Next they took a scantling and battered down door after door to Kephart's cell and took the feeble old man, black with guilt, from our jail-he is now on his may to his gallows and his grave.

bility.

At an early hour of July 5th, the people began to assemble upon the ground where, according to report, Kephart would be hung. The place chosen was on the left bank of Cedar Creek, upon the road leading north from Book Store. Every grape grower should Batavia to Abingdon, about a hundred yards or more from the bridge that spans the creek. The writer arrived upon the ground about 10 A. M., and already a hundred or more people were waiting, and the scaffold was in a and 30 cents each, just received and for sale state of erection, while two men were busy digging the grave. -

By noon two thousand people, at least, had gathered to witness the execution, which was a novelty, perhaps, to the majority; and on the right bank of the creek, fronting the scaffold, and the place where the bodies of the murdered woman and children had been found, the women, who numbered three or four hundred, and, as it seemed, were as merry as though they had been invited to a bridal siderably injured. We have not learned the scene; but if one at a distance had been de-the child. As quick as thought, the fireman luded, upon drawing near to listen to the chatting, he would have learned then and there, that tender women, kind-hearted, mild and lovely, can be gay, even when an engine of death stares them in the face; yes, and even when a man dangles in the air, whose neck is broken by the fall from the trap-door Sunday School and family Libraries of the gallows, and who hangs suspended by a rope until the last vestige of breath is choked out of him, and his spirit goes to the world of

> ELOPEMENT.-We find the following item in the Greensburg Argus of July 12th. Mr. Dutcher, was, some months ago, a resident of this place :

"J. W. Dutcher, a watch-maker, by trade, took up his abode in this place some months since; and from all appearances, was doing a pretty fair business. About ten days ago he left for Altoona, stating his reasons for so doing, that he was going thither to repair watches for the railroad company, since which he had not been heard of until Saturday last when his wife received a letter from some of her relatives near Altoona, informing her of his elopement with a young lady of that place. His wife, it appears, was not ignorant of his designs for leaving Greensburg, she having reasons to suspect his infidelity. On receipt of the letter, she took the evening train for Altoona, since which time we have been unable to learn anything of either party."

A BRAVE ACT.-A few days ago, while a long and heavily loaded train of cars on the Reading Railroad was approaching Pottstown, and rounding a curve, a child about four years old was discovered on the track. The momentum of the train altogether precluded the idea of stopping in time to save crawled over the engine, got on the cow-catcher, and with his foot pushed the child off the track! without injuring it, except a slight scratch on the face. Had this not been done every car of the heavy train must have passed over the child. This hero, who exhibited such coolness and self-possession in the moment of danger, was PETER TOMINY, and such an act deserves to be put down and remembered by all.

MINNESOTA WHEAT CROP .- An intelligent gentleman from one of the eastern cities, who has been in Minnesota several months, engaged extensively in the purchase of grain, says that the supposed high estimate made by Gov. Ramsey, in his message, when he fixed the surplus product of last year's crop Agency stepped upon the scaffold and made at one and a half millions of bushels, was short of the whole truth. He thinks the number of bushels which has and will find its way into market, will exceed the aggrefirst year of our exporting grain. The same gentleman after a careful inquiry, based on personal observation, is of the opinion that the surplus wheat crop this year over and mous aggregate of six millions of bushels!
