THE GLOBE.

Huntingdon, Wednesday, June 15, 1859. From Washington.

[Chirespondence of The Press.] The President returned this morning, ac cording to promise, in the steamboat Adelaide, in fine health and spirits. He saw his old friend and associate in Congress, Welden N. Edwards, and shook hands with a great many Southern sovereigns. He has had a good time to himself. The question now is, whether, coming back so buoyant, he will order the guillotine to be freshly sharpened, or whether he will discard that instrument for wiser counsels, leaving the petty politics of patronage for the graver duties that await his action.

The friends of Charles James Faulkner, of the Martinsburg district, Virginia, boldly allege that he would have been elected but for the load he was compelled to carry in supporting the policy of Mr. Buchanan's Administration.

I forgot to say to you that while General Bridgens, of Lock Haven, Clinton county, of your State, was in this city protesting against the appointment of Mr. Quiggle as consul to Antwerp, he let out a fact which bears somewhat upon the future of Pennsylvania the line of Willte and DOMESTIC GOODS. your State, was in this city protesting against politics. After he had told Mr. Buchanan that the appointment alluded to was a most unfortunate one, the President responded by stating that he desired to be let alone—that he was now an old man, who would soon be out of office and forgotten; but that he, General Bridgens, would render him, J. B., an essential service, by helping to crush Governor Packer—a point which the President earnestly declared he and his friends had fully determined upon—and that Bridgens started home resolved, after having had this programme submitted to him, to take off his coat, and assist in putting down your inde-pendent and high toned Governor. This, be well assured, is the fixed purpose of the Administration here. A number of small editors of small country papers, in your State, have been located in Washington, and are sending home weekly calumnies upon Governor Packer, prepared by order of Judge Black and the President, while those who are connected with persons holding office in this city, in your State, and elsewhere, who own or control newspapers, are commanded to do the same thing on pain of ostracism. This is the secret of the violent course of certain Administration papers in Franklin, Westmoreland, Mifflin, Northampton, Chester. Adams, Blair, Fayette, Venango, Erie, Bucks, Luzerne, Burks, &c. In vain is Mr. Buchanan told that Governor Packer's friends must wield an immense influence in 1860. The policy has been laid down, and will be adhered to at every hazzard. Look, for instance, at the vast interests to be jeoparded by this assault upon the fearless Executive of a sovereign State. In May of 1860 you will have to elect, as I understand, the Mayor and Councils of Philadelphia—a city which in itself polls more votes than a number of the States of this Union-and in October of 1860 your electors will be called upon to choose a Governor, State officers, a Legislature who is to elect a United States Senator in the place of the facile Bigler, and twentyfive members of the National House of Representatives! In November of the same vear, the Presidential election will come off, upon the result of which will depend the selection of a new Cabinet and the distribution of eighty or a hundred millions of patronage. All these vast interests are to be perilled that Governor Packer's head may be handed over on a trencher to King James—and that such men as yourself may be read out of the Democratic party, with all who have not fallen down and worshipped his worse than Austrian despotism! You must prepare for this state of things. The war upon Judge Douglas shows that the Administration is capable of any outrage. It is true, there is a remedy -one that you should wield with your united energies-and that is, to exhibit to the men who have undertaken this work of ruin,

God prosper the right! The cry of adherence to regular nominations is being raised at Washington, by the dependants of the Crown, in advance of the Charleston Convention. They feel confident that that body will be completely in their hands. Although they refused to support the regular nominees in Illinois, standing as those nominees did upon the old-fashioned Democratic platform; yet, whenever they can force their creatures upon Democratic tickets, they will insist upon usages as carnestly as they violate themselves, whenever circumstances demand. When John A. Gamble was nominated for Canal Commissioner, for your State, in 1849, you will remember that Mr. Buchanan, at Bedford Springs, denounced him, and said he ought to be defeated, because the Pittsburg Convention, which made him a candidate, adopted a resolution under the auspices of Col. W. Black, now Governor of Nebraska, indirectly approving the Wilmot proviso. It is equally certain, also, that in 1851 Mr. Buchanan became exceedingly indignant because Mr. Bigler would not take part in the local fights of Lancaster | JUST RECEIVED AND READY FOR SALE, county, and publicly denounced him for it, although Bigler was then the regular Democratic candidate for Governor. GRASSHOPPERS.—The National Defender, Montgomery county, Pa., says:

These insects have made their appearance in Plymouth township. They are extremely small, but destroy so much grass that it is feared that many of the farmers will be compelled to dispose of some of their cattle. The Bucks County Intelligencer, their cattle. The Bucks County Intelligencer, in speaking of their appearance in that county, says:—We believe it is not generally understood how the grasshoppers are propagated, and that there is much diversity of the line of lusiness.

Together with a full assortment of everything pertaining to his line of lusiness. opinion that the crop of grasshoppers last year deposited eggs in the earth, which, from exposure to the sun and light, have produced the grasshoppers that have appeared this season. A very considerable number of them must also have survived the Winter, for quantities of them can be found in many of the fields. These are generally quite large, with transparent and expanded bodies. Those who have taken the trouble to dissect the bodies of some of these, find | Call that each one contains an astonishing number of eggs-probably thousands; so that each one of these insects is invested with the power of transmitting its species. These are questions for the solution of some one posted up in natural history.

and the second s

The district of country visited by them last season, now gives evidence of their destructive powers. The pasture fields are blighted, and in many places look as if a fire had swept over them. The grass is nearly ruined, and another season of grasshoppers will fall heavily upon many farmers. We hope that the fears entertained by many in regard to this subject will not be realized.
