

Interesting Miscellany.

Gen. Jackson at Mrs. Livingston's Dinner Party.

In the just published life of Andrew Jackson, by Mr. Parton, we find the following interesting anecdote:

The new aid-de-camp, Mr. Livingston, as he rode from the parade ground by the General's side, invited him home to dinner. The General promptly accepted the invitation. It chanced that the beautiful and gay Mrs. Livingston, the leader of society then at New Orleans, both creole and American, had a little dinner party that day, composed only of ladies, most of whom were young and lively creole belles. Mr. Livingston had sent home word that Gen. Jackson had arrived, and that he should ask him home to dinner; a piece of news that threw the hospitable lady into consternation. "What shall we do with this wild general from Tennessee?" whispered the girls to one another; for they were all convinced that Gen. Jackson, however becoming he might comport himself in an Indian fight, would be most distressingly out of place at a fashionable dinner party in the first drawing room of the most polite city in America. He was announced. The young ladies were seated about the room. Mrs. Livingston sat upon a sofa at the head of the apartment, anxiously awaiting the inroad of the wild fighter into the regions sacred hitherto to elegance and grace. He entered. Erect, composed, bronzed with long exposure to the sun, his hair just beginning to turn gray, clad in his uniform of coarse blue cloth and yellow buckskin, his high boots flapping loosely about his slender legs, he looked, as he stood near the door of the drawing room, the very picture of a war-worn, noble warrior and commander.

He bowed to the ladies magnificently, who all arose at his entrance, as much from amazement as politeness. Mrs. Livingston advanced toward him. With a dignity of grace seldom equalled, never surpassed, he went forward to meet her, conducted her back to her sofa, and sat by her side. The fair creoles were dumb with astonishment. In a few minutes dinner was served, and the General continued, during the progress of the meal, to converse in an easy, agreeable manner, in the tone of society, of the sole topic of the time, the coming invasion. He assured the ladies that he felt perfectly confident of defending the city, and begged that they would give themselves no uneasiness with regard to that matter. He arose soon from the table and left the house with Mr. Livingston. In one chorus the young ladies exclaimed to their hostess. "Is this your back-woodsman? Why, madam, he is a prince!"

EVANS & WATSON'S SAFES.

304 CHESTNUT STREET, PHILADELPHIA. ANOTHER TRIUMPH! Philadelphia, Sept. 29, 1859.

TO THE PRESIDENT OF THE PENNSYLVANIA AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY:—The subscribers, your committee to examine the contents of a Salamander Safe, of Evans & Watson, after being exposed to a strong fire on the Fair Grounds for eight hours, respectfully represent—

That after seven cords of cord wool and three of pine had been consumed around the safe, it was opened in the presence of the committee, and the contents taken out, a little warmed, but not even scorched.

Several Silver Medals heretofore received by the manufacturers, and a large quantity of documents were in the safe, and came out entirely unharmed.

The experiment satisfied us of the capacity of Safes of this kind to protect contents from any fire to which they may be exposed.

The Committee awarded a Diploma and Silver Medal. G. W. WOODWARD, JOHN W. GRAY, J. P. RUTHERFORD, ALFRED S. GILBERT.

STILL ANOTHER.

HUNTINGDON, Pa., Sept. 17, 1859.—Messrs. EVANS & WATSON, Philadelphia.

Gentlemen:—The Salamander Fire-Proof Safe of your manufacture, purchased by us from your Agent, Ferris & Co., of this city, and which was severely tried by burglars last Saturday night, and although they had a sledge hammer, cold chisels, drill and gunpowder, they did not succeed in opening the safe. The lock being one of "Hall's Patent Powder-proof," they could not get the powder into it, but drilled a hole in the lower panel and forced in a large charge, which was ignited, and although the door, inside and out, showed the explosion, it failed to have a small one, it was not forced open. We suppose they were the greater part of the night at work on the safe, and were much gratified at the result of the attempt to enter it, and if the above facts are of any service, you are at liberty to use them. Yours, truly, BAYNARD & JONES.

GREAT FIRE!—ANOTHER TRIUMPH!!

Knoxville, Tennessee, March 13th, 1859. Messrs. EVANS & WATSON, Philadelphia.

Gentlemen:—It affords me great pleasure to say to you that the Salamander Safe which I purchased of you in February, 1858, proved to be what you recommended it to be—a safe protection from fire. My stockroom, together with several others, was burned to the ground in March last.

The safe fell through into the cellar, and was exposed to intense heat for six or eight hours, and when it was taken from the ruins and opened, all its contents were found to be in a perfect state, the books and the papers not being injured in the least. I can cheerfully recommend your Safes to the community, believing, as I do, that they are as near fire-proof as it is possible for any safe to be made.

A large assortment of the above SAFES always on hand, at 204 Chestnut street, (late 24 South Fourth street,) Philadelphia. (Nov. 16, 1859.)
