"Neck Twisting." There are practices tolerated in religious congregations which Christians, who are icalous for the honor of their master's house, should utterly condemn. Decorum is the handmaid of devotional feeling, and for this reason the house of God should never be disturbed by the slightest approach to irreverence. It is a part of my religion, said a pious old lady, when asked why she went early to church, "It is a part of my religion not to interrupt the worship of others." And we believe if many a congregation made it a part of their religion not to twist their necks almost out of joint to witness the entrance of every person who passes up the aisle of the meeting house, it would be better for both their necks and their religion. A gross abuse of religious decorum sometimes needs harsh medicine as a remedy.

We do not know whether it would be proper for some of our good ministering brethren, who are sorely tried by the neck twisting propensities of their congregations, to use that adopted by Henry Clay Dean, who was at one time chaplain of Congress; but we give it for their consideration, of course to adopt or reject, as they please. The anecdote is from the Pacific Methodist:

Being worried, one afternoon, by the turning practice in his congregation, Mr. Dean stopped in his sermon and said:

"Now, you listen to me, and I'll tell you who the people are, as each one of them comes in."

He then went on with his discourse, until a gentleman entered, when he bawled out like an usher, "Deacon A., who keeps a shop over the way," and then went on with his sermon.

Presently another man passed up the aisle, and he gave his name, residence and occupation; so he continued for some time.

At length some one entered the door who

These Machines sew from two spools, as purchased from Fell, Gather, and Stitch in a superior style, finishing each seam by their own operation, without recourse to the hand-needle, as is required by other machines. They will do better and cheaper sewing than a seamstress can, even if she works for one cent an hour, and are, unquestionably, the best Machines in the market for family sewing, on account of their simplicity, durability, ease of management, and adaptation to all varieties of family sewing—executing either heavy or fine work with equal facility, and without special adjustment. special adjustment.
