LOCAL & PERSONAL. THE EXCELSIOR CORNET BAND CONCERT .-As was previously announced, this Band gave a concert in the Court House, on Friday evening last, to a pretty full house, notwithstan. ding the inclemency of the weather. The consert consisted of marches, schottisches, quicksteps, and waltzes, by the Band, and duetts, waltzes, &c., by a company of gentlemen on violins and guitar. They made excellent music, and added considerable interest to the entertainment, The "Mountain Echo Quickstep," by the Band, we were delighted with. The echo was as natural as it could possibly be, and it was amusing to see the audience looking around in every direction, to see from whence the sound proceeded. "The Firemen's Grand Quickstep" capped the climax. It was composed and dedicated to the firemen, by Prof. Rowbotham, the Excelsior's talented tutor. When the alarm of fire was given, and the bells were rung, we imagined we could see the devouring element bursting forth in all its fury, upon the dwellings of hundreds, hear the women and children shriek, see the firemen hurrying to the spot with their engines, and as the fire spread with almost lightning speed, and the noise and confusion became greater, we imagined we were in the midst of that awful and destructive element. The bells were hurriedly pected. rung, orders given by the captain, and all were busily engaged in putting out the fire,

when we were brought again to realize the fact that we were comfortably seated in the Court House, listening to the Excelsior. So perfect was the imitation, that we were thus carried away. We heard a gentleman at our elbow, remark that the "Excelsior was the best country Band in the State;" we fully concur with him, and what's more, hazard

the assertion that they can excel any Band

between Philadelphia and Pittsburgh. Success attend them.

A BEAUTIFUL SIGHT .- A few days ago we visited the top of the hill, just opposite town, on the other side of the river. After climbing up an almost perpendicular path for about half an hour, we arrived at the summit of the hill, and after making our way to one of nature's own observatories, we never before beheld a sight half so beautiful. As far as the eye could reach, could be seen an unbroken chain of the most picturesque scenery imaginable. We gazed long and silently at the fertile vallies, and gorgeous range of mountains which surrounded us on every side. The blue etherial smoke of an Indian summer day made the scene even more interesting. The artist's pencil has never, as yet, painted anything half so grand; would he try, we think he would shrink from the task and declare it impossible. We would not censure him for it either. Although the task of climbing the hill is difficult, we think a visit to the top will doubly repay any one for their trouble. Would our ladies, and some of the gentlemen, too, climb that hill at least once a day, we think it would do them more good than all the medicine in the world. It would drive away consumption, and all other diseases of similar character brought on by sedentary habits and close confinement to business. It would also be a capital idea to have a walk made, so that it would be easier of access. We are so delighted with what we saw, that we intend visiting it soon sgain, and advise all who want to "see a sight as is a sight," to go and do likewise. We give our word for it, you will not be disappointed.

LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.

Mooresville, Sept. 10, 1859.

MR. EDITOR: - The morning is one of beauty. One that brings to our minds reminisences of the past. One that causes us to look back to those by-gone days that found us pleasuring ourselves amid the scenes of youth; those days when we took our place in the family circle of the old homestead, and were taught the great difficulties that would have to be encountered in the future-in the setting out to perform our duty in the business of life. Ah! the future has come, and we find ourselves floating on the tide of time as find ourselves floating on the tide of time as fast as the golden moments can row us along —along towards Eternity. Many trials and difficulties have been encountered, and who knows but what many have yet to be battled before we end our earthly career. But, Mr. Editor, ere my imaginations reach beyond a description of my pen, I will close this subject, and proceed with some of the trials and difficulties of our town.

The young men of this place have been encounters, and have been encounters, as to be unsuccessful in the organization.—Several appointments have been made, but all proved like the widow's egg keg, "knocked in the head." Why it is Mooresville is behind in Literary Associations, I cannot tell. The material is sufficient—consisting chiefly of students, and a selection of more chiefly of students, and a selection of more intelligent students (my humble self excepted,) could not be made. This being the case, we hope the students in general and others in the vicinity, will take matters into consideration after the commencement of the approaching session of our "Collegiate Institute," and organize a society, that they may be enabled to occupy the stump, as our young orator, Mr. Jno. Lightner did the other evening, and express their sentiments on the "Slavery question." (Mr. Lightner being favored with a "gift of the gab," gave Slavery "particular fits."

Come then ye literary men And form a literary band That literature may be your theme, As you literary stand.

Politics appear to be the conversation of the day, throughout the valley in which Mooresville is situated, and raises quite an excitement occasionally among our leading politicians. Several candidates were at this place, or rather near by, a few weeks ago, and appeared to be exerting themselves considerably in the great cause of securing an election. Among the number, was Mr. J. S. Africa, the gentleman who is thought will be elected at the next ballot-box, notwithstanding the thoughts of some opponents, regarding the existence and non-existence of a God.

On Thursday last, a difficulty arose between one of the weaker sex and a fellowstudent, which caused a little "rumpus" on the side of the literary genius. In a few minutes after the "fracas," he was seen going it at the rapid speed of 2.40, not to the other side of Jordan, but to the other side of Stone Creek, feeling deeply impressed that Amid women and broomsticks and children combined, Words are much better when they are confined.

Fearing I have already wearied your patience, Mr. Editor, I will close my Ps for the present, by extending to you my ... More RIDGER.

REMARKABLE ACCIDENT-Dog KILLED, BUT AN INFANT SAVED .- A remarkable accident occurred a few days ago at the corner of Third and Race streets, in which a dog accidentally became the preserver of a child's life, and lost its own. It seems that an infant child of Mrs. Burns, residing in the second story of a building at the corner of Pearl and Race streets, was placed at one of the windows by its mother. Unbeknown to her, however, it clambered up into the window, and while playing on the sill lost its balance and fell to the street. Just at that time a dog happened to be passing, and, as if providential, the child fell directly upon the back of the dog. The fall crushed the animal to the pavement, on to which the infant rolled apparently but little hurt. Those who witnessed the accident, supposed that the child would be instantly killed, and were astonished, on examination, to find it but slightly injured. Not so, however, with poor Tray. He had received mortal injury. He streched himself out, kicked, gaped, and breathed his last. The accident is one of the most remarkable we ever heard of .- Cincinnati Times.
