The Farmer and Housekeeper. NEW BOOKS!

How to Keep Polittoes .- More potatoes are spoiled through sweating than freezing. I never lose any, but save them thus: I raise the place six inches where I want the pit or hole, beating it hard with the spade. I throw | THE FARM: A New Pocker Manual of Practical Agrithe potatoes on, shaping like a pyramid, and cover thickly with straight clean straw. I then commence at the bottom, throwing on the earth and tramping it hard with my feet; one foot thick is plenty. When within a foot of the top, I make a hole in the straw with my hand, and put in a small funnel, one foot long and three inches square. Close the straw tight around the funnel, and cover closely with earth, clapping the whole solid with the spade. Let the funnel remain in two weeks, cover it with a small board in case of rain, then take it out, close the hole with straw, cover with earth, place a green sod on the top, set four small forked stakes in the ground around the heap, cover with boards to keep off rain, and I will insure your potatoes. - Correspondence of Am. Agricul-

Cinders for Pigs.-J. J. Mechi, of Triptree Hall, England, has been publishing his just received a large and well selected stock of fashionable experience in fattening swine, and, among other things, he has learned the fact, "that pigs are very fond of coal ashes or cinders, and that you can hardly fatten pigs properly on boarded floors without giving them a moderate supply daily or occasionaly." He says: "In the abscence of coal ashes, burnt | will also be found on hand. All of which will be sold as clay or brick dust is a good substitute. If | low, if not lower, than the same quality of goods can be you do not supply ashes they will gnaw or eat the brick walls of their sheds. I leave to science to explain the cause of this want .-It is notorious that coal dealers, where pigs have access to the coals, are generally successful pig-feeders. Those who find that their pigs, when shut up, do not progress favorably, will do well to try this plan; a

The citizens of the county, and strangers and travelers generally, will find comfortable accommodations at this house. Give us a trial.

[April 4, 1860.] neighbor of mine found that a score of fat pigs consumed quite a basket of burned clay ashes daily. We know that there is an abundance of alkali in ashes."

A Sure Remedy for a Felon.-This very painful eruption, with all the remedies recommended, is seldom arrested until it has run a certain course, after causing great suffering for two or three days and nights. The following remedy is vouched for by the Buffalo Advocate, as a certain thing from its own knowledge: "Take a pint of common soft soap and stir in air-slacked lime till it is of the consistency of glazier's putty. Make a leather thimble, fill it with this composition, don. and insert the finger therein, and a cure is certain." This is a domestic application that every hosekeeper can apply promptly.

To Clean the Eye of Dust. - When the eye is irritated by dust or intrusive particles of any kind the sufferer invariably shuts and rubs the eye, and not unfrequently the removal of the irritating cause becomes more difficult. The proper practice is to keep the eye open, as if staring; a sort of a rotary movement of the ball takes place, the surface becomes covered with water, the particle is becomes covered with water, the particle is gradually impelled to the corner of the eye, and is there floated out, or can be easily removed, without any of the disagreeable consequences that attend shutting and rubbing. Rats .- A correspondent of the Gardener's

Monthly says;

I tried the effect of introducing into the entrance of their numerous holes, runs, or hiding places, small portions of chloride of lime; or bleaching powder, wrapped in calico and stuffed into the entrance holes, and thrown loose by spoonfuls into the drain from the house. This drove the rats away for a twelvemonth, when they returned to it. They were treated in the same manner, with a like effect. The cure was most complete. I presume it was the chlorine gas, which did not agree with their offactories.

Cure for Rheumatism .- As many persons are at the present season troubled with this unpleasant disease, we give publicity to the following cure, said to be very effective:

npleasant disease, we give publicly

Illowing cure, said to be very effective:

"Bathe the parts affected in water, in which potatoes with their skins on, have have as hot as can be borne, just between the pain as hot as can be borne, just between the pain as hot as can be borne, just between the pain as cheef as can be borne, just between the pain as cheef as can be borne, just between the pain as cheef as can be borne, just between the pain as cheef as can be borne, just between the pain as can be borned to be borned to be borned to be borned to be borned which potatoes with their skins on, have been boiled, as hot as can be borne, just before going to bed. By next morning the pain will be much relieved, if not removed. One application of this simple remedy has cured the most obstinate rheumatic pains."

Sult for Fence Posts .- A correspondent of the N. H. Journal of Agriculture set some white oak posts, 12 inches square, 30 years ago, and on examining them the other day he found them all sound. After setting, he bored into each post about three inches above the ground, with a two inch augur, at an angle of about 45 degrees, and filled the hole with salt and plugged it up. It took about half-a-pint of salt to each post. The plugs are yet in, and the posts look as sound as when set.

Treatment of Scalds and Burns .- Apply as soon as possible to the affected parts cloths dipped in cold water, change as often as they become warm, until the scald is done smarting; if the skin is broken use this ointment to heal the sore: Simmer together two large onions, and four ounces of fresh lard, two hours, strain and it is ready for use .-This ointment is good for all imflammatory wounds. Burns should be covered all over with wheat flour.

Warts and Corns .- The bark of a willow tree burnt to ashes, mixed with strong vinegar, and applied to the parts, will remove all corns or excrescences on any part of the
