Look Upward.

[Correspondence of The Globe.] I once read an anecdote of a little boy whose father was a sea captain, and who was taken by him to sea to learn to be a sailor .-To test his agility he was requested to climb to the mast-head. This was easily accomplished, but when about to descend, he looked down, and seeing the great height to which he had arisen, became terrified. He called to his father to aid him, who replied, "Look upward! my son, look upward! if you look down you will become dizzy, but look upward and there is no danger." The boy followed his father's advice, and descended in safety. The story made an impression upon my mind at the time, which has never been erased. and as Franklin remarked of himself when he spent all his holiday money for a whistle, "This little incident has since been of great service to me," if not in a practical, at least in a theoretical point of view. And the result of my theorizing is, that whatever be suit of my theorizing is, that whatever be come our model, with contents in the contents of the contents of the contents in the contents of the cont our station in life, if we would meet its vicissitudes with a firm, unwavering faith in God's

AGAINST THE WORLD. Providence-if we would leave the world better for reason of our having lived in it-if we would accomplish the ultimate end of our existence-in short if we would be truly great and good, like the boy who climbed to the mast head, we must look upward.

Can any one doubt it, who in his daily intercourse with mankind beholds them alternately rising and falling on life's arena, and observes the different effects these changes produce upon different individuals.

If such a person does exist, he is not a good philosopher. Mark the aspirant to wealth as he moves onward through the jostling crowd, adding dollar after dollar to his already abundant store! Sycophantic flatterers are around him-summer friends flutter like gay butterflies about his path—he scarcely realizes the height to which he has attained among his fellow-worshippers of the shining dust-until some unexpected turn in the wheel of fortune induces him to pause. He looks beneath him, the dizzying height causes him to tremble; his heart sickens as the startling fact is presented to him, that by stratagem and dishonesty alone, he can sustain his present po-

He struggles for awhile between the alternatives of wealth and a guilty conscience. poverty and an unsullied name. The conflict is terrible: but when the crisis has arrived, he hears the voice of the great Father calling unto him to look upward! and with unfaltering trust, that the Omnipotence that aided him in his prosperity will support him in adversity, he safely descends to his former po sition, scorned, it is true, by haughty worldlings, but bearing within his own bosom that richest of earthly treasures, an approving conscience, while the smiles of the wise and good beam upon him like rays of sunshine upon a ruined tower.

View the ambitious student as the wavering hours of night find him bending over his arduous task, conscious that his emaciated frame is fast wasting away like the flickering taper beside him, from the effects of his unrelenting toil. The votaries of pleasure beckon him to join their ranks; he pauses a moment between their allurements and the imperatives of duty. To remain stationary is impossible. He looks beneath him and knows by relaxing his hold now, he must sink into oblivion. He looks upward! Fame, honor, rank, eminence, are extending toward him their glittering prizes. He feels that by unwearied efforts he may attain them, and

"The youth who bore through snow and ice, A banner with this strange device,

"His brow be sad and his eye beneath Flash like a falchion from its sheath," he toils on, heedless of the light of happy homes; heedless of the entreaties of maidens fair; heedless of the warnings of peasants and aged men; heedless of everything save the object for which he is aiming, until

"From out the sky screne and far,
A voice falls like a falling star,
EXCELSIOR!"

The end has been reached; another immortal name has been enrolled upon Fame's blazoned scroll. The enfranchised soul has attained the acme of its aspirations-eter_ nal freedom in the Paradise of God: an acme attained only by looking upward.

Another example I would give, it is that of the christian pilgrim. He who along life's beaten pathway meekly bears his daily cross, and who amid "the lusts of the flesh and the pride of life," sometimes realizes the warning of the stars of faith and hope within his bosom. For a time, perhaps, he falters in his course; but "a still little voice" is heard bidding him look upward.

He remembers the humble supplement in Gethsemane's garden, his spiritual eye discerns the lowly Nazarene bearing his ponderous cross toward Calvary's summit; he sees him insulted, buffeted, scourged, crucified; he feels that all these sufferings were borne for that frail erring race of which he is a unit. Again, the stars of faith and hope brighten-illuminate his way toward the Celestial City-for his soul has been strengthened by looking upward, and he has learned | 10. from due experience-

Fellow teachers, if the random thoughts I have just presented contain anything that may insere you to look upward amid all future changes, my humble efforts have not been in vain. Let this be our motto in each conflict that awaits us in the performance of the responsible duties of our noble profession of teaching. For only by looking upward can we accomplish a great work. ALEXANDRIA, Oct. 20, 1859.

Philadelphia, April 12th, 1856.

Messrs. Evans & Watson—Gentlemen—It affords us the highest satisfaction to state to you, that owing to the very protective qualities of two of the Salamander Safes which we purchased of you some few months since, we saved a large portion of our jewelry, and all our books, papers, &c., exposed to the calamitous fire in Ranstead Place, on the morning of the 11th instant. exposed to the calamitous fire in Ranstead Place, on the morning of the 11th instant.

When we reflect that these Safes were located in the fourth story of the building we occupied, and that they fell subsequently into a heap of burning ruins, where the vast concentration of heat caused the brass plates to melt, we cannot but regard the preservation of their valuable contents as most convincing proof of the great security afforded by your Safes.

TEDICAL SCIENCE. The history of "HOOFLAND'S GERMAN BIT-TERS," the most remarkable medicine of the day, and the many cures that have been performed with it in cases of LIVER COMPLAINT, DYSPEPSIA, NERVOUS DE-BILITY, and diseases arising from a disordered liver or stomach, place it among the most astonishing discoveries that have taken place in the medical world. The diseases to which these Bitters are applicable are so universal, that there are but few of our friends who may not test their wing the public commendation. It is a fact that, in the minds of many persons, a prejudice exists against what are called Patent Medicines; but why should this prevent you resorting to an article that has such an array of testimeny to support it as Hoofland's German Bitters? Physicians prescribe it, Why should you discard it? Judges, usually considered men of talent, have and do use it in their own families. Why should you reject it? Clergymen, and those the most eminent, take it; why should not you. It is not your reason, to men, and those the most eminent, take it; why should not you! Let not your prejudice usurp your reason, to the everlasting injury of your health; if you are sick, and require a medicine, try these Bitters.

These Bitters are prepared and sold by Dr. C. M, Jackson, No. 418 Arch street, Philadelphia, Pa., and by druggists and storekeepers in every town and village in the United States, Canadas, West Indies, and South America, at 75 cents per bottle. See that the signature of C. M. Jackson is on the wrapper of each bottle.
