantly built and finished of oak and walnut, highly polished, having sufficient length for seven compartments on either side, in each of which there are four seats, susceptible of transformation into as many berths, in about forty-five seconds, by a person who is always at hand for that purpose. When arranged for sleeping, each "seat" has its corresponding berth, substantially upholstered, with pillow, curtains, and all complete, and, if desired, sliding lattice doors shut off each section into comparative privacy and seclusion. When restored to luxurious seats an abundance of room is afforded; a bracket table projects from the side of the car for reading or other convenience; a ventilator admits or expels the air at pleasure, &c., &c. The car is furnished with a stove at each end, a wash room, water vases, closets, &c. Indeed, it would require quite an effort of the mind to realize the fact that one was not in some well appointed hotel or crack steamer, so many and elegant are the appointments of the Patent Sleeping Cars.

MR. EDITOR.-This lovely May morning, I seat myself to pen a few lines for your valuable paper. There is scarcely a cloud to be seen, and the sun is shining forth in all the splendor and magnificence of a Summer's songs of praise to their maker, who has endowed them with such delightful music, equalled by no instrument invented by man-the trees are putting forth their leaves in all their beauty and loveliness, and man's heart is made glad at the approach of Summer. Who does not hail it with boundless delight? The hills surrounding our beautiful town are now being clothed in their accustomed green foliage few miles on their journey. The judge spe-cially directed the attention of the Grand Jury to this case. After several weeks of deliberation, it failed or refused to find a true bill, in consequence, as the Judge alleges of the fact that its members were related to, or sympathised with the murderers .---The court there discharged them in an indignant speech, denouncing in violent terms their neglect, and concluding with the following extract :---

Mormons resolved to prevent their depar-

"If it is expected that this court is to be used by this community as a means of protecting it against the pecadilloes of Gentiles and Indians, unless this community will punish its own murderers, such expectations will not be realised. It will not be used for such purpose.

"When this people come to their reason and manifest a disposition to punish their own high offenders, it will then be time to enforce the law also for their protection. If this court cannot bring you to a sense of your duty, it can at least turn the savages in custody loose upon you."

In compliance with this threat, the Judge is reported to have set free the two Indians charged with rape, and thus to have practically retorted upon the Mormons by giving them to understand, that if they would not assist him in punishing those whom he regarded as criminals, he would not assist them in punishing those against whom their animosity was excited.

One of the first acts of Judge Cradlebaugh, after the court assembled, was to send to General Johnston for a company of United States troops to guard and protect the court. to take charge of such prisoners as might be ordered into custody, and to shield witnesses from Mormon vengeance, with which it is alleged they were threatened. This request was promptly complied with. Soon after the soldiers assembled, the Mayor and Common Council of Provo, remonstrated both to the Judge and the Governor, against the employment of the U.S. troops to assist in the perfor mance of a strictly judicial duty. The judge denounced this remonstrance, and persisted in maintaining an armed guard around the court. Gov. Cumming sympathised with the citizens, and wrote a letter to General Johnston request ing the withdrawal of the troops, but his request was not complied with; indeed, additional forces were sent to the aid of the first compa-The Governor then issued a proclamany. tion, in which he formally protested against the employment of the troops around the court-house at Provo, alleging that their presday. The birds are warbling their sweet ence had a tendency to terrify the inhabitants, to disturb the peace of the Territory, and to subvert the ends of justice, and that the troops were placed there without his consent and in opposition to the letter and spirit of his instructions. His course was warmly approved by the Mormons, some of whom are said to contemplate an organization of the militia, to be arrayed against the United States troops. Judge Cradlebaugh, on receiving the proclamation of the Governor, attacked it in open court, denying some of its statements, and declaring that his court is not and as the eye gazes upon them it makes the subservient to, and will not act under Execuheart dance with joy.
