Liquid Manures.

Why are liquid manures more efficient than would have been the solid materials from which they are made? This question is often asked, and involves the exercise of natural laws, precisely in the direction in which farmers should investigate it.

We claim that the compost heap, arranged with a cistern at its lower end, and supplied with a pump, so as to throw back on top the fluid drainage frequently adding water when the drainage is insufficient, will cause the whole mass in due time to be converted into the fluid form without loss of the ammonia, and will thus render all the constituents of compost[capable of being applied by the sprinkling cart.

The reasons why a single cord of manure thus treated will have the effect of four or more cords of the same manure applied to the soil, after the usual decomposition in the ordinary way, are two fold; first the liquid form secures the ability to bring portions of the manure in contact with the surface of all the particles of the soil, disseminating it so that it comes in contact, as a necessity, with all the roots percolating the soil, and in a form to be readily received by absorption; second the chemical changes which necessarily go on during the entire decomposition of the compost heap before it reaches the soluble condition, are more complete; every ingredient is brought in chemical contact with conditions is occurring continuously, until at the time of the eventual solution, the progression probably equals what would have occurred by the whole manure having taken place once or oftener in organic life, before finding its place as a manure in the soil .-The same effects are illustrated when we plow in clover as a green crop; it receives from the soil its organic pabulum and it thus progressed by its approbation in its organism; when the clover is once more decomposed beneath the surface, these inorganic constituents are yielded up ready for use in a new crop. So with the fluid manures manufactured in Flanders and elsewhere; no portion of a straw decomposed in the soil can feed a new plant, until it is capable of being dissolved in water, and this solution connot occur without chemical changes, the conditions of which are supplied by the surroundings. Such changes occur most rapidly when the compost hear is arranged in the manner we have described: and, therefore, fluid manure contains all the inorganic matter in a progressed, as well as in a solution form, and will not be refused by growing crops. In this way all that nature's laws would bring about with manures in an ordinary state plowed into the ground, in ten years, are ready and occur in the current season when these manures are presented to the roots of plants in fluid form.

The convenience of the compost heap arranged with a cistern and a pump, as we have described, is very great, for it admits mixing large quantities of inert materials in the compost, and of rendering them soluble; thus, swamp muck decomposed by the lime and salt mixture, river mud and other similar materials, may form part of this compost. all the wastes of the house in the form of soap-suds, chamber lye, etc., may pass through this cistern and perform their part in the compost heap, besides supplying their integrants eventual to the field. In soils where potash is deficient, this may be added in a soluble form placed on top the heap; for there it will meet with so many changes of condition, and combine with such a variety of other chemical constituents, as to render it soluble. When ammonia is escaping, which by the by is likely to occur where the heap is fully supplied with moisture, then sulphuric acid may be added to this cistern, and being pumped on the compost, thus diluted, will charge the carbonate of ammonia, which is non-violatile, and is valuable for its power of rendering water capable of dissolving those integrants of manures and soils most needful to plants .- Working Farmer.

FIRST HEAVY BET .- The editors and proprietors of the Lacrosse, Wisconsin, Republican and of the Democrat, have bet their offices, papers, and types, and everything (value $4,000) on the result of the election in Illinois and Wisconsin. If Douglas carries both States the editor of the Democrat is to take both concerns. If Douglas does not carry both States then the editor of the Republican is the winner. THE BIBLICAL REASON WHY, A handsome book for Biblical Students and Sunday A handsome book for Binderf Students and Sunday School Teachers, and a Guide to Family Scripture Reading, beautifully illustrated.—Large 12 mo., cloth, gilt side and back. Publishers' price $1.

This book makes the Bible a pleasant as well as profound subject of study. It leaves no difficult or obscure point unexplained. It renders every passage clear. It is exactly the volume that every family, which reads at all imperatively needs to place beside the Bible, as its best constants.

THIS VOLUME ANSWERS 1.403 QUESTIONS IN A CLEAR MANNER. TESTIMONIALS OF THE CLERGY.

"I have given some attention to the 'Biblical Reason Why,' and feel bound to say that it seems to me to contain a vast amount of information on Biblical subjects, conveyed in a clear manner, illustrated by many valuable cuts, and printed on good paper. It constitutes a valuable addition to the apparatus of the Teacher, Parent, and private Christian."

"I have examined the 'Biblical Reason Way,' and find it to be a repartory of facts on Biblical subjects, set forth in a plain and intelligible way. Indeed, I am surprised at the amount of matter that is compressed into this volume. For use in families and schools, I consider it the best book of the kind I have seen."

Rev. JOHN McCLINTOCK, D. D., LL. D., President of the Troy University, and Pastor of St. Paul's Church (Methodist Episcopal,) New York.

"The attention I have given your book satisfies me that it cannot fail to give important aid to all students of the Bible, and especially that large class who have neither time nor means to bestow on larger or more critical works. The plan of your work is excellent, and the matter well chosen. It should have a large circulation. It will certainly be of great use in the study of the Hely Scriptures."

Wilmington, Del., Sept. 17, 1859.—Messrs, Evans & Warson, Philadelphia.

Genthmen:—The Salamander Fire-Proof Safe of your manufacture, purchased by us from your Agent, Ferris & Garriett, of our city, some nine months age, was severely tried by burglars last Saturday night, and although biley had a sledge hammer, cold chisels, drill and gunpowder, they did not succeed in opening the Safe. The lock being one of "Hall's Patent Powder-proof," they could not get the powder into it, but drilled a hole in the lower panel and forced in a large charge, which was ignited, and although the door, inside and out, showed the explosion not to have been a small one, it was not forced open. We suppose they were the greater part of the night at work on it. We are much graffied at the result of the attempt to enter; it, and if the above facts are of any service, you are at liberty to use them.

GREAT FIRE!—ANOTHER TRIUMPH!!

KNOXYLLE. Tennessee, March 13th, 1859.

Messrs. EVANE & WATSON. Philadelphia:

Gentlemen—It affords me great pleasure to say to you that the Salamander Safe which I purchased of you in February, 1858, proved to be what you recommended it—a sure protection from fire. My storchouse, together with several others, was burned to the ground in March last.—The Safe fell through into the cellar, and was exposed to intense heat for six or eight hours, and when it was taken from the ruins and opened, all its contents where found to be in a perfect state, the books and the papers not being injured any whatever. I can cheerfully recommend your Sates to the community, believing, as I do, that they are as near fire-proof as it is possible for any Safe to be made.
