THE GLOBE.

Huntingdon, Wednesday, April 4, 1860.

LOCAL & PERSONAL.

LOCAL BREVITIES .- Our friend Mr. Ben. Whittaker, a son of Capt. John Whittaker, of this place, started for California on Tuesday night of last week. We wish him success in the land of "ye sparkling gold."

A slight fire occurred at the Penn'a Railroad Depot on Wednesday last. The flames were checked before any damage was done.

A lad, son of Henry Honstein, was kicked in the mouth by a mule on Wednesday last, which rendered him senseless for a time, and knocked all of his front teeth out. We learn he is recovering. We only wonder that we do not have to record such accidents oftener. for scarcely a day passes but we see boys playing about and teasing horses, &c. We trust this will be a warning to them.

The "sixty" girls question has created quite an excitement in "social circles." We publish two letters from members of the "thirty" club to-day. Our friend Traugh of the Standard, says we can beat Hollidaysburg in numbers, but not in good looks. We beg leave to differ from you, slightly, friend Traugh.

Gabriel Isenberg, of Porter township, confined in the County Asylum at Shirleysburg, in a state of imbecility of mind, in attempting to escape through a window of his room on Wednesday a week last, fell to the ground, a distance of twenty-two feet, and was instantly killed.

A log dwelling in Petersburg, occupied by Mrs. De Armit, together with most of its contents, was destroyed by fire on Thursday last. The house adjoining, occupied by Mr. Abr. Cresswell, was also on fire, but escaped with slight damage.

Business has again commenced on the canal. and the coal trade promises to be brisk during the season. Mr. Thomas Jackson has been appointed Weigh Master and Collector at this place, we having declined a re-appointment. Mr. Jackson makes an excellent officer. John G. Given goes to Harrisburg to take charge of the new weigh-lock at that place. No better man could be employed by the Company.

We had two or three as fine days last week as we could wish. All nature seemed a glow. Everything presented a spring-like appearance; the sweet and ever welcome carol of the pec-wee, the first messenger of spring, greeted our ears. Oh! with what delight did we pause to hearken unto its sweet chirpings; the ladies flooded our streets in all their beauty and leveliness, and all the world seemed happy. The beautiful moonlight nights added even more loveliness and grandeur to the coming of the new-born spring; but Sunday, the first of April, was dark, dreary and wet, yet there was a charm about it which other and abler pens have often depicted. We love and loved of all mcn."

We have the capital and why not the Bank? All business men feel the convenience of the marriageable clime; and that we all would Banking House of Bell, Garrettson & Co., sadly deplore; old as well as young. No, and we hope the gentlemen connected with no, we had much rather you would grow up it will spread themselves to give still greater accommodations.

Councilmen and a High Constable came off very quietly on Monday last. A. W. Benedict was elected Burgess, Wm. B. Zeigler, Robt. King and H. K. Neff, Councilmen, and John Westbrook, High Constable.

We were visited with quite a snow storm yesterday morning.

The store of A. H. Bauman & Co., of Mapleton, was robbed one night last week. The thief or thieves purloined goods to the amount of $200.

INSURE YOUR LIFE .-- One thousand dollars has just been paid to the widow of George Wilson, of Tell township, by the Penn Mutual Life Insurance Company, of Philadelphia. The life of the decased was insured four years ago by Dr. R. A. Miller, agent for this county, and Mr. W. had paid but $105,30. The Penn Mutual is the most reliable com. pany in existence, never refusing to pay losses.

mer The following quaint comparison is forcible and true. It would be well if our young men would note the moral of the terse passage we quote below: "The tree frog acquires the color of whatever it adheres to for brown color ; on the sycamore he is of a whitish brown color; but when found on the growing corn he is sure to be green. Just so it is with young men. Their companions them-the white sand rolling up, and sink-tells us what their characters are ; if they as ing in gentle waves beneath the crystal tells us what their characters are ; if they associate with the vulgar, the licentious, and the profane, then their hearts are already those institutions so annoying to a traveler on stained with their guilt and shame, and they will themselves become alike vicious. The study of bad books, or the love of wicked companions is the broadest and most certain road to ruin that a young man can travel, and a few and well-directed lessons in either will lead him on, step by step, to the gate of | bell-a sound peculiarly gratifying to a hundestruction. A Ride Over the Alleghenies on Horse-

when men send their letters by lightning, and travel by steam, to cross the rock-ribbed, pine-clad Alleghenies on horseback, is somehing of the primitive and romantic, especially when the storm king is on a March journey. Being somewhat of a cosmopolite, and having occasion in my perigrinations, to cross the old back bone of Pennsylvania, I saddled my pony in the town of Phillipsburgmore about this place hereafter-tied him to a post until I would equip for the journeynot forgetting to put the hitching strap through the bit rings. Pony concluded, in my absence, to try a tight rope performance. Braced front feet, right side motion, left side motion, back pull, double bit, compressed jaw-poor performance-no go-gives that up and bites post. I pulled on overcoat and gloves, mounted and took the pike for Tyrone City, Blair co., Pa. Up and still up the mountain I rode. Trees on this hand, trees on that hand; cliffs above, ravines below.-Mr. Editor, did you ever see tall +rees? Well you have not, you have read Longfellow's Hiawatha. He must had some of these old mountain giants in view when he wrote about the land of pine trees." You look up to see the top, and at the first effort you get a sight of the first limbs; you then throw back a short time. If it be found on oak it is a your head and look again. This time if your eye sight is good, you catch a glimpse of the top, far in the distance. Passing along I noticed several beautiful springs bubbling out by the road side. I wish you could just see stream that flows down the mountain. When I had gone a few miles, I came upon one of a cold day-a toll gate. The keeper, kind soul, knowing the poverty of an itinerant, chalked my hat, and I went on my way rejoicing. About noon, I came to the top of the mountain, and stopped to replenish the inner man, at a house kept by Richard Copeland. Had my horse put away, and seated myself by the stove to await the sound of the dinner gry traveler. Presently a couple of roughlooking customers came in, stepped up to the bar, and looked wistfully at the old black of the fiery contents went fairly hissing down their throats. Quickly as possible, they filled their glasses with water and poured that down after "old whiskey." I observed when they turned around, that there were large tears standing in their eyes. Now, Mr. Editor, I have read about Jacob crying when he kissed his beautiful Rachael, and I would like very much to know if kissing old king alcohol, alias the devil, produces the same effect. Soon the sound harmonious, from the iron-tongued musician, fell upon my ear; tel-

The Tyrone Star is not a fixed star, as our Standard friend announced last week, but | truth of our remark would so readily go home still lives. We learn from it that a coach carrying the mail from that place to Lock Haven, took fire on Friday last, between Lock Haven and Bellefonte, and was entirely consumed. The fire was caused by one of the passengers, who carelessly threw a lighted match into the straw in the bottom of the coach. The passengers escaped unhurt .---The horses became frightened and ran away, and before they could be stopped, the coach was so much burned, that neither mails or baggage could be saved.

New Clothing for Spring and Summer, can be found at II. Roman's and M. Gutman & Co's cheap Clothing Stores. They each have a fine stock ready for customers.

D. P. Gwin, Fisher & McMurtrie, and Benjamin Jacobs, have received their new goods. We would advise all in want of fine, fashionable and cheap goods to give them a call. Our readers will remember that about one year ago, we noticed a quarrel which took place between Wm. Sturtsman, a well known "plug" in these regions, and John Swivel, at the Broad Top House, and also of Sturtsman striking one of the officers whilstattempting to arrest him, and afterwards making his escape. He continued to elude the grasp of the officers until Saturday last, when he was arrested by Jailor Shoemaker, in Houck's blacksmith shop, and taken to the stone mansion at the head of Smith street, where he awaits the action of the injured parties.

style, we proceed with fear and trembling.-At the time we so boldly asserted that there were sixty marriageable girls on Hill street, we did not imagine for one moment, that the to the sensitive hearts of "One of the Sixty" and "One of the Girls on Hill street." But we were sadly disappointed, and immediately upon learning the fact, we were forced to exclaim in the eloquent language of the poet :

"The flesh will quiver where the pincers tear, The blood will flow where the knife is driven."

We do not intend to produce figures to support the truth of our assertion, for any one possessed of ordinary arithmetical powers, can easily satisfy themselves upon that point. Could those two fair nymphs, who have so sanguinely espoused the cause of "sixty girls," imagine how our hearts bled for them, upon learning the state of matrimonial affairs on Hill street, we feel confident that they would no longer doubt that we are wanting in that true affection which feels for the unhappy condition of others.

We were too happy to learn, that "ve ancient borough" could muster at least thirty young men,-but sorry, that they are not all MARRIAGEABLE.

How truthfully hath it been said by one of old, "While there is life, there is hope."---Never despair ! For while old Huntingdon can boast of at least some MARRIAGEABLE young men, you need no longer fear that wonderful period spoken of in a certain Book. which says: "In that day" sixty girls, "shall rise up and take hold of one man."

We hasten to a conclusion. You ask us (who take such a moving interest in the Hill street girls,) to forward our names, so that you "can exercise some of your leap year privileges, and wait on us in a body." We comply with your request cheerfully. Our address will be found at the bottom of this lengthy epistle. While we consent to do this, we ask at least equal candor on your part, viz : Your address, &c. We also request an interview, and that you fix the time and place of meeting; and as you have so modestly proposed, we have no doubt that if the interview proves agreeable to all the parties concerned, both individually and collectively, that "One of the Sixty" and "One of the Girls on Hill street," can, in the fullness of their warm and affectionate hearts, adopt the "painfully" true language of a certain married lady, who, in a great part attributed her many domestic troubles, to the irregularities of her husband. 'Well," said the old maid, to whom she was complaining, "I told you not to marry him, that he would not make you a good husband." 'He is not a good one to be sure," replied Mrs. " but he is better than none."

So we, ladies, " apologies" as we are, offer our feeble services, to ameliorate in part, your unhappy condition.

fresh ham nicely roasted, potatoes, corn cakes, well flavored coffee, good bread and cakes; also fruit and pies for desert. As my forenoon's ride had given me a good appetite, I, with others, did "ample justice to the subject." Should any of your readers come to the mountain in the summer for whortle berries, you cannot find a better place to get your dinner than at old Richard's. But don't take any of his "tangle-foot," for if you do, you will get lost among the mountains; and if the rattle snakes did not know you had been drinking whiskey, they might bite you. Having finished my dinner, I was soon in my saddle and on my way down the mountain, Getting cold, I concluded to lead my colt and walk a piece. Just as I dismounted, pony became frightened and jumped over the bank backward. Fell six or seven fect among the brush, jumped to her feet and tried to get up on the road. Too steep, fell again; sprang up again, and got on the road, worse scared than hurt. Hope that lesson may prove benefi-Verily, "the way of the transgressor cial. is hard."

But I see my letter is getting too long .-Suffice it to say that I arrived in Tyrone in good time, having had, taking all things into consideration, rather a pleasant ride over the Alleghenies. LEROY. Максн 30, 1860.

BEAUTIFUL, BUT TRUE. A few days since, Mr. Jas. II. Beadle, of Huntsville, Ål-abama, called on us and gave us permission to publish for the benefit of suffering humanity, the astonishing cure which had been effected in the case of his wife by the use of Dr. Hance's Vegetable Epileptic Pills. He informed us, that at the time his wife commenced using the medicine, her system was so entirely prostrated, by the number of spasms she had undergone, as to reduce her weight to 100 bs. Since she has been taking the pills, she has entirely got over the spasms and has gained in weight and bodily health. She now weighs at least 200 bs., and declares sho is in better enjoyment of health than ever before in her life. Mr. Beadle also related the case of Mr. Harrison Lightfoot of the same town, who has been entirely cured of the worst form of Epilepsy by these same pills. Mr. Lightfoot's case was so bad that he never passed a week without having an attack, often falling down in the street. He has not had an attack for more than a year. Mr. Bea-dle thinks that if the pills ever fail in curing a case, it is for the want of a proper perseverance on the part of the person in taking them, as he feels assured from observa-tion in the case of his wife, that if they are taken for a sufficient length of time, they will cure any case.
