which he can readily acquire by his own industrious exertions. A man who willingly receives assistance, especially if he has applied for it, sells himself to his benefactor, unless his patron happens to be a man of sense, who is giving absolutely necessary assistance to one whom he knows to be both sensitive and honorable.

When a young man has ascertained the fact that his success in life must depend on his own exertions, and that he must look to himself, and not to others, for assistance, he is in a fair position for beginning life.

A Permanent Home.

To have a home which a man has himself reared or purchased-a home which he has improved or beautified-a home, indeed, which, with honest pride and natural love, he calls his own-is an additional security for any man's virtue. Such a home he leaves with regret; to it he gladly returns. There he finds innocent and satisfying pleasures .--There his wife and little ones are happy and safe, and there all his best affections take root and grow. To such a pair, as time advances, the abode of their early and middle life, whence they have, perhaps, all departed, become constantly more dear; for it is now a scene of precious memories-the undisturbed, declining years ! And say-what lapse of time, what varied experience of prosperity or sorrow can ever efface the good impression made by such a home on the tender heart of childhood? To the tempted youth, to the wanderer from virtue, to the sad victim of misfortune, such remembrance has often proved a strengthening monitor, or a healing balm. Nor can this kindly influence wholly fail so long as the dear objects of that familiar scene retain a place in memory, connected. as they inseparably are, with thoughts of a father's counsels, a mother's tenderness, a sister's purity, and a brother's love.

KEEP GOOD COMPANY .- Intercourse with persons of decided virtue and excellence is of great importance in the formation of a good character. The force of example is powerful. We are creatures of imitation, and, by a necessary influence, our habits and tempers are very much formed on the model of those with whom we familiarly associate.

"I didn't dare to tell you, wife, before we were married, that my teeth are false." "I could get along well enough with you, J. BRICKER'S J. BRICKER'S husband, if your teeth were the only false thing you carry in your mouth."

TEDICAL SCIENCE.

EDICAL SCIENCE. The history of "HOOFLAND'S GERMAN BIT-TERS," the most remarkable medicine of the day, and the many cures that have been performed with it in cases of LIVER COMPLAINT, DYSPEPSIA, NERVOUS DE-BILITY, and diseases arising from a disordered liver or stomach, place it among the most astonishing discoveries that have taken place in the medical world. The diseases to which these Bitters are applicable are so universal, that there are but few of our friends who may not test their yirtues in their own families or circle of acquaintances, and prove to their own satisfaction that there is at least one remedy among the many advertised medicines, deserand prove to their own satisfaction that there is at least one remedy among the many advertised medicines, deser-ving the public commendation. It is a fact that, in the minds of many persons, a prejudice exists against what are called Patent Medicines; but why should this prevent you resorting to an article that has such an array of tes-timeny to support it as Hoofiand's German Bitters? Phy-sicians prescribe it, Why should you discard it? Judges, usually considered men of talent, have and do use it in their own families. Why should you reject it? Clergy-men, and those the most eminent, take it; why should not you? Let not your prejudice usurp your reason, to men, and these the most eminent, take it; why should not you?
